HUNTER AND HUNTED AT REST

Balloon Goes Up On Chest Monday

The Community Chest campaign train gets into high gear in the next four days after several weeks of chugging preparation for the long $300,000 haul.

On Sunday, 2,500 canvassers will watch a film, "Carve Her Name With Pride," and get last-minute encouragement from chairman Justin Harbord, at the Odeon Theatre.

On Monday, the campaign officially gets under way when Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross cuts the string releasing the Chest balloon outside the Empress Hotel at 11 a.m., to be followed by a parade with band of army, air force and navy personnel.

FRENCH REFERENDUM SUNDAY

Rebel Sabotage Precedes Vote

(See Also, Page 3)

PARIS (UPI)—Algerian Nationalists blew up an acetylene warehouse today in a sabotage campaign that increased in intensity just 24 hours before the nation votes on the new constitution.

The French, determined to let nothing interfere with the referendum Sunday, guillotined an Algerian Moslem convicted of murder.

The convict, Benil Ben Abdullah Bouguerea, who killed a pro-French Moslem, was executed at La Sante Prison. He was the first Moslem executed inside France since the start of the Algerian rebellion four years ago.

But it did not deter the rebel campaign in metropoiltan France.

A series of mysterious fires broke out in Lyons. Rebels threw gasoline bombs into a textile factory in Aubervilliers but failed to set the plant afire. Another bomb placed against the home of a policeman in Bordeaux was discovered before it exploded.

Police said Algerian agents exploded several plastic charges in a warehouse in the northern suburbs. Acetylene tanks exploded inside and the building collapsed. Hundreds of window panes were shattered over a wide area.

100 mph Winds Cause Havoc; Worst to Come

(From Times News Services)

WILMINGTON, N.C.—Winds of Hurricane Helene howled ashore in southeastern North Carolina late this morning at speeds above 100 miles an hour.

First reports told of mounting damage but no deaths.

Advance warning from the weather bureau and civil defence authorities had emptied the danger areas of practically all residents. Thousands fled inland or checked in at numerous emergency shelters.

Twelve-foot waves and flood tides pounded ashore in advance of the storm's centre which packed winds up to 125 miles an hour.

City docks at Southport, port town 30 miles south of Wilmington, washed away, the weather bureau said.

HOUSES COLLAPSE

The highway patrol said a few houses at Kure Beach, east of Wilmington, had collapsed under the wind force.

Far to the south, hurricane Ilsa built up into a mammoth hurricane with winds of 140 miles an hour, some 435 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. No land area was in its immediate path.

Helene's centre, swinging on a more northerly course, was poised late this morning below the mouth of the Cape Fear River, and was expected to roll across the low country around Southport and Wilmington in early afternoon.

15-FOOT WAVES

Seas with waves 15 feet high were reported at the Coast Guard station on Oak Island, off Southport.

Gusts blew debris through the streets. Authorities broadcast warnings for residents to stay off the streets. A newsman reported the rear window of his car was blown out by a strong gust.

Helene, making the classic turn of Atlantic hurricanes to the north, altered course in the night, apparently sparing South Carolina coastal lands the brunt of her full blow.

IKE'S NEW AIDE

Maj.-Gen. Wilton B. Persons, 62, a native of Montgomery, Ala., today was named by President Eisenhower as his chief assistant to succeed the resigned Sherman Adams. Persons had been deputy assistant to Eisenhower since Sept. 5, 1953.

UN China Debate Opposed by U.K.

WASHINGTON (AP)—British officials are reported here to be advocating a long-range compromise settlement of the Formosa dispute under which Nationalist-held coastal islands would go eventually to Communist China.

The British government also was reported today to be advising the United States against bringing the Formosa crisis before the United Nations in the immediate future. London officials were said to believe the best hope for a peaceful settlement lies in diplomatic negotiations rather than UN debate.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said today that public mail on the Quemoy situation is running heavily against the administration's decision to help the Chinese Nationalists retain the offshore islands.

A Washington dispatch by E. W. Kenworthy says about 80 per cent of the mail directly criticizes the administration's policy, or expresses fear that the policy will lead to war. The rest praises President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles for "standing up to the Communists."

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese convoys cracked the Communist blockade of the Quemoys twice today.

Some 50 amphibious LVTs waddled ashore through a pattern of waterspouts thrown up by probing Red Chinese artillery as worsening weather in the Formosa Strait led increasingly to the belief that a major Communist attack in the Formosa area is unlikely, at least for the next few months.

2 YOUTHS SCALE FENCE IN OAKALLA ESCAPE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police are still searching today for two youthful escapees from Oakalla Prison Farm in suburban Burnaby.

William Harley, 19, and Herbert Roemlein, 21, broke through iron bars in a workshop and scaled the prison fence Friday night. Both were serving six-month sentences.

Seven prisoners have escaped from Oakalla in the last month. Five of them are still at large.

City Stench Bomb Blamed on Mills

Up-Island pulp mills were suspected this morning as sources of a lusty stench that pervaded the city early today.

Immediately suspect was the B.C. Electric gas plant, but after a few complaints had been received, the gas foreman went to work and found to his satisfaction that his plant was not responsible.

He blamed the pulp mills, and weatherman William Mackie said weather conditions were such that "attar of pulp" could be noted here.

Winds were light and from the north, he said, and there was an inversion—a condition where cold air is on the earth's surface and warm air aloft—that acts like a lid and keeps pollution factors from dispersing into the upper air.

B.C. Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton is 33 air miles from the city centre, and Harmac mill near Nanaimo is 54 miles away.

Luton Town Takes Over Soccer Lead

LONDON (Reuters) — Luton Town, only unbeaten soccer team in the English League First Division, jumped from fourth to first place today with a 4-1 victory over Preston North End at Luton.

After a 1-1 first half, Luton turned on the pressure to gain the only win among the top eight clubs in the division.

Defeated Preston, which had moved to the top with a mid-week victory, dropped to a second-place points tie with Bolton Wanderers and Chelsea, but Preston had the better goal average.

CHELSEA MOVES UP

Bolton was defeated 2-1 today by Burnley, while Chelsea jumped all the way from ninth place with a 4-1 victory over Nottingham Forest. It was Chelsea's fifth straight home win.

A goal by free-scoring centre forward David Herd gave Arsenal which was lying third in the table, a 1-0 interval lead at Leeds, but the Yorkshire club, helped by a penalty, fought back to win 2-1 and register its first home win of the season.

The day's biggest crowd, 62,812, watched the "local derby" between Manchester City and Manchester United, which ended in a 1-1 tie.

Typhoon Deaths May Reach 2,000

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—The death toll from typhoon Ida mounted today as disaster reports trickled in from vast flooded areas of central Japan. Police listed 234 fatalities and 1,300 persons missing.

Casualty figures will be higher, police said, when communications are restored with Izu Peninsula, 70 miles below Tokyo. There the Kano River, swollen by 23 inches of rain, slashed at a dozen villages and washed two out to sea.

Unconfirmed Japanese press lists pushed the number of dead and missing to 2,000.

U.S. military forces dispatched equipment and men to help in evacuation and relief work in the stricken capital and elsewhere.

At the height of the storm, 100-mile winds lashed Izu and Tokyo Bay, with gusts up to 80 miles an hour in the city proper. An all-time record 15½ inches of rain fell, destroying or washing away more than 1,000 homes. About 500,000 houses were flooded to varying extent.

The devastation outside the capital was illustrated by these figures from the police . . . roads washed out in 871 places . . . 224 bridges smashed or swept away . . . 1,875 landslides. In some of the latter, whole families were reported buried.

Little Rock Integration Vote Heavy

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Election officials predicted a heavy vote in today's referendum on the racial integration of Little Rock schools.

The ballot offered a choice of allowing Negroes to attend all schools in the Little Rock school district—or none.

There are about 42,000 eligible voters, including 8,000 Negroes.

Governor Orval Faubus, who closed the city's four high schools two weeks ago in a move to avoid immediate integration, Friday night assailed factions favoring integrated schools but said he was not trying to influence the election.

"The decision is yours," he said in a televised speech. "As your public servant, I will abide by your decision."

ROBOTS ON THE LOOSE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A noted classicist defined a "robot" Friday for a symposium at the University of British Columbia.

Rhys Carpenter, emeritus professor of classical archaeology at Bryn Mawr College, said a robot is an "ingenious mechanism of wheels and crankshafts, actuated by cylinders, spark plugs, timers and carburetors—attached to a highly complex neuroganglian device which pushes pedals in and out and turns a wheel to left and right amid traffic."

"This last piece of mechanism being colloquially known as a licensed driver."

East Indian Swims Channel

DOVER, Eng. (UPI) — Calcutta lawyer Mihir Sen, 29, became the first Asian and the first East Indian to swim the English Channel from England to France today.

Sen was in the water 14 hours 45 minutes on his cross-channel swim through a south-west gale and thick fog.

WIRE BRIEFS

Yacht Aground

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Deer Leap, a 75-foot Seattle-owned luxury yacht, ran aground just outside the First Narrows entrance to Vancouver's Harbor during fog early today. Nine passengers were taken off by a tug. Officials said the vessel was in no danger.

Cyprus Proposal

ATHENS (Reuters)—Archbishop Makarios today officially proposed to the British government that Cyprus should become independent under a United Nations guarantee.

Two Die in Fire

MILLE MARIE, Que. (CP) —Two persons lost their lives today when fire swept through a wooden hotel and also destroyed three other buildings.

English Horse Wins Stake Event

ASCOT, Eng. (AP) — Major Portion won the one mile Queen Elizabeth II Stakes today—England's first success in the race.

The three previous races all had been won by French-bred horses.

Major Portion, a three-year-old chestnut colt by Court Martial out of Better Half, landed the first prize of 5,839 pounds $16,349 in a photo finish with Babur. Major Portion got the verdict by a head.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Almighty God, Thy kingdom is everlasting and the only assurance of peace and happiness for mankind. Strengthen our hearts to pray and to work for its coming. Although in these troubled days of confusion it may seem to be far away, help us to set up Thy kingdom in our own lives. Transform our doubt into faith, our weakness into strength, our fainthearted-ness into courage. Then we shall walk joyfully in the way of the kingdom of the Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

SATELLITE CONSUMED BY FRICTION

WASHINGTON (AP)—The defence department said today the navy Vanguard satellite launched Friday did not go into orbit and burned up flying in the earth's atmosphere.

An announcement said in part: "After one or at most a limited number of passes around the earth at very low altitudes, the vehicle re-entered the earth's atmosphere and was consumed by friction."

People and Things

BOSCO, Italy—The 700 Roman Catholic villagers of this mountain hamlet in southern Italy have threatened to turn Protestant unless they get back their parish priest.

The trouble started three months ago when Bosco's priest, Don Francesco Saverio lo Sardo, was transferred.

The villagers sent a deputation to the bishop of Policastro, asking his return.

Their pleas were in vain, so they launched a protest strike against church services.

Don Francesco's successor, Don Mario Carpentieri, tried his best to patch things up but has not been too successful.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Donna Sue Turner, a child bride at the age of 10 and now mother of an infant daughter, wants a divorce.

The girl, who observed her 12th birthday Aug. 7, charged in a suit filed Friday that Charles William Turner, deserted her shortly after their baby's birth last June 4 and has failed to provide either a home or support for them.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) —Henry and Blanche Holloway, octogenarian hermits of low-lying Goat Island, just north of Charleston, said Friday they planned to sit out hurricane Helene either in their dugout cave or in a tree.

VISITORS TO CANADA in mid-October will be Sir Grantley Adams, prime minister of the West Indies Federation, above, and Lady Adams. They will be in Canada for 10 days as guests of Governor-General Massey.

Missile Battalion to Formosa

SEATTLE (AP)—The army disclosed Friday night a guided missile battalion has sailed for Formosa.

It was identified as the Second Missile Battalion (Nike Hercules) of the 71st Artillery, but the sailing time and the strength of the group were not divulged. A battalion normally numbers from 600 to 900 men.

The unit had been stationed briefly at Fort Lawton here before embarking for the Far East. It is the first of its kind to be sent to the Orient, an army spokesman said.

EMERGENCY CALLS
Your directory has spaces on the first white page where Emergency numbers can be written. Be sure to write in these numbers for quick easy reference.

DIRECTORY
Your new Centennial Directory, listing all new Victoria and District telephone numbers, should now be in your home. If you have not yet received your new directory, notify our Business Office—phone 4-8011 (after Sunday, Sept. 28, call EVergreen 4-8011). The new directory becomes effective September 28. Please do not use your old directory after that date.

DIALING
If you should happen to dial a number and forget to dial the prefix name letters you will hear the "no-such-number" tone—a continuous tone, rising and falling in pitch. If you hear this tone, please consult your new directory and call again. Remember—you must dial TWO LETTERS and FIVE FIGURES.

WHY THIS NUMBER CHANGE IS NECESSARY

The change to what is called "2-5" numbering—two letters followed by five figures—will bring Victoria and District telephone numbers in line with similar changes now being effected in British Columbia and all parts of the North American continent. Its purpose is to establish a uniform pattern of telephone numbering which will eventually allow most subscribers to dial almost any phone in North America without requiring the services of an operator.

Progressive improvement in service is the Telephone Company's constant aim. The introduction of "2-5" numbering to Victoria and District is an important part of our objective.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By MICHAEL ROSE

Question: What do you think of the proposed conversion of Royal Athletic Park into a shopping centre?

Mrs. Patricia Jacobsen, 722 Caledonia:

"It doesn't really matter too much to us as we will be leaving town quite soon. People who find it difficult to get down town will probably find it a great help and there is still Central Park for the children."

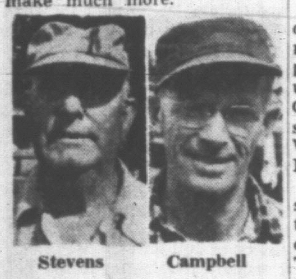

Jacobsen VanderHave

Jan VanderHave, 1054 Pandora:

"It will be too bad if the plan goes through. In a big town like Victoria a park like that is very valuable and we should not let it go. It is the only park in the city with really comfortable stands and facilities."

Robert Stevens, 1027 Caledonia:

"As far as the city is concerned they are better off selling it than keeping it if they are losing the money I think they are. I don't think they are getting enough money for the sale though. They could split the place up into lots and make much more."

Stevens Campbell

John Campbell, 1508 Holly:

"I don't think it is a good idea at all, the city needs all the recreation room it can get. It is a good central spot that a lot of people can get to easily and I don't see why they should sell."

Mrs. Catherine Greenaway, 2012 Blanshard:

"As long as the kids don't get done out of anything it is a good thing. The main thing as far as I can see is to make sure that the children have places to play. If they do build the centre it will mean a big general improvement besides making work during the winter slack period."

Greenaway Ruppel

Mrs. Shirley Ruppel, 1163 View:

"We haven't got a large supermarket here and it would certainly be nicer than going down town. When my husband is away I haven't got the car and it is difficult to have to wait until he comes home to get the shopping done."

De Gaulle Asks For 'Yes' Votes

Big Turnout in Algeria as Voting Begins on New French Constitution

PARIS (AP)—Premier de Gaulle called Friday night for an overwhelming "yes" vote for his new constitution.

"A new republic . . . is going to be established which she now has within reach," he said in a radio-TV broadcast.

With voting already under way in parts of revolt-torn Algeria, de Gaulle gave special attention to that North African territory which is legally regarded as a part of France.

French authorities in Algiers hailed the heavy turnout of Arabs and Berbers—under the watchful eye of a 500,000-man French Army—and predicted the constitution will be approved overwhelmingly.

Voting is under way in another group of Algerian districts today. The rest of Algeria's districts will vote Sunday, when the people of France and her other territories cast their ballots.

SWEEPING CHANGES

Here in capsule form is what the new constitution provides for the projected Fifth Republic:

1. A strong president, elected for a seven-year term by an electoral college composed of members of parliament and local officials in France and territories overseas.

2. The president to be commander-in-chief of the armed forces with wide emergency powers.

3. He will be able to dissolve parliament in the event of a conflict with the government. His approval will be required for the appointment of cabinet ministers.

4. He can suspend legislation and ask parliament to reconsider it.

5. He becomes, in effect, head of the civil service, making all non-policy appointments to it.

6. He appoints the premier, who holds office until an absolute majority of parliament revokes him.

7. Parliament will consist of two houses, a National Assembly and a Senate, with the Senate strengthened to become nearly as important as the assembly.

8. A constitutional council will interpret the constitution.

9. Overseas territories voting "yes" will join France in a community or federation.

10. The president of France, plus the premiers of each state and the French foreign, defence and economic ministers will form the community's cabinet.

11. The community's Senate will be named by the national assemblies or parliaments of each state.

Fire Ike, Dulles Senator Suggests

PORTLAND (AP)—If President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles "persist in their present foreign policy based upon warlike action over the Quemoys and Matsus, they should be impeached," Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D., Ore.) said Friday.

"Secretary of State Dulles insulted the intelligence of every thinking American in his speech of shocking deception last night. This evil man, bent on war, must be checked if our nation's glorious record of never having been an aggressor nation is to be preserved," Morse said.

"The American people need to be warned that the president and Dulles have become irresponsible men by their warmongering over the Quemoys and Matsus . . . They are permitting a corrupt ex-Chinese warlord to endanger the lives of American boys . . .

"We should defend Formosa to the hilt until its sovereignty is determined by the United Nations, but we have no business killing American boys over the Quemoys and Matsus," said Morse, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee.

SEATTLE (AP) — Former president Harry S. Truman flatly disagreed Friday with Democratic Senator Wayne Morse on the subject of impeachment.

"I don't think any president should be impeached," Truman said. "They tried it with Andrew Jackson and it failed, and that was a good thing.

"Such proceedings can only be started by the House," Truman said, "and the senator knows that."

REPORTER'S SLASHING PROBED

CHICAGO (AP) — Police pressed an investigation Friday of a possible link between the face slashing of a Chicago Daily News reporter and his published accounts of police crackdowns on pornographic material. In the last year, officers have arrested at least 17 men in raids that netted more than 35,000 obscene photographs, negatives and films. Miller Davis, 37, a reporter for The News, accompanied police on several of the raids.

Fire Murder Suspects Remanded for Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — William Warren, 35, and Merrill Plouffe, 27, charged with murder in connection with a fire here two weeks ago that took seven lives, Friday were remanded to Oct. 9 for preliminary hearing. The two were charged with the murder of 10-year-old Marie Anne Buth, one of seven fire victims.

'You Will Be Big' John D. Tells North

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who campaigned through two elections on his version of northern development, has given the North the promise: "There will be achievements."

This would bring not only new wealth and population, but the sure hope of provincial status for the Yukon and the Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories, he told an audience of 1,500 in this Yukon capital Friday night.

"This area will be a province surely in the fullness of time," he said.

In the next six or seven years, he said, the federal government will spend $100,000,000 to extend the North's road network and will share with the provinces in a similar expenditure on roads to resources in the northern parts of the provinces.

IN FORMOSA CRISIS

'No Man's Land' India's Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — India's V. K. Krishna Menon has been sounding out delegates from both sides of the Iron Curtain with a plan to break the Formosa deadlock.

Informants said Menon wants to make the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu a no-man's land while a political settlement is sought for Formosa.

The Chinese Nationalists would pull their armed forces from the islands, while the Red Chinese would promise not to attempt any landings during negotiations.

The Indians are understood to feel that next Tuesday — when talks between U.S. and Communist Chinese ambassadors resume in Warsaw—will be the critical stage in the bargaining sessions between the two powers.

The United States has indicated that if the Warsaw talks break down it will toss the issue before the General Assembly or the Security Council.

Many delegates feel that the East-West bitterness stirred up by such a debate would hamper any settlement. They would prefer to see a good-offices commission created to try to work out the problem.

Oak Bay Socreds Re-Elect Woman To Presidency

Oak Bay Social Credit Association this week re-elected Mrs. Edward Brand as president.

A meeting in St. Mary's Church Hall also elected Mrs. A. C. McFayden, first vice-president; A. de Meyez, second vice-president; George Petch, third vice-president; S. H. Brake, fourth vice-president; A. Casson, fifth vice-president.

The group passed a resolution that sales tax be exempted on meals under $2 instead of under $1 as now. It will be sent to the party convention Oct. 31 in Vancouver.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT
Better Health Through Knowledge

Q. "You recently said that as a person gets older the eye fluid may change somewhat with formation of threads or opacities. This causes "cobwebs" before the eyes. Would vitreous opacities in a person age 20 be considered normal? Could vitreous changes be due to some unrecognized general infection? Are there ways of clearing the vitreous of opacities?"—R.K., Canada.

A. Vitreous opacities in a 20-year-old person would not be considered normal. Such changes could be due to unrecognized general or systemic infection. Usually, the vitreous can be cleared only if the condition is treated promptly. Medication and elimination of underlying causes will often improve matters if the condition is not too severe. Ophthalmologists say that after about two or three months the opacities become "hard." The chances of eliminating "hard floaters" aren't so good.

Q. "Will scientists ever develop a way to restore hair color and erase face wrinkles"—Texas.

A. It would be hard to say what scientists will come up with next but they may never find the Fountain of Youth.

Q. My children have been given three polio shots. Is a fourth injection necessary and if so, when should it be given?

A. The question of booster shots of polio vaccine should be discussed with your physician. Dr. Salk, who developed the vaccine, recently stated that a booster dose of polio vaccine would do no harm and implied that it might do some good. This seems logical because some triple-vaccinated children have developed the disease. Meanwhile, the Public Health Service has the entire "booster shot" problem under study and may be able to make definite recommendations in the near future.

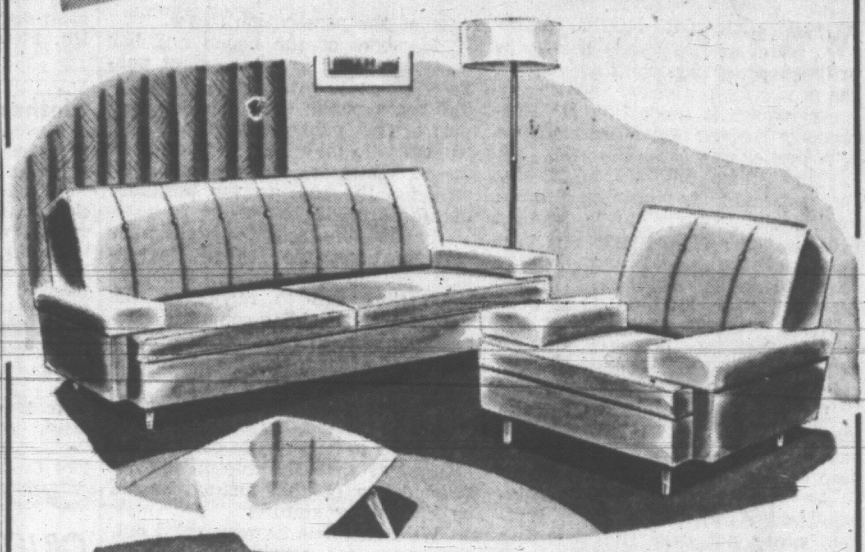

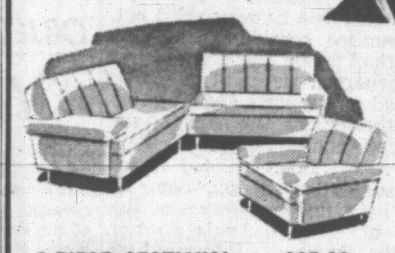

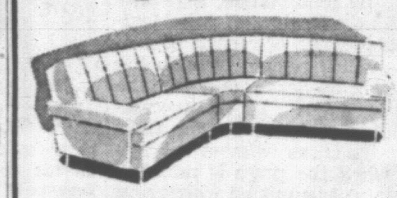

Q. Is the supply of polio vaccine adequate?

A. Yes, more than adequate. One manufacturer recently stopped production of polio vaccine because of poor demand. The firm has more than 20 million doses on hand—all headed for the drain unless used within the next few months.

Answers do not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician.

Danger in a Restricted Press

WHETHER OR NOT MAGISTRATE A. I. Thomas has authority to order reporters to contact the prosecuting attorney "before any press release is made" on the preliminary hearing of a murder charge is a matter for legal research.

The ruling followed advice by the prosecutor to the press to be "extremely cautious" in its reports because some of the evidence presented at the hearing might later be ruled inadmissible in a higher court. That is an unusual if well-intended procedure in itself.

The court has means of dealing with reporters for errors they may make in such instances.

But whatever the status of the magistrate's order, the point raised has direct bearing on an issue of deep concern recently in Britain.

As the result of the widely-publicized Adams trial there, criticism arose not over the reporting itself, but against the presentation of the case that had to be reported.

This is a point analogous to one which has troubled thoughtful members of the bench and bar here for some time. Under our law, an individual is considered innocent until proved guilty. He cannot be proved guilty until he has been sent to trial. But before he is sent to trial in serious cases, the circumstances on which a charge is laid are examined at a preliminary hearing to determine if sufficient evidence exists to proceed with the trial—if, in other words, there is a case against him.

Conventionally in courts here preliminary hearings are open. Evidence submitted is reported. Very often the evidence adduced forms the basis on which the prosecution builds its case. Frequently the defence calls no witnesses. Hence, if the individual is committed for trial in higher court, the newspapers reporting the preliminary hearing have had access only to the presentation of the prosecution's case.

Members of the bench and bar have wondered to what extent publicity given to preliminary hearings influences public opinion, and, as a part of that public opinion, men and women who may be called to sit on juries. Does it lead the public to prejudge the case to the prejudice of the accused?

Presumably seized with similar considerations, the British Government set up the Tucker committee some time ago to report on the desirability of holding committal proceedings in open court or in camera and whether such proceedings should be reportable.

The committee, The Times Weekly Review reported, found formidable objections to hearings in camera and considered that the reasonably restricted use of this method should be limited by statute.

With complete secrecy ruled out, the committee considered the suggestion that unless the accused had been discharged or until the trial had ended any reports should go no further than giving the name of the accused, the charge and the decision.

The report takes pointed notice of that suggestion saying: "Some of us who have had experience of the conduct of criminal trials do not believe that juries are influenced by extraneous matter which they have read in newspapers and feel confident that they can be trusted to decide cases solely on sworn evidence which they hear given before them."

It will be unfortunate, says The Times Weekly Review, if "the temporary suppression of reports of proceedings—which remain open to the public to hear—leads only to the spread of rumor. If this recommendation is accepted by the Government then, as almost always happens when the press is muzzled, a premium will be put on whispering campaigns."

New Worry in Poland

POSTWAR POLAND HAS, ON several occasions, shown itself to be a nervous member of the Communist team.

That characteristic was evident when, under Gomulka's leadership, it accepted "half-a-loaf" of freedom at the time Hungary was being suppressed. Walking the path beside big Russia has been uncomfortable. Poland could never know when its big neighbor would veer toward it with crushing results.

But Poland had practical reasons for the alignment. Now it appears to have new ones.

Writing from Warsaw to The Christian Science Monitor, Mr. Joseph Harsch presents the picture in a few brush strokes:

"Until recently Poland saw one important value in its alliance with the U.S.S.R.," says Mr. Harsch. "The Soviet Union was a protection against the fear of revival of German power. Now at least some Poles begin to see a greater new danger in China and are thankful that the U.S.S.R. stands between and even hope that it will continue to stand between them.

"Certainly the belief is strong here that Communist China is getting dangerously powerful and that the best thing that could happen in the world would be a mutual agreement by Washington and Moscow to regard Peking as a common danger—which might conceivably explain why the Chinese Communists are willing to talk peace with the United States in a baroque palace in Warsaw."

Mr. Harsch's analysis may be highly speculative. It does not, however, diverge to any extent from the explanation of some recent Russian moves. They indicate that the U.S.S.R. has a dragon by the tail and has not yet found how to let go.

In the Wake

THE WEEK'S YACHT RACING for the America's Cup has been a disappointment to all. For the skipper and crew of the Sceptre, of course, there will have been a particularly personal regret — their vessel and their seamanship proved not good enough to defeat the American entry.

The American yachtsmen, both those who promoted and those who sailed the Columbia, must be disappointed that they were not given the closer competition that would have sharpened interest in the contest.

To the people of Britain this year's defeat is another in a long series of losses. On sixteen previous occasions Britain has challenged for the 107-year-old trophy. In all earlier races, held on this side of the Atlantic, Britain has had to compete using a heavier yacht capable of crossing the ocean under sail. This year, for the first time, the rules were changed to permit the hull to be brought over aboard a freighter. This allowed the challengers to use a lighter craft. Their loss to the speedy Columbia is therefore all the more disheartening.

The disappointment is shared by many persons in Canada — indeed, all over the world—who long have admired the sportsmanship of repeated British challenges and American defences in this great classic, and would like to see the British entry win at long last. That must now wait for another time — and meanwhile the experts will launch their verbal craft upon a sea of argument.

Aid for the Blind

A BENEVOLENT SCIENCE MAY have produced an intricate device that enables the blind to "read" ordinary type.

This is the possibility now being investigated by appropriate authorities in Washington, D.C.

The piece of equipment is contained in a wooden case measuring seven by nine by eight inches, weighs nine pounds and is placed over the conventionally printed page. Photocells pick up an impulse from the print which is converted into a pattern of sounds indicating letters to those trained to identify the particular code.

By means of the device it is believed that the blind may "read" as much as 15 to 20 words a minute when they achieve full competency.

The advantage over Braille lies in the fact that the equipment gives the blind access to normally printed material.

It is gratifying to note this effort by science to aid those who have lost their sight. It must, moreover, impress upon all who can see the great boon they possess. Perhaps, at this time when public support is being sought for the agency which cares for the sightless, people not so afflicted will find occasion to express their appreciation for sight by giving more generously.

Farewell My Lovely

WELCOMED BY MANY, REgretted by others, the change back to standard time takes place tonight. The reversion marks the end of summer, even more definitely than the usual farewells at Labor Day. No more will there be that extra hour of daylight after dinner for a final look round the garden or a chance to complete some outdoor chore. The rapid closing-in of the evenings, now that the equinox is past, adds finality to the prospect. The summer is over, and no subterfuge of clocks or chimes, of pendulums or springs, could hide the fact.

As Our Readers See It

Plea for Freedom

I would like very much to express my views on the half day closing question.

I feel if stores see fit and want to keep open, instead of closing, they should be allowed to do so as long as their licence is in good standing and paid up.

I plead for them to have that privilege and freedom of opening or closing when they like—as long as they obey the law in all other ways.

This is a tourist city. Let us cater to their needs, day or night, so they will go away satisfied. Remember a satisfied customers is worth 100 otherwise. Also remember convenience is worth a great deal. We have very little freedom left. Please let us retain what we have.

BILL ARCHER.

Clothes and the Boy

I have a teen aged son and if he was in trouble I wouldn't want public resentment fanned by newspaper reports.

I refer to the description of the clothes worn by a certain individual in court. Perhaps the person who covered that story isn't aware that a great number of hard-working college boys wear "drapes" and the type of shoes referred to are worn widely in square dance circles—not exclusively by teenagers but by a great number of successful business and professional men. Take a poll sometime.

It is not the newspaper's duty to judge, just to print the facts.

OBJECTIVE FOR US ALL

By TONY EMERY

Victoria: A Cultural Centre for the Nation as a Whole?

DID you attend the opening of the Centennial Wing of the Art Gallery? It was a very uplifting affair. Speaker after speaker paid tribute to the importance of the arts in the life of the community; it was generally agreed that Canada was entering on a new and exciting cultural phase of her history; it was implied that this was only a beginning: that present joys were as nothing to the glories to come, though these future delights were left vague, inchoate, undefined.

Emery

A few days later the gallery was honored by the presence of the chairman of the Canada Council. Before the reception I knew only this of Mr. Claxton: that when he was minister of defence he was quoted as having promised that no hostile bomber should ever penetrate our alert defences. You may judge, then, with what mixed feelings I waited to hear him speak.

I must say that his remarks at the evening reception, and a more lengthy address to the directors of gallery and symphony next day, served to set my mind at rest.

He explained the organization, outlined the plans, and sketched a few of the problems of the Canada Council, in a way which showed that he knew what he was up to. I am persuaded now that the remark about the bombers was a momentary aberration, or one of those misquotations of which we hear so much.

It is clear that the Canada Council has already gained some valuable experience in its first year of existence, and I was particularly struck by the emphasis its chairman gave to two points: first, that the Canada Council would only help where the community had already given its support; and secondly, that the Council was only interested in the best.

In the arts, as in any business, you get what you pay for; but there is no way to measure the effects of expenditure on the arts, so to many businessmen, accustomed to thinking in dollars and cents, money spent on art galleries and symphony orchestras is so much poured down the drain.

It seems scarcely logical for municipal bodies to spend money on parks and tennis courts and public libraries without expecting any return, and yet to cavil at an equal expenditure on the arts.

Is it a question of numbers? Surely not, for more people visit the gallery and support the symphony than play tennis on the public courts, or sail model boats on the Dallas Road pond.

Perhaps it is because ministers and councillors are waiting for guidance, inspired by the ghost of the French revolutionary who said: "I must follow the people. After all, I am their leader."

In a situation like this it would be criminally un-Samaritan to refuse to help, so let me with my customary modesty offer some observations.

I shall assume, of course, that the speakers at the gallery opening meant what they said, and were not just whistling "Dixie"; I shall further assume that no responsible official would allow himself to be deterred from doing his duty by the mere certainty of losing a few thousand votes. With the ground thus cleared, we may proceed to study the cultural needs of Victoria.

First, it is painfully obvious that Victoria needs a good civic auditorium by 1960 at the latest. Until this basic requirement is satisfied very little progress can be expected on the musical and dramatic fronts. The symphony orchestra, freed from the crushing burden of hall rental, could concentrate on improving its quality to meet the standards exacted by the Canada Council; the dramatic world of Victoria would have a focal point about which to concentrate its abilities and efforts.

The building should be selected by competition among the architects of our province (it was such a competition, sponsored by the Rotary Club, that sparked the Art Gallery wing, after all); it should be a thing of beauty, with a sum equivalent to 5 per cent of the total cost set aside for its embellishment by B.C. artists. Let me even suggest a site for this dream edifice, on Victoria College campus.

Now that we have built ourselves a $2,000,000 auditorium let us plan for the years 1960-65 a further addition to our cultural life.

Canada has, as yet, no school of drama comparable with the great academies of England and France. Why not build one here in Victoria? It might incorporate a conservatory of music, and a school of ballet as well, fulfilling a great need in western Canada.

Parallel with this growth, I see Victoria College pursuing its way towards the achievement of full university status, its present urgent requirements in the way of library and science buildings having been met.

In a decade from now, if a start is made at once, Victoria could easily realize the role for which she has been cast by some of our more imaginative civic leaders: that of a residential university city and cultural centre for the nation as a whole. And all it needs is money—a lot of money. Are we going to go out for it?

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

By GUS SIVERTZ

Season of 'Conkers' and Birds at Play

ONE of the most beautiful devices conceived by nature to maintain and spread her astonishing fruitfulness is the simple and ubiquitous chestnut. On these glorious autumn days they will be lying in their hundreds, strewn along boulevards and lawns where the stately chestnut trees have been providentially planted. And when we were young almost every boy at this fecund season had his pockets bulging with them. On the grass their prickly husks lay abandoned, their function served when they delivered to the warm, moist earth the seed of another chestnut tree.

Sivertz

But none of this entered our boyish minds as we marched to school with a dozen or more of the red-brown pods (if that's what they were) to be carved into faces and sometimes mounted on pointed sticks and roughly clothed as little people.

We would polish them to a deep mahogany lustre by rubbing the shells on the sides of our noses.

Of course chestnuts, needless to say, made wonderful ammunition for slingshots, either the simple "Y" type made with a crotched branch to the prongs of which strong elastic was tied and then fastened to a piece of leather to hold whatever missile we used; or the type of sling with which David slew Goliath made with two pieces of cord attached to a missile holder.

This one could really cast a stone or chestnut fast and far but I confess to never attaining any great degree of accuracy with it and was as like as not to hit a window far to the side of my intended target.

Then there was the game of "conkers" which a friend assures me is still played by school boys in England—and may, indeed, be still played here. In this game one bored a hole through a good sound chestnut, drew a stout cord through the hole and tied the end to strong stick.

The object then was to seek out another boy with a conker and, taking turns, try to smash each other's conkers. It was amazing how adept some boys became at this game and some found that by almost cooking the conker in the kitchen oven it became trebly hard to crack.

And it was great fun on crispy late September days to pelt the thick hedge rows of hawthorn and briar that grew so generously along the fences on Edmonton Road, now called Bay Street. The idea wasn't to hit anything but just to see the birds rise in fluttering flocks from the spiny bushes that on such days are simply aquiver with twittering bird life.

For this is their season of play. All their little domestic chores are finished, the nests are empty and pieces of string and bits of cloth trail from these now untidy homes, plastered under the eaves or on barn rafters.

The young are now flying around on their own, dipping, skimming, chirping like crazy with the joy of being alive. And in the hedges gorging themselves on the sweet hawthorn berries and on the blood-red sweet briar seed pods.

The robins dive and skim on their strong wings but they don't join the sparrows, chickadees and thrushes in the bushes. They seem just to fly for the sheer fun of it, perhaps with the relief of respectable couples—for robins are very respectable—whose children have now become self-supporting.

Instead of gobbling up seeds and berries the robins (who like cherries and strawberries well enough at nesting time) will dip down to a lawn and stand with head cocked toward the ground "listening for worms" and suddenly drive their sharp beaks into the turf, and more often than not, pull out a long earthworm which they will rub on the grass and fold up into manageable size to swallow.

And the robins disdain the bread crumbs and scattered rolled oats of bird-loving persons while the other little birds clean these up with lightning rapidity.

But the wonder of it all is that one may watch them for hours, day after day, and the beautiy of it grows only greater until there seems nothing to be afraid of in this beautiful world—save mankind.

BACKGROUND OF FRANCE'S PROBLEM

By TOM HENSHAW

'Could Be One of the Most Important Votes of Our Times'

AN estimated 45 million people of widely diverse race and background are expected to go to the polls Sunday in what could be one of the most important votes of our times. They will be voting "oui" or "non", on a new constitution proposed by Premier Charles de Gaulle as the basic document to govern France's Fifth Republic and its overseas community. It's France's 13th constitution since 1791.

White Parisians, black Senegalese, brown Tahitians all will vote on the same constitution but the basic point at issue is vastly difference overseas from that in France itself.

To the voter in metropolitan France, a "oui" vote will mean a strong president; a "non" will mean probable return to the strong but chaotic National Assembly that has plagued France with 25 different governments since Second World War.

To the voter overseas, adoption of the constitution will mean more autonomy within the French community of nations; a rejection will mean outright independence with none of the advantages of economic ties with France.

In revolt-torn Algeria, which the French insist is an integral part of Metropolitan France, the issues are so clouded that no one is quite sure what a vote either way will mean.

The French Union, as the overseas community is called, is made up of 18 territories, four departments, one condominium shared with Britain, two autonomous states held in trust—and Algeria. All are voting except the condominium (New Hebrides) and the trust states (Togo and Cameroons).

All but two of the territories and departments are expected to approve the constitution. Senegal in West Africa and Algeria, scene of the bloody nationalist revolt since November, 1954, are listed as doubtful. But de Gaulle has not committed himself as to whether a "non" vote will mean independence for Algeria.

The chief bait held out for an overseas "oui" vote is continuation of the customs union or tariff-free trade system with France. About two-thirds of the trade of the overseas territories is with France, which in turn carries on about one-fourth of its own trade with the overseas territories. Official France also invests some half a billion dollars a year in development of the Union.

Some of the territories and departments are in America (Martinique, Guadeloupe, Guiana and St. Pierre and Miquelon); some are in the Pacific (New Caledonia and Oceania) but the most important are in Africa.

French Africa is made up of:

Algeria . . . 919,590 square miles; population 9,530,000. . . Regarded by French as part of Metropolitan France. . . . Divided into Northern Territory of 12 departments and Southern Territory of two departments. . . In revolt since November, 1954. . . Population divided roughly into 8,600,000 Moslem Arabs and Berbers, one million Europeans, mostly French.

French West Africa . . . 1,789,182 square miles. . . . Population about 18,800,000. . . A grouping of eight overseas territories in West Africa administered by a high commissioner. . . Population ranges from Moslem Berbers, Moors and Tauregs of the Sahara Desert to pagan Negroes in the damp jungles of the Guinea coast. . . Its eight territories are:

Mauritania, French Sudan and Niger in the northern desert and Savannah area; Senegal and French Guiana along the western coast; and Dahomey, Upper Volta and the Ivory Coast in the south. There are only about 60,000 Europeans in all eight territories.

French Equitorial Africa . . . 969,111 square miles. . . Population about 4,700,000. . . A grouping of four overseas territories in central Africa under a high commissioner. . . Its capital, Brazzaville, was the "capital" of Free France during most of Second World War. . . Land and peoples range from nomadic Arabs in the northern desert to Negroes (including primitive pigmies) in the equatorial rain forests of the south. . . Its four territories are:

Chad and Ubangi-Shari in the north; Gabon and Middle Congo on the Guinea coast to the south.

Madagascar . . . 230,165 square miles. . . . Population 4,950,000. . . An island in the Indian Ocean. . . Fourth largest island in the world. . . Its peoples are more closely related to Malays and Polynesians than Africans. . . Classed as an overseas territory. . . Became French possession in 1896 with overthrow of native royal family. . . Rebellion in 1947 suppressed with considerable bloodshed.

French Somaliland . . . 8,108 square miles. . . Population 63,000. . . An overseas territory. . . Important chiefly for its strategic location at the southern entrance to the Red Sea. . . Population almost entirely Moslem. . . Land area largely a stony desert.

Reunion. . . 969 square miles. . . Population 275,000. . . An island in the Indian Ocean 400 miles east of Madagascar. . . . Classed as an overseas department. . . . It has been French since the 1640s when it bore the name Bourbon.

Comoro Islands. . . 849 square miles. . . . Population 185,000. . . A group of islands between Madagascar and the east coast of Africa. . . Classed as an overseas territory.

BEFORE THE JUDGE — By SILENUS

The Root of the Matter

SILENUS

THIS week the Court of Appeal struck a stout blow in defence of municipalities, at a time when they need it sorely. Bedevilled with rising costs and shrinking powers, the local authorities of the land, foregathered in Nanaimo, have hurled defiance at the provincial government; while in another field of combat the City of Vancouver has won a quiet little victory which should save many a municipal treasurer many a dollar in years to come.

A citizen, some time ago, tripped on a sidewalk in Vancouver and injured herself. She sued the city for not keeping its sidewalk in a proper state of repair, and won some modest damages at the trial which ensued.

This is an old, old story. For years such large and rich institutions as public utilities and cities have been considered an easy mark by those who suffer from their occasional lapses. Each year brings its crop of people who trip on curbs, who fall into excavations, who walk off docks and get flattened by falling objects.

Usually the city fathers groan and dig into the public pocket. Now and then they show fight and go to trial. And juries, even when composed of taxpayers, are inclined to be sympathetic.

The ramifications of municipal negligence are enormous.

The output of brainpower expended over the years in distinguishing the situation of a cracked paving stone from the case of an unlighted hole in the road has been tremendous, and vast are the sums of mony which have been expended in contributing to the development of this part of the common law.

For the municipal corporation is extremely vulnerable. It is to blame if one of its ditch-diggers is careless and leaves a rake lying on a sidewalk ready for someone to step on and . . . you know the rest. It must keep its fences mended, everywhere, all the time, lest an allured child get caught up in its garbage crusher. It must ensure that no noxious and/or pestilential smells and vapors leak out from its sewage farm, and it must not allow its storm drains to become clogged with leaves so that someone's basement is flooded. All in all, it must keep a sharp eye on its affairs, and its engineer must be a veritable Argus.

But there are limits, said the City of Vancouver. The citizen can trip on our curb, fall into our hole, walk off our dock and be stunned by falling telephone directories, and we will pay up cheerfully. Pay up, at any rate. But when the roots of a private poplar tree heave up our sidewalk (probably against our by-law) and somebody is tripped up, well, that's another story! The city fathers snort, and send peremptory instructions to the city solicitor. Resist! Dust off your books and get cracking! The camel's back is creaking dangerously!

And so the trespassing roots at last find themselve sunder the careful scrutiny of the Court of Appeal. Authorities are reviewed, distinctions are refined and spun out to spider-web thinness. Beneath the icy calm of this legal and judicial strong forces are at work, the irate and injured citizen and the stubbornly turning municipal worm. The strain becomes intolerable: even the reporters, toughened by years in the police court, can feel it. When judgment comes, even the irate citizen, who loses, is relieved.

So! Citizens, beware! make sure there are no roots under that paving stone before you trip on it.

LONDON LETTER — By WALLACE REYBURN

Their Business, Marriage

LONDON—Heather Jenner, who is the wife of Stephen (Gamesmanship) Potter, lives along the road from us and has something very much in common with us, i.e., a youngster the same age as Scott. So invariably when we bump into her on the street my wife and Heather compare notes as to the progress of our respective offspring.

But I interrupted one of these feminine chinwages to ask Heather: "How's business?" And I learned that people in her line are up in arms about a new development that has cropped up.

★ ★ ★

Her line: apart from being a housewife and mother, she runs a marriage bureau, probably the biggest in the country. She wrote a book about it called Marriage Is My Business.

Reyburn

What is annoying the marriage bureau people is that a new one has started, dealing in cut-price marriages. Usual fee for these places is about $50. This new bureau will find a bride for $8 and a husband for $5.50. And who's behind it? None other than the Roman Catholic Church.

The Catholic Introductions Bureau was set up because of what was regarded as an alarming drift away from the church. At present one of every three Roman Catholics who marry does so outside the faith and the proportion is rising. What makes matters worse, from the Roman Catholic point of view, is that it is calculated that half the children and all of the grandchildren of these mixed marriages are lost to the church.

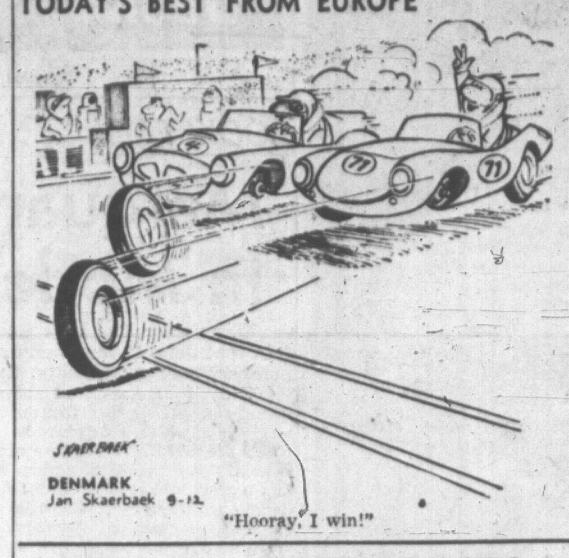

So, unobtrusively, the Catholic Introductions Bureau is trying to stem this drift by arranging all-Catholic marriages. Discreet notices in parish magazines and on church notice boards bring in an average of 30 replies a week.

★ ★ ★

Just on 500 of these have found partners and at present there are 1,000 on the books, waiting. Highest proportion (70 per cent) of those are middle-aged women, seeking husbands from the professional classes.

All very well, says the established marriage bureaux, for the Roman Catholic Church to do something constructive about halting the trend towards mixed marriages, but doing it at cut-rate terms that amount to a non-profit basis constitutes unfair business methods.

Civil Defence

SIDNEY REVIEW — Civil defence officer G. M. Owen would be among the first to bow to the motto of the Boy Scouts: "Be Prepared." Since he assumed the reins a year or so ago he has devoted hundreds of hours to the development of the organizations in Sidney and North Saanich.

There is no beauty in civil defence; there is no glory and there is no reward. All that a resident can gain from the work is the knowledge that if anything should develop, internationally or at home, he will be trained and ready to take his place in the community, ready to serve his fellows.

If we are critical of civil defence as a basic measure of protection we are showing ourselves to be insufferably pompous. It has the full support of local councils, the provincial government, the dominion government and of governments of almost every country in the western world. Is it possible that a few of us can be so much better informed?

Wheeled Drinkers

COWICHAN LEADER— The ends of justice are not being served in every fatal car crash. Where there is evidence of misbehavior on the part of the occupants of cars involved in death crashes, the suspension of drivers' licences should become automatic. The period of suspension should depend on the court's discretion.

One recent case in this area in which two men died has caused considerable comment. There were two survivors. One was charged. He was acquitted because there was no proof that he was the driver. Under the circumstances as adduced by evidence, it would seem that both survivors were a menace on the road, quite apart from who was driving.

It is not expected that accused persons shall incriminate themselves. This is taken for granted. The courts, then, should prefer charges against all survivors, children excluded, as part of society's plan to clean our roads from the menace of wheeled drinking parties.

Russians Swap Oil for Cacao

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The government oil monopoly (Petrobas) said Friday Russian oil meets technical requirements of Brazilian refineries, thus bringing one step closer a $5,000,000 offer to exchange 200,000 tons of oil for an equivalent amount of cacao.

Body of City Man Identified by Teeth

Examination of teeth taken from a body found Monday beside a deserted Mississippi road has established the death of 22-year-old Michael Love of Victoria.

Jackson, Miss., police sent the teeth to police here. The examination was made by a Victoria dentist.

Michael Love, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Love, 1316 Point, left here a month ago to tour the western U.S. in his car.

A body answering Love's description and carrying papers which seemed to identify it as that of the Victoria missing man, was found 15 miles north of Jackson.

Although a .22 calibre bullet hole was found in the skull, it is not established how Love died.

Investigation into the death is continuing.

The Day YOU Were Born

Linda Gilham, 3277 Glasgow Ave., is a clerk-typist in the Vaults. The Vault, of course, is the Vital Statistics branch of the B.C. government.

Linda

Linda graduated from Mt. View only this June and has been a wage-earner for two months.

She is celebrating her birthday this evening by being hostess to her Young People's group of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at her home.

On the day she was born:

One hundred and thirty Nazi planes were shot out of English skies at the cost of only 34 British fighters. During the afternoon a great air battle could be seen by Londoners. At least 100 planes filled the sky in a giant dog-fight. Three grand-scale assaults of London had been attempted during the day, but only a few bombers penetrated the outer defences.

An invasion of England was still expected and the lengthening nights made Britons hopeful of early winter storms which would put off Hitler's invasion attempt.

Survivors of the torpedoed "City of Benares" were rescued after days in an open boat. The 45 aboard the lifeboat included six young evacuees. Food each day had been half a biscuit each and sometimes a piece of sardine with it.

Alfred Hitchcock's "thrill spectacle of the year," "Foreign Corespondent," was playing at the Capitol.

U.S. Far East Policies Criticized by Pearson

VANCOUVER (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson has suggested that the people of Formosa be given a chance to decide the island's future and that an East-West conference be called on the Far East.

He told the Vancouver Chamber of Commerce in a luncheon address Friday that Canada should immediately put forth these ideas in talks with its allies.

If the Communist Chinese would consider detaching the Formosa question from the question of the offshore islands, "one of the main objections to recognition (of the Peiping regime) would be removed."

Recognition should then be followed up by Western support of the Communists' application for membership in the United Nations.

The former external affairs minister and winner of the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize made it clear he was not in sympathy with those of either extreme in the present dispute.

"I would not, myself, be a party to turning Formosa over to Peiping unless Formosans wish to take that course," he said.

But Canada should emphasize to the United States that it has no obligation to help defend the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu, which the mainland Communists have been bombarding.

"This is essentially a Chinese civil war situation."

He rejected Secretary of State Dulles' contention that the situation is comparable to the Berlin blockade and to Munich. In Berlin, the Western Allies had rights as the result of a war agreement. At Munich there was the question of either backing up or abandoning an independent country to Nazi aggression.

He added:

"I would put Formosa under a special UN regime until the people might decide their future, and a far eastern conference could be held. I think that this possibility should be discussed now with the U.S.A., the U.K. and our friends . . .

"Then, I think, we should ascertain whether the Communists would consider the Formosan problem as a separate question. "If so, one of the main objections to recognition would be removed."

Canada and the United States already recognized the "fact" of Communist control of the mainland. The U.S. was doing so by engaging in diplomatic discussions with representatives of the Peiping regime in Warsaw.

Tory Vision 'Dulled' Says Liberal Leader

VANCOUVER (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson said Friday night some of the lustre has gone out of the Progressive-Conservative vision of a greater Canada.

"A lot of the rosy predictions do not look so rosy in the light of present realities," he said in an address to the B.C. Liberal Association.

"A lot of the vision has to be scrutinized in the light of the situation as we find it today."

Mr. Pearson attacked the government on employment, respect for the rights of Parliament, trade and fiscal policies in his address, which marked the start of a cross-country Liberal reorganization tour.

He said the Liberals were labelled "prophets of doom" when, early in the last session of parliament, they raised the possibility that unemployment might be as bad this winter as last winter.

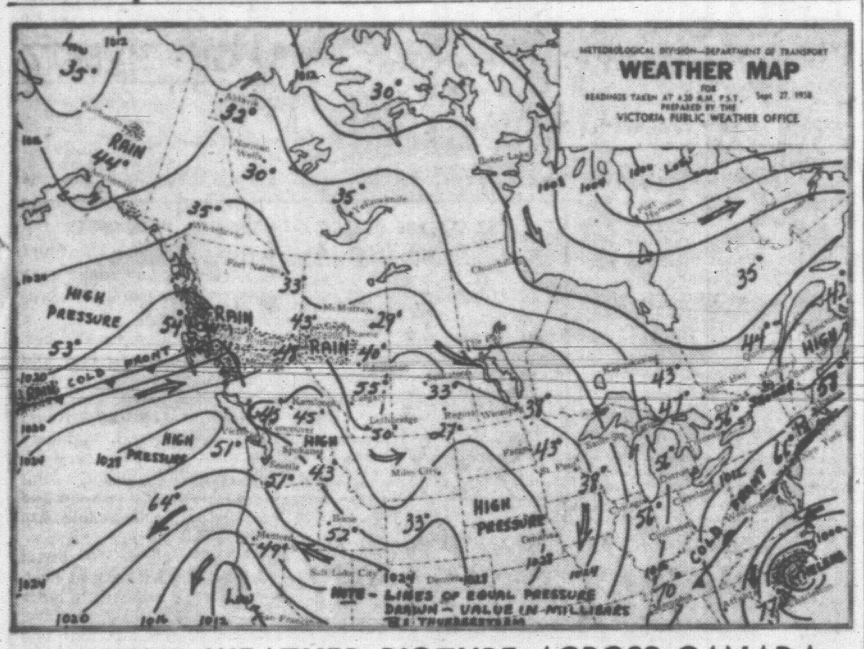

Yet this week Labor Minister Starr had admitted that the possibility existed.

The Conservative campaign pledge to spend $1,000,000,000 on public works to help fight the recession "was one of the phoniest promises ever made in Canadian political history."

In reality, the promised expenditures comprised only the normal allocations for public works Mr. Pearson said.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Early Cultures of Peruvian Andes Vie With Those of Ancient World

We are all of us indebted, once or twice in our lives, to the thoughtful person who introduces us to a book which thrusts us forward into realms of unbounded delight.

I have always felt a particular debt of gratitude to the British ornithologist, Dr. F. Fraser Darling, who presented me with a copy of Archibald MacLeish's poem, "Conquistador." Published in 1932 and awarded the Pulitzer prize for that year, this fine, narrative poem in terza rima tells the exciting tale of the conquest of Mexico, and is based on the Spanish expedition to Mexico led by Hernando Cortes. One of the truly great narrative poems of this century.

Williamson

Parallel with this stirring adventure is the epic conquest of Peru by Francisco Pizarro — first holder of the title el Conquistador.

Certainly MacLeish's poem was my first contact with the colorful world of Central and South America; a world of dynamic Indian achievement both culturally and from the viewpoint of highly developed civilization. The pre-Inca nations were not only originators of quite remarkable governmental and social organizations, they were highly advanced in the arts.

Never Submerged

Several years after first reading this poem I was fortunate enough to visit Mexico and see for myself Aztec culture which has never been totally submerged by our more modern concepts of art and architecture.

My only regret was that I was unable to go south to Peru to study the pre-Inca and Inca Empire; so magnificent an empire that it almost totally dwarfs our imagination, so large and far flung was its influence.

This empire, with a population calculated at 15 millions occupied a great portion of modern Colombia, Chile, Argentine, and all of modern Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia.

Thus it was with especial pleasure that I received last week, through the post and quite unexpectedly, a copy of the "Art of Peru," forwarded to me with the compliments of the Embassy of Peru, Ottawa.

An Introduction

This book, which I notice was published in 1955, is the illustrated catalogue to an exhibition designed to introduce the people of Canada to the arts of Peru, but whether this exhibition did in fact take place, or whether it is at present touring this country, I am unable to say.

Not that it really matters, for the purpose of this article is to remind students of the arts that while it is essential to know something of Egyptian, Greek and Roman art, it is equally important that early cultures of the Western hemisphere should not be ignored. It is a study which probably will have to be made "out of school."

I remember reading somewhere a warning against the danger of confusing art with archaeology, and that an antiquarian turn of mind makes a person treat an object as a work of art because of its historical rather than aesthetic values.

Divisible Art

Fortunately Peruvian art is readily divisible between purely archeological values and those wider, partly intangible qualities true of all genuine folk art.

Those who have studied art history will be familiar with the splendid clay vessels in the form of human heads; single and double spout jars of the Chanka and Muchik cultures of the fourth and fifth centuries AD.

But of modern Peruvian art, dating from the 16th century to the present, there is an understandable ignorance.

Looking in from the outside, as it were, there is a feeling of closed shop. Attempts to overthrow Spanish or other European influences are of minor importance. At times the paintings seem no more than missionary, Romanish attempts to douse the Inca cults.

Reading the various and scholarly texts which accompany the many illustrations in this informative book, one is left with the impression that contemporary painters in Peru have had their greatest struggle in overcoming 19th century academism which flourished as strongly in Peru as it did in Spain. With the exception of Francisco Laso and Pancho Fierro, the 19th century makes bleak watching.

The compilation of this catalogue and assembly of the works for exhibition was undertaken by Mr. Oscar H. Alcazar of the Lima newspaper "La Cronica." I only wish I had seen the works mentioned.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Marquand Back in Groove In Modern Problem Novel

Ever since The Late George Apley I have been certain that John P. Marquand is one of the best novelists of manners ever produced on this side of the Atlantic.

Witty, urbane, satirical and sometimes quite wise, Mr. Marquand's keen eye for the meaningful detail and trivia which comprises so much of any man's life and his careful use of same to make a point about modern human behaviour set him almost in a class by himself. And in addition to all these most desirable and diverting qualities as a writer, he seemed to have so much zest for his job as well as so much technical competence and conscience.

SCOTT

This went on for some time. I found the same qualities in Wickford Point, in H. M. Pulham Esq. and in So Little Time and, then, as so often happens to writers, Mr. Marquand seemed to be slackening off.

The same technique was there, but somehow the zest was gone and so was the sharp edge of the satire. Some novels like B.F.'s Daughter, Melville Goodwin, U.S.A., and Sincerely, Willis Wayde, were pretty shoddy, judged by the old standards.

Yet, for some reason I never have quite given up hope for John P. Marquand. Even last winter when he permitted another of the Mr. Moto series to appear (and both Mr. Marquand and I have always hated Mr. Moto) I was not completely disenchanted.

It is nice, now, to be able to say that the confidence was justified. I have just laid down Women and Thomas Harrow, Mr. Marquand's thirteenth serious novel (not counting any of the odious Mr. Moto) and it has been as pleasant a reading experience as I have had thus far this fall.

To me, at any rate, Mr. Marquand is back in the groove. For one thing, his hero is again living in Clyde, the mythical New England town which spawned many of the most convincing Marquand characters. But more than that, Thomas Harrow is the type of modern man, facing the type of modern dilemma, which makes some of the best fiction of our age.

He has the glamour of the theatre because he is a most successful playwright and at the same time he gives the author a reason to say some very penetrating things about the creative process involved in any kind of writing.

Harrow is woman-ridden, a dilemma which is supposed to be one of the most serious for twentieth-century North Americans. His aunt who brought him up gave him a New England conscience; from here has had three wives, still in love with number one, well rid of number two and chained to number three. (I am told this is about average for the Connecticut set).

He is also a man trying to be creative in a society which places number one value on money and what it can buy. He has made certain uneasy compromises with his art to be financially successful. Then there is his faithful secretary—a most important counter in modern America where a good one becomes the mother image—and his son, Hal, whose presence reminds him of the old-fashioned values of home and filial duty.

All together these ingredients make up the problem of almost any modern successful man. From the point of view of the reader, these elements spell very diverting fare.

If the reader is not successful, he will still savor the lavish background Mr. Marquand can paint so vividly and will even wish he were rich so he too could face Harrow's problems. If the reader is successful in the monetary sense, then he knows right well exactly what Mr. Marquand is talking about.

This is excellent writing which very competently faces a modern problem and strikes a realistic—if not too definitive—solution. I think this will be way up on the popular lists for the season—and it deserves it.

Priceless Cylinders of 1880's May Be Hiding in Some Garret

By HUMPHRY DAVY

I read the other day an interesting story of the world's first disc jockey who assembled a priceless collection of records.

He was Col. George Edward Gourand, a wealthy U.S. cavalryman who settled in England after the American civil war. In 1888, the colonel, a friend of Thomas Edison, introduced into his adopted country the first phonograph and started a record making business.

He invited many celebrities to his home to be recorded on wax cylinders. These included Florence Nightingale, Joseph Pulitzer, H. M. Stanley, the explorer, Alfred Lord Tennyson, poet laureate, Sir Henry Irving, King Edward VII and hundreds of other great statesmen and artists.

Davy

Then came a day when Gourand got tired of his business, stored his records in the attic, and went back to his favorite sport of horseback-riding. The records were completely forgotten until the thirties when family friends remembered the collection.

But it was too late. When they unpacked the records, they found that time and neglect had shrunk all but a few of the wax cylinders.

Record companies believe that some of Gourand's records still exist. Anyone who finds one in good condition, can be certain of ready buyers in England and the United States. Who knows we may yet hear the voice of William Gladstone, the great Victorian statesman.

Talking about new records, Columbia Masterworks (ML-5289) has released a fine album featuring three popular musical compositions. They are Prokofiev's Classical Symphony, Weinberger's Schwanda-Polka and Fugue, and Bizet's symphony in C. Major.

Performance is by the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy, conducting.

* * *

You can't go wrong either with Columbia's release of Mozart's concertos No. 20 and 18 for piano and orchestra, with Robert Casadesus as guest soloist.

The two concertos are performed by Columbia Symphony Orchestra with George Szell, conducting. Sound is excellent.

TOMORROW'S TOP TUNES

Another regular tenant, Pat Boone, will be back on the list shortly. His "Gee, But It's Lonely" is a soft, easy ballad. The way Pat caresses the lyrics to a simple guitar accompaniment makes this one of his best. (Dot).

* * *

There is little doubt that Joni James' latest release, "There Goes My Heart," is a hit. The tune is a pleasant ballad with warm lyrics. Joni's husband, Aquiviva, weaves a lush violin-and-chorus arrangement around her singing. It's got all the ingredients to make it a million-seller. (MGM).

Patti Page's latest sure thing is a cute number titled "Fibbin'." Sassy whistling, and Patti singing with herself, are just two of the ear-arresting gimmicks. The tempo is bright, and contagious for dancers. (Mercury).

* * *

Good old Domenico Modugno of "Nel Blu . . ." fame looks as if he has his second hit. Turning to French, the new entry is titled "Le Petit Reveil" (Little Clock). This versatile entertainer also wrote the number. There's no sense trying to decipher the lyrics; they are lost in the cute, syncopated vocal effects. (Jubilee).

Wandering Lion

SEPTEMBER ROSES, by Andre Maurois (Harper): Guillaume was close to 60, a French literary lion on tour in South America. Lolita of Lima was gay, vivid, half his age, and they had two weeks together in Peru and Colombia.

Back home in Paris, wife Pauline was recovering from prostration over Guillaume's last previous flirtation. When Pauline began to praise Lolita's charm, intelligence, virtue—Guillaume was astonished.

But the reader—who knows all—will chuckle with sympathetic understanding.

Algerian 'Sagan'

THE MISCHIEF, by Pisia Djebar (Simon and Schuster): A short novel in the Francoise Sagan tradition—about a young bored girl who has nothing better to do than get involved in the lives and loves of her friends.

The setting for this one is Algiers, where the author was born. Nadia is the girl. Her friends are Jedla and her husband Ali. Nadia makes a play for Ali, not realizing that she is being used as a pawn by Jedla.

Then there is Hussein who finally wins Nadia—to all intents and purposes.

The story furnishes an interesting look into the wilful, misdirected, passionate mind of a 20-year-old girl—just the age the author was when she wrote the book in 1956.

Use of a Chivalric Code For Destruction of Morale

THE KNIGHTS OF BUSHIDO, by Lord Russell of Liverpool (Dutton): A documentation of Japanese atrocities already publicized especially through the 1946-48 war crimes trials in Tokyo. It follows Russell's similar work, "The Knights of Vehmgerichte," dealing with Nazi war crimes.

The author lists flagrant examples of Japanese atrocities but does not attempt to record each one committed.

Twenty-seven per cent of the prisoners taken by the Japanese died in captivity, he states, as compared with 4 per cent of the Britons and Americans who died as prisoners of the Germans and Italians.

It should be noted that 58 per cent of the U.N. prisoners in the Korean war died in Communist hands.

In Japan's defense it must be said that the majority of Japanese citizens knew little or nothing of the atrocities. But the point is made that the Japanese government knew of them and neither could not stop them or quietly condoned them.

Bushido was the moral code of chivalry in feudal Japan, but the military used it for its own ends.

THE SOUNDING BOARD

Amateur Actors Shirk Duty Toward Cash Customers

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

"If," said the great director, fixing the aspiring young actor with a paralyzing glare, "you can't breathe without keeping everyone waiting, don't breathe at all!"

Was he trying to tell the actor in a roundabout way to "drop dead"? Not really, although at this point he probably would have heaved a sigh of relief if the actor had done just that.

Audrey

Rehearsals had reached a point where the cast of serious theatre students were more or less line-perfect and should have been polishing up tempo.

But the young actor whose aspiration was rapidly dissolving in perspiration, had put the brakes on everyone else.

Each time he saw a cue coming he stalled on the line and by the time he had used his vocal starter and got under way, the play had come to a grinding halt and pace had gone to the dogs.

DELAYED ACTION

Or in plain words, he never got around to lifting his diaphragm and inflating his lungs —essential to the projection of stage speech — until after the final cue words had been spoken.

So that there was "a gap you could whistle through," as the great director said, between the end of the last actor's speech and the beginning of the young man's. Not once or twice, but every time.

And if you don't know how that sort of thing can wreck the dramatic and comedy values of a stage production—well I just hope you don't fancy yourself as a director or actor, that's all.

About this business of pace on the stage. Most people recognize it even if they don't understand it—what it is, how and why. When pace is non-existent, as it is in so many amateur productions, audience members will comment that it is slow.

AMATEUR BADGE

When proper pace is present the word "professional" is on everybody's lips. So it is that lack of pace or slow tempo has come to be the too-easily excused badge of the amateur show.

Quite unnecessarily. Any amateur show, even though it boasts no explosive talent either in the director's chair or behind the footlights can be "professional" in the sense that it has pace.

All that is necessary is for the actors and the directors—to make themselves acquainted with three basic essentials of pace and put them to work.

The essentials? Concentration, alertness, projection, in that order.

AVOIDS LAPSES

Obviously concentration, not solely on his own part, but on the entire action of the play the whole time he is on stage and for full minutes off stage before each entry, will do away with much of the mechanical line memorization that results in memory lapses.

Alterness means the actor's preparation BEFORE his cue and consequent smooth pick-up of the dialogue flow with no noticeable gap.

Projection, of the three essentials, is the most difficult one to master, for it encompasses not only clarity and vitality of speech but vitality of the whole mind and body as well.

Too much to ask of the amateur? Because after all, he's only in it for the fun he gets out of it—he doesn't want to work at it, study it, turn it into a serious business?

All right. But it's serious business isn't it, when it comes down to hiring halls, printing programs, selling advertising and tickets?

And if the amateur wants to get away with putting the least possible effort into his entertainment skill and getting the most he can in real honest cash in return — well, I think THAT'S too much to ask of audiences!

O'CASEY PLAY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Irish playwright Sean O'Casey has reason to believe things are looking up for him in New York. It was 17 years before his "Purple Dust" received a local hearing. But his "Cock-a-Doodle Dandy" has been announced for a Nov. 12 premiere only 10 years after it was first made available. It will get an off-Broadway production.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) A (Don't Miss) B½ (Worthwhile) B (For Rainy Days) C (To put in time)

(A) "THE MATCHMAKER" (Royal) — "Money," confides widow-on-the-make Shirley Booth to her audience, "is like manure. It works best when it is spread thinly around where it will do the most good."

Such is a sampling of dialogue from Paramount's adaptation of Thornton Wilder's 1956 play, "The Matchmaker," a thoroughly entertaining and chucklesome bit of goods exploited to the full by a team of top-flight actors including Oscar - winning ("Come Back Little Sheba") Shirley Booth, Anthony Perkins, Shirley MacLaine and Paul Ford, better known as Sgt. Bilko's harrassed commanding officer on TV.

In all fairness to the masses, however, it should be pointed out that "The Matchmaker" is designed for the discriminating motion picture fan. It is talky, slow of pace and theatrical to a point where the principals think nothing of halting the play long enough for confidential asides to the audience.

★ ★ ★

HOWEVER, it is that "difference" that makes "The Matchmaker" the endearing piece it is. Miss Booth again proves her versatility as the pre-turn-of-the-century widow who would snare Ford, the richest man in Yonkers, as her second husband.

This is easier said than done, widow Booth soon discovers. Ford is a penny-pincher, a Scrooge, a man who cares no more for a nickel than he does for his good right arm. What's more he's interested in young women, young as Shirley MacLaine is young. "Oh, for the good old days," he moans, "when you traded a couple of cows for a woman." At another time: "Marriage is making a woman believe she's a homeowner instead of a homemaker."

Meanwhile, handsome young Perkins, Ford's underpaid, overworked chief clerk, looks for romance and adventure in the big city. In his search he bumps into Miss MacLaine and, therefore, soon finds himself in competition with his heartless boss.

The comedy now and then leaves the world of the bon mot for the broader world of slapstick, looking more like "Charlie's Aunt" than "Our Town." Nonetheless, the combination of the two worlds is a happy, even merry one. And like most of Wilder's pennings there is plenty of thought to be mined from the ore of improbability.

But, as in all mining, the precious stuff has to be discovered before it can be mined.

SCHOLARSHIP OF $400 has been awarded to well-known Victoria soprano, Marlene Vance, by the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, according to news received today. Miss Vance has been in Toronto for a year, teaching school and continuing her vocal studies at the Conservatory, where she will embark on her artists and licentiate diploma course this fall. Miss Vance was a multi-award winner at the 1957 Victoria Music Festival, taking most major classes and the B.C. Electric Rose Bowl. In Toronto she is studying with George Lambert. Mrs. Mary Wood was her Victoria teacher.

Average Success For Canadian Play

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The all-Canada play "Noon Has No Shadows" closes Sunday after a five-week run.

"I guess it was average success," producer John Steele, former Toronto photographer, said Friday. "I didn't expect to make much money, and I didn't make any."

The play, written by his wife Patricia Joudry, was first presented on radio and television in Canada in 1953 as "Teach Me How to Cry." Universal International Films is bringing it out under the title, "The Wonderful Years."

Steele produced it in the 326-seat Theatre Arts Club here with an all-Canadian cast. Its five-week run was a week longer than plays usually last in the club but Steele said he would need a capacity audience every night to make a profit.

"We have been getting good crowds, but they have been running a bit below capacity," There are no plans to transfer the play to a larger London theatre.

Steele said he thought the cast, most of whom live here, will have little difficulty getting new roles.

Miss Joudry, author of the prairie love story, was born at Spirit River, Alta., but grew up in Montreal. She has written a new comedy, "The Sand Castle," which her husband is trying to get staged in one of the big West End theatres.

Julie Plans Daring Tour

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stage star Julie Harris is undertaking a project that is daring in these days of curtailed touring of plays, even those that are proven successes on Broadway. She plans to spend the entire season on the road in a new drama called "The Warm Peninsula." New York will not see it until the fall of 1959. Opening date for the Joe Masteroff play is Oct. 29 in Wilmington, Del.

Follow rule illustrated, above, when installing batts of insulation, if you'd have insulation work most efficiently.

Insulating Materials Create a Snug Home

By MR. FIX

Ideally, a home should be fully insulated when built or remodelled. But there may be parts of your home not insulated, or which need additional insulation.

Decide first where you need additional insulation; second, what sort of insulation would work best in each spot.

Since warm air rises, most heat loss is through the attic. And in summer this is also the spot in which heat builds up quickly because of the sun's rays beating directly on the roof.

Walls vary in their need for insulation. Those most exposed to the weather need the most protection. Chances are, in winter the north wall is the coldest. In summer, the south wall most needs protection from the sun's rays.

Floors in basementless homes should be insulated. So should floors of rooms built out over the top of a porch or attached garage.

When you shop for insulation, you'll find these four basic types available:

Fill insulation is sold as bagsful of loose material, and is the least expensive type. It is suitable for pouring between joists in an unfinished attic. Used in that fashion, it should be spread from two to four inches deep.

Loose insulation is used, too, to fill between walls of older homes. This requires installation by use of a blower, and professionals only should handle the job. It's no task for the handyman.

Batt, or blanket, insulation is loose insulation packed between sheets of specially treated paper. Batts are short strips, blankets are the same material made in rolls up to 100 feet in length.

Thicknesses vary from one to four inches; widths from 16 to 24 inches.

Material is installed between studding or joists, and is nailed or stapled in place.

Insulation board is a thick wallboard which serves as both insulation and a wall-finishing material. It's often used in attics, sometimes in addition to batt-type insulation.

Reflective insulation is metal foil, usually aluminum, which insulates by reflecting heat. It is ideal for keeping out summer heat. It is often used in combination with other insulations to serve as a vapor barrier.

Most insulating materials contain rock wool, mineral wool, glass fibers, vegetables fibers or vermiculite.

Make certain that the insulation you purchase is both fire-resistant and vermin-proof.

Vegetable fibers do not have those qualities unless specially treated.

Prince George Denied Gas Appeal

The city of Prince George has been refused leave to appeal from a decision of the Public Utilities Commission granting to Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. a certificate for construction of a natural gas system in the city.

Mr. Justice Sheppard ruled that the city had not shown grounds for granting of leave and that no grounds had been demonstrated on which there is a reasonable expectation of an appeal succeeding.

He stated that the Court of Appeal had previously referred back to the commission for reconsideration an application from the Prince George Gas Co. Ltd. This application was later withdrawn before the commission, which then granted a certificate to the Inland Company.

Mr. Justice Sheppard said the city had appealed to the provincial cabinet and had also sought to appeal to the Court of Appeal.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Commence new plantings of conifers, deciduous trees, shrubs and heathers, and continue the planting of perennial flowering plants.

Sweet peas for next year may be sown now in a prepared trench. Choose a south or east exposure.

Sow hardy annuals outdoors in prepared, weed-free soil — alyssum, calendula (Scotch or pot marigold), clarkia, godetia, larkspur, centaurea (bachelors-button or cornflower), viscaria, nigella.

Dig dahlias as soon as frost spoils flowers and foliage.

Commence potting of suitable varieties of tulips and narcissi for indoor winter flowers.

Potted azaleas indoors like their leaves springed with tepid water.

July sowings of vegetables should be used constantly as they attain usable size. Beets and turnips become woody if left too long in the ground.

Parsnips and leeks should remain in the ground for use later in winter. Frost improves quality and flavor.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Ant Activities in Garden Cause 'Mystery' Damage

By JACK BEASTALL

There are many different kinds of ants, all social insects living in colonies and possessing remarkable intelligence. Of all the insects we encounter in the garden, the customs of the ants are most like those of human beings.

Tiny as they are, they build cities in which thousands can live, lay out and build roads and are experts at tunnelling and they store their food in granaries. Woods ants use pine needles as boards and rafters when they construct their dwellings, which are often several feet high and across.

Jack

On the great plains of Australia are large mounds of mud which serve as cities for millions of ants.

There are many lessons we could learn from the tenacious, determined and industrious ant. They are the busiest little creatures—but never too busy to attend a picnic!

While a book on ants makes fascinating reading by the winter fireside, ants in the garden always lead to trouble.

Not only is their presence a nuisance, their cities are a maze of tunnels which spread in all directions, undermining the roots of plants and causing symptoms in the upper growth which are sometimes difficult to classify.

The most insidious of their human-like activities is the collection of herds of aphides from which they extract a sweet substance called honeydew, in much the same way as we keep herds of cows for supplying milk.

CHOICE PASTURE

Either eggs or the full-grown wingless aphids are collected, and they are maintained on such as our garden beans.

With all the care bestowed on a dairy herd by humans, the ants maintain their aphid herds, seeing that they are pastured, protected from enemies, and regularly "milked."

When the pasture fails, such as the host plants becoming too mature for feeding, the entire aphid herd is transported to a new feeding ground, thus spreading virus diseases and crippling the young growths in another part of the garden.

Virus diseases in plants are recognized by a yellowish-green striping in the foliage and color breaking in the flowers, and the incidence is increasing at an alarming rate in cultivated plants.

CARRY VIRUS

Our present knowledge of virus diseases is pitifully small, but the fact has been established that aphids which pierce the plant tissue to obtain their food, are responsible for transmitting a virus from infected to healthy plants.

Our first point of attack on the aphid population is the ant hills in which they are harbored and protected. Destruction of an ant colony will rid the garden of thousands of aphids.

During the warm fall days as the plants are dying down we are better able to spot the ant hills and treat them.

The old kettle-of-boiling-water method is still in use, although not as effective nor as rapid in action as a spray dilution of chlordane or dieldrin, either of which may be poured over the hills in fairly large quantities and sprayed over ant highways and byways. Watch carefully for nurse ants scampering away with eggs when the hills are being treated.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—Can you suggest any quick way to paint a wire fence?—J.K.

A—Easiest way we've found is to use a well-napped paint roller. Use brush at hard-to-get-at under-surfaces near posts.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q—(1) Please advise treatment for brown spots in lawn which also has moss in it. Something almost like smoke arises from the holes when we pull a few blades of grass.

(2) What causes mildew on Michaelmas daisy foliage and what is the treatment? Mrs. E. E., Fairfield.

A—(1) As in "Quizzing the Gardener" of Saturday, Sept. 6, we advise you to obtain, free of charge, "Lawns, Planting and Maintenance," Mimeo 153, Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton, B.C.

The apparent "smoke" arising from the holes is characteristic of fungus spores when disturbed.

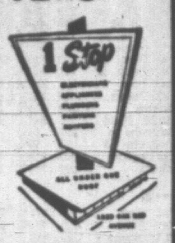

(2) Mildew on Michaelmas daisies (perennial asters), phlox and some other plants has been found to be more prevalent on these subjects during a period of rainy, cool weather immediately following an extremely dry period. A dusting of flowers of sulphur, or a copper fungicide spray, will help control the condition. The plants will grow out of the mildew, and the roots will not be affected by a light attack.

Pro Football Starts Sunday

Rams, Browns Clash In Season Opener 1.30

Time Change Alters Schedules; World Series History Traced

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

The big news this weekend is that we'll all be able to sleep in an hour longer Sunday morning and still get up at the same time we did last Sunday under Daylight Saving.

Other than the return to Pacific Standard Time there is little news in the way of new programs.

Football fans will be happy to learn that the U.S. pro season gets under way in earnest Sunday afternoon at 1.30 when the Los Angeles Rams take on the Cleveland Browns as carried on Channels 7 and 12.

At 4.15, also Sunday afternoon, Douglas Edwards starts his quarter-hour newscasts on Channels 7 and 12. At 6.30 Channel 7 will carry 20th Century's history of the World Series. And at 7 Channel 4 will bow with a return of the Noah Ark series.

Ernie Kovacs and Andy Griffith will do a series of vignettes for NBC radio's "Monitor" and "Nightline" — Doris Day and Jack Webb also are being wooed for the radio shows.

World Series, NHL, Rash of New Shows Highlight TV Week

Bing Crosby Special Wednesday; Gary Moore's New Show Tuesday

Everything seems to change this week, the time—from Daylight to Standard—and the bulk of the programs as well.

Viewers would be well advised to take neither the time nor the day for granted otherwise disappointment is almost certain.

To give you some idea of what is going on;

Eleven shows will return for new seasons, including Red Skelton, Jackie Gleason, Eddie Fisher and Ernie Ford.

In addition to these, nine new shows are due to roll, including crime series, adventures and westerns.

There will be no Wednesday night fight because of the hour-long Bing Crosby special show that gets under way at 10 on Channel 5. It will be seen also on Channels 6 and 2, commencing at 9.30.

Garry Moore starts his new hour-long variety show Tuesday night at 9 on Channels 7 and 12.

The Friday night fight will start at 6 instead of 7 owing to the eastern states remaining on Daylight Saving for another month.

Biggest news for sports fans, of course, is that the 1958 World Series between the New York Yankees and the Milwaukee Braves gets under way Wednesday morning at 10.45 on Channels 6, 2 and 4.

It should be remembered also that National League Hockey starts next Saturday afternoon at 5. Channels 6, 2. Later these games will be seen at 6 o'clock.

Starting at 8 Friday night, Channel 6 will hold another marathon Kiwanis Club auction. It will continue through Saturday night as well.

And, finally, at 10 p.m. Thursday, the Financial Post's J. B. McGeachy will interview seven of Canada's top businessmen in an effort to discover their key to success.

Once more, please read the schedules carefully and note the programs that appeal to you. Almost nothing is the same as last week. This, in short, is the beginning of the real TV year.

TEE OFF TO SOLVE A PROBLEM

You "tee off" in this figure golf by selecting five numbers in the form of the letter T, as indicated in the shaded numbers in the diagram. The T may be in any position—up, down, left, right—but must be similar in design to the shaded figure. Find the T with the highest total and the T with the lowest total. The difference between the two sums happens to be 10.

Par for the course is three. That is, three attempts are allowed for solving both minimum and high scores.

Solution: Highest: 8 2 9 / 5 / 4 3 3 Lowest:

IT'S A QUESTION OF MONEY

When the secretary who keeps the petty cash drawer in her office counted it in the morning, she found there were exactly twenty coins, all of them halves, quarters and dimes.

Realizing that she'd need some smaller coins, she had the office cashier change the dimes into pennies. Thinking about it later, she decided she'd also need some dimes. She changed her half-dollars into dimes. After this swap, the cashier reminded her she probably would need some half-dollars. So all her quarters were changed into half-dollars. She then had eighty-nine coins.

How many halves, how many quarters and how many dimes were in the cash box when the original number totalled twenty?

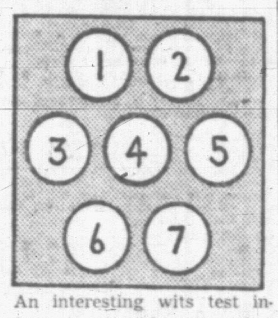

Answer: Seven halves, eight quarters five dimes.

WHERE AT 40?

Tom has travelled a bit. He has spent (in this order) a third of his life to date in the United States, a sixth of it in India, twelve years was he in Egypt, half the remainder of his time in Australia, and as long in Canada as he spent in India.

Where did he spend his fortieth birthday?

Answer: He spent his fortieth birthday in Egypt.

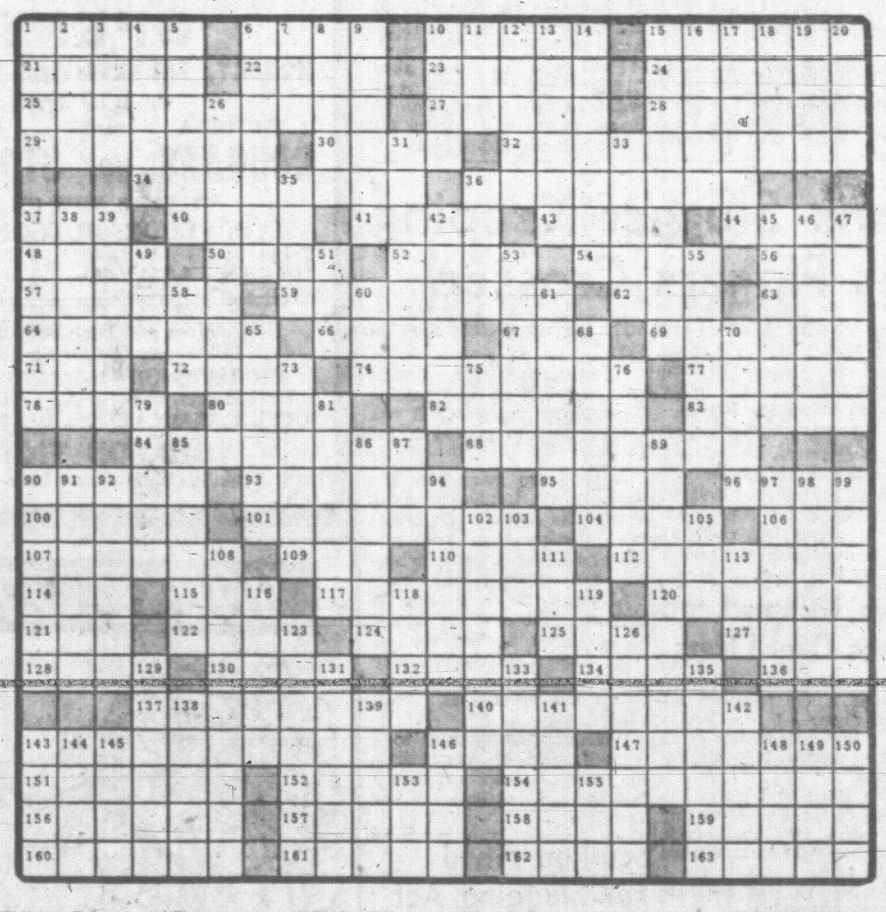

An interesting wits test involves the use of seven coins. The challenge is this: To arrange six coins touching with an open space inthe centre, so that the seventh will fit the centre space exactly and touch all the others. Remember, the rules say "exactly."

It is almost impossible to effect this arrangement by eye-judgment alone,but there is a trick way it can be done so that the seventh penny will fall into place without difficulty. Can you figure out what it is?

Solution: Arrange the six pennies in a pyramid. A single penny placed single top penny, place it under 4 and 5. so that it touches both. Gently move 4 and slide it from outside the shape until it cleanly closes the gap in the circle. The centre space will now be exactly right for dropping the 7th penny into position as required.

Drakes Clinch Fifth Title; Forward Passes Sink Navy

Drakes 33, Navy 15

By ERNIE FEDORUK

It may hurt to say no, but Navy tacticians can ruefully admit today that air support is still a very necessary part of any good attack.

The fleet's air arm had difficulty in finding the target Friday night and hopes for a naval victory were crushed into the turf of Royal Athletic Park.

Oak Bay Drakes' shock troops, masterminded by General Jack Patrick, turned back the Sailors 33-15 in what proved to be the best battle of this season's Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League campaign.

Oak Bay's fourth straight victory wrapped up first place for the Drakes for a fifth straight season.

The Sailors, spirited and willing, came up with a fine performance. The victorious Drakes were the first to admit the score was flattering.

The difference appeared to be the air support. Patrick completed eight of 16 passes for 147 yards. Each pass went for a long gain, as the 18.3 average bears out. And each time, the passes seemed to come at opportune moments — pulling Drakes out of deep holes or setting up scoring plays.

Coach Padre Ivan Edwards' Tars, in contrast, couldn't click for "the long gain." Quarterbacks Barry Burgess and Joe Hornesty connected for five passes out of 13 tried. The five passes, however, netted only 35 yards.

Navy Impressive Along Ground

Along the ground, the Sailors looked impressive. The brilliant, broken-field running of Bill Schick and the workhorse plunges of Cliff Uhren, Gerry Porter and big Dave Burih gave Navy a total of 18 first downs and a net gain of 202 yards.

The Drakes, knowing there was little danger through the air, contained Navy's attack when it counted.

End Pete Turko paced Drakes' scoring with a 15-point outing. The burly end booted two field goals and three converts and gathered in an eight-yard pass from Patrick for a touchdown.

Fullback Ken Higgs barrelled 19 yards for his ninth major of the season while Patrick and Cliff Moore also scored touchdowns for Oak Bay.

Burgess and Schick scored Navy's touchdowns. It was a 62-yard run by Schick that set up Sailors' first major by Burgess.

Porter converted the first major and Navy's other points came off a two-point safety touch after linebacker Josh Brown kicked and dribbled an Oak Bay fumble 39 yards down field into the end zone, where it was recovered by Drakes.

Casey Stengel's Half-Century In Baseball

By FRANK GRAHAM JR.

The wealthy California real estate man saw a picture of Charles Dillion Stengel. "That Casey has bow legs . . . just like Hans Wagner." Who could ask for a more favorable introduction?

Casey Stengel needs no introduction today. And the story of the New York Yankee manager, baseball's great clown and genius, continues. This is the seventh of a daily series by Frank Graham Jr. appearing in the Daily Times.

John McGraw's Giants won pennants in 1921 and 1922, defeating the Yankees both years in the World Series. Stengel, though he didn't play every day, became an even more consistent hitter than he had been in Brooklyn. His batting average, which had been .284 in 1921 when he divided the season between Philadelphia and New York, soared to .368 in the 84 games he played in 1922.

He came to bat only five times in the World Series that year (he had not played in the 1921 series) and got two hits for a .400 average.

Casey spent the winter of 1922-23 in California. When the day arrived on which he was to leave for the Giants' training camp, the wives of several of the players were at the station and with them was an attractive young lady named Edna Lawson. Casey was mightily impressed.

Casey

All summer he carried on a transcontinental courtship, using the long distance telephone and special delivery mail. His carefree days as a bachelor were rapidly running out.

★ ★ ★

Casey had a distinct advantage over the other suitors for Edna's hand. Her father, a wealthy Glendale, Calif., real estate man, had seen a picture of Casey in the paper and was immediately won over. "Dad noticed," Edna said, "that Casey had bow legs, just like his favorite player, Hans Wagner." Who could ask for a more favorable introduction to a future father-in-law?

★ ★ ★

There was still another pennant to be won and Casey was once more a handy utility player. He batted .339 in 75 games, and McGraw, counting on his skill and resourcefulness, put him in the regular lineup as the Giants again met the Yankees in the World Series.

It is ironic that Stengel was the Giant player who put up the most heroic individual battle as the Yankees moved in to take the series and begin their long domination of baseball. Stengel fired two mighty shots and then the Giants fell back. The Yankee victory in 1923 was the first of 17 world championship flags which were to fly over the mammoth stadium they had opened that spring.

Casey Almost Tripped at Second

The opener on October 10 was the first World Series game ever played at Yankee Stadium and a crowd of over 55,000 gave added incentive to the 33-year-old Casey. For eight innings the rivals battled on even terms. When the Giants came to bat in the top of the ninth, the score was tied, 4-4.

With Bullet Joe Bush pitching for the Yankees, Casey lined one of his fast balls far over the head of Bob Meusel in left-center field. The crowd came to its feet with a tremendous roar as the ball hit the ground and rolled toward the distant bleacher wall.

Casey rounded second base at high speed and was nearly overtaken by disaster. "I thought my shoe fell off," he said later. It was only the rubber cushion he used to protest a bone bruise which had popped out of the shoe. Winded and limping, he rounded third base and, after what seemed an eternity to him and to the roaring Giant fans, he staggered across the plate, seconds ahead of the throw, with the winning run. The Giants won the opening game, 5 to 4, opening game, 5 to 4.

★ ★ ★

The fanciful reports of this baseball Methuselah were duly noted 3,000 miles away. Edna Lawson having excitedly read of her fiance's heroics, took the newspaper to her father. He read them with interest and then put them down.

"Well, Pops," Edna asked, "what do you think of my Casey now?"

He flashed a look of pity at his daughter and shook his head. "I hope," he said, "that your Casey lives until the wedding."

★ ★ ★

The Giants lost the second game at the Polo Grounds and the two clubs went back across the Harlem River to Yankee Stadium with one victory apiece. For six innings the third game remained a scoreless tie as Arthur Nehf dueled Sam Jones of the Yankees.

Then, in the seventh inning, the god of aged ballplayers smiled once more on Stengel. Casey hammered a pitch into the right field bleachers for his second home run of the series.

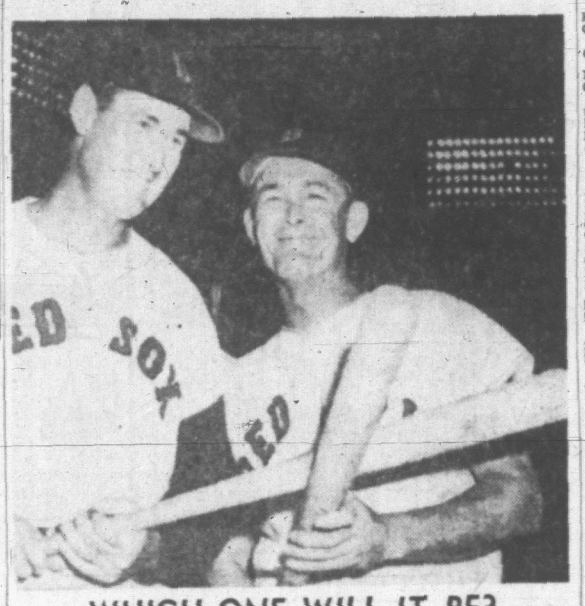

Nehf, pitching brilliantly, went on to shut out the Yankees that afternoon, 1 to 0. The Giant partisans were deliriously happy and Stengel was the toast of that portion of New York which still refused to concede that Babe Ruth and his teammates were anything more than bumptious upstarts.

Casey was not to know such glory again for more than a quarter of a century.

At the end of the third game, the Giants had spent their ammunition. They would not win another in the 1923 series. Led by the great Babe Ruth, the Yankees stormed back to win three straight games and clinch the series, 4-2. But they couldn't take those two victories from Stengel.

WHICH ONE WILL IT BE?

Deadlocked with Boston teammate Pete Runnels (right) after banging out two hits in three times at bat Friday, Red Sox slugger Ted Williams will be shooting for sixth American League batting crown in closing games of schedule this weekend. Both batters started today's game with averages of .3226. (NEA.)

Williams Ties Runnels; Ashburn Grabs NL Lead

By Associated Press

Two days to go and it's Ted Williams and Boston teammate Pete Runnels deadlocked for the American League batting lead at .3226.

Williams, shooting for his sixth title at 40, took the lead in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader at Washington Friday night. But when he sat out the nightcap, Runnels came scrapping back as the Red Sox took third place with a 6-4 and 3-1 sweep.

Elsewhere Whitey Ford gave up only one hit—Joe Taylor's inside-the-park homer in the first—retiring at the end of six innings as the Yankees lost 3-2 to Baltimore.

Cleveland defeated Detroit 5-4 and the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 1-0 on rookie Barry Latman's three-hitter in the other AL games.

Williams, who hasn't played two games in one day all year, walloped his 24th home run and a single in three at bats in the opener. Runnels was 2-for-5 in the nightcap.

Hoyt Wilhelm, the knuckleballer who no-hit the Yankees last weekend, gave up six hits and left with a 1-1 tie after nine innings at New York. Reliever Billy Loes (3-9) won it as the Orioles tagged Virgil Trucks (2-2) for two runs in the 12th.

RICHIE IN FRONT

In the torrid race for the National League batting title, Richie Ashburn moved back in front of Willie Mays, who was hitless against St. Louis Cardinals.

Ashburn collected two hits in four trips to the plate and scored the winning run as Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh's 22-game winner Bob Friend, 3-2; and gained a point for a .3449 average.

Mays slipped two points to .3441 as San Francisco beat the Cardinals, 4-3. Ashburn and Mays each has two games to play.

Lew Burdette became a 20-game winner for the first time in his final tuneup for the world series as the champion Milwaukee Braves beat Cincinnati 2-1.

Los Angeles and Chicago Cubs remained tied for sixth, splitting a twi-night pair. The Dodgers won, 6-3, then lost, 2-1.

Burdette, who has won 14 of 17 since the all-star game, gave up nine hits, but didn't walk a man and struck out nine. Braves won despite a four-hit job by Redleg rookie Jim O'Toole and veteran Hal Jeffcoat.

Happy News For Net Pro

LONDON (AP) — Doctors told Lew Hoad Friday he'll be in condition to swing his dollar-earning tennis racquet again in about five weeks.

"That's great news," the 23-year-old Australian said.

"At one time it looked as though I would be out of the game for four months. Now I'm going to remain in London for treatment and then return home to Australia."

Hoad, who has earned about $140,000 in the last two years, withdrew from a London professional tournament earlier this week because of arthritis.

Yank Slugger Keeping His Fingers Crossed

NEW YORK (AP) — A healthy Mickey Mantle is ready, willing and anxious to help New York Yankees try to get even with Milwaukee Braves.

"I feel better than I ever have going into a series," said the Yankee centre fielder who was handicapped last fall by shin splints and a sore shoulder. "It seems like there always is something the matter with me about this time of year."

Mickey had his fingers crossed when he was talking because the Yankees still had three games to play with the Orioles.

A year ago going into the series he was troubled by a leg injury and hadn't hit a home run in more than a month. Then he suffered a shoulder injury early in the third game.

Although he continued to play after the shoulder injury, and even hit a home run off Gene Conley, he couldn't play the fifth and sixth games. He did get into the fifth as a pinch runner.

When the series went to a seventh game, he was back in the line-up but finished with a .263 average and only the one home run.

Howe, Ullman Lead Wings Over Flyers

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Detroit Red Wings trounced Edmonton Flyers 6-1 here Friday night in the second game of an exhibition series between the two clubs.

Gordie Howe and Norm Ullman shared the Detroit scoring honors with two goals each. Dunc Fisher and Len Lunde had one tally each.

Gerry Melnyk was the lone Edmonton marksman.

Scullion Fined For Slugging Act

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two players in the Big Four and one in the Western Interprovincial Football Union have been fined $50 each for incurring match penalties, football commissioner Sydney Halter announced Friday.

P. W. Underwood of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and William Hudson of Montreal Alouettes, ejected from a Montreal-Hamilton game at Montreal Sept. 20, were the eastern players.

Art Scullion of Calgary Stampeders was fined for being bounced from a Winnipeg-Calgary game in Winnipeg Sept. 20 after he slugged Winnipeg end Ernie Pitts.

MORE ARSENAL PLAYERS ON BLOCK

Swindin Still Sweeping

LONDON (CP) — Arsenal Soccer Club has put seven of its players worth £38,000 up for sale in the biggest house-cleaning in the history of the First Division.

Four of the players have football league experience and one, centre half Jim Fotheringham, is a candidate for Scotland's International side against Wales Oct. 18. The other three are utility player Cliff Holton, 30, winger Mike Tiddy, 28, and goalie Con Sullivan, 26.

The move follows the transfer of four Arsenal players for £16,500 in the last three weeks — Derek Tapscott to Cardiff City, Freddie Jones and Ron Clayton to Brighton and Hove Albion and Ray Swallow to Derby County.

Manager George Swindin, who took over July 21, has already bought Scottish International Tommy Docherty and Irishman Billy McCullough and is making inquiries about other top-class players, including Mel Charles of Swansea and Wales.

Sceptre Flubs Final Chance

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—The lumpy old America's Cup will stay in its glass case in a room above the bar of the New York Yacht Club.

Any faint hopes that it would go to Britain sank Friday in the bubbling wake of the United States' cup defender Columbia.

The powerhouse American 12-metre yacht clinched the cup with her fourth straight victory over the British challenger Sceptre, which sailed almost half the race with a crippled rig, snapped in two in a freak accident when a spinnaker sheet got caught under it.

The British said the things they have been saying since 1851 after 17 fruitless attempts to wrench the cup free from the U.S.

"I quite frankly don't think we shall ever give up trying for the cup," said Hugh Goodson, a member of the syndicate that owns Sceptre. But he added that he wants time to think over whether his group from the Royal Yacht Squadron will challenge again.

"It's not something you answer in five minutes," he said.

There can be no challenge race for another two years by deed of gift of the cup.

Sceptre was never in the same class with Columbia and took one of the worst drubbings in the 107 years of cup history. Some observers said Sceptre's U-shaped bow as compared to the knife-edged American design was largely to blame.

SAME PATTERN

Friday's concluding race was cut from the same pattern as the others. Sailed in a southwest wind of 16 to 20 miles an hour, it saw Columbia outpoint and outsail Sceptre both into and away from the wind.

The series, the first since 1937, was the 14th shutout by U.S. yachts. The challengers have won only five times in 54 races.

FALSE START

If Sceptre had any hope of altering the course of things, she lost it in a false start.

Sceptre's helmsman, Lt.-Cmdr. Graham Mann of the Royal Navy, cleanly outmanoeuvred his rival, Briggs Cunningham, around the starting buoy Friday.

Mann forced Columbia out around the committee boat seconds before the starting gun and then took a hard running shot at the line. Sceptre was two boat lengths ahead of Columbia when she hit the line but she was two feet over the starting point. She had to be recalled for another start, while Columbia sailed on out to sea.

By the time Sceptre pointed her nose into the wind on the first eight-mile windward leg, she was trailing by several boat lengths.

IT WENT THATAWAY

Spinnaker of hapless Sceptre takes off on voyage of its own after rope slipped aboard British challenger for America's Cup Friday. Crewmen in bow rush to untangle lines. Sail was soon reefed back, but Sceptre lost fourth straight race to U.S. yacht Columbia. (AP Wirephoto.)

Dusty Records Yield Interest

By GRAHAM COX

The late turns of bowling alley events set me musing the other night, when I learned of Frank Morgan's outstanding fivepin roll at Esquimalt—he whipped out a three-game 998 total with singles of 405, 394 and 259 to beat George Adams' old alley record of 989 and just miss the accepted city mark of 1,024.

I didn't find just what I was looking for as I leafed through a pile of dusty record and year books sitting on the office window ledge, but I did run into an interesting fact or two.

What caught my eye didn't pertain to fivepins . . . but to tenpins . . . and with Lorna Pollock 598 (197, 197, 204) showing the way in Gibson's Mixed Tenpin League, I thought I'd pass the info along to ease the men's jangled nerves.

The odds against recording a perfect 300 game in sanctioned American Bowling Congress or tournament competition are approximately a million to one.

They are so rare, in fact, that there have been only 14 recorded in 54 national ABC tourneys. This boils the odds down to about 364,000 to one for the all-time history of the event, which attracts the best bowlers in North America.

A couple of humorous, and interesting, sidelights turned up about 300 games showed that in 1921 in Toledo, Sid Sherman rolled a perfect score alternately rolling with his left arm and with his right.

In 1905 in Seattle, the oddest roll ever was posted by James T. Blackburn. Rolling for strike number 12 on his perfect game, Blackburn split one of the pins and watched one half fall into the pit while the other half remained standing on the alley.

He was given a 299, but is the only bowler ever to be accorded a 299½, in fact.

Behind Morgan at Esquimalt were ranked B. McLeod 979, Flora Kirker 792, J. Bemmister 776, Alex Pylypa 762 and H. Tate 761.

Bob Hunter paced the Strathcona fivepinners with his 804 (305) in the Foresters League ahead of Kay Gallop with 624 (251).

At Capital City, Stan Bell continued setting the pace with an 849 (324) in the Empress League and a 789 in the Major League. Other Major leaders were Reg Waggoner with 755, Keith Todd 769 (320), Bill Peterson 767 and Bert Garnet 762 (348).

Dick Hall racked up a 744 (326), John Ruryk 817 (308), Des Nex 808, Gord Hallum 767 and Russ Bud 803.

Poor males ranked behind Lorna in Gibson's mixed ten were Jack Hobby 561 (212), Bill Coates 559 and Len Murrant 548.

Top of the city's week, though, came in the Senior League where W. Davis rolled up 627 (257, 201) to lead Jack Fletcher 592 (241), Sheldon Nipp 547 (205), Len Murrant 543 (206), Ron Wilson 550, M. Mapes 561 (208), Jack Mowbray 558 (224), Bob Bystedt 564 (204), Ian McKeachie 548, Roy Begg 594 (212, 203), Elmer Curtis 593 (214) and Henry Hawkins 579 (200, 207).

In the Commercial League, Don Shaw 606 (212, 201) edged past Wilbur Webb 605 (212, 202) for honors.

They led Eric Badminton 570 (201), Norm Neeley 548 (201), C. Stewart 548 (233), Roy Barnes 545, Bill Coates 545 (202), Chuck Bennett 542 and W. Mowat 541.

In Strathcona's Senior League, Wilf Smiht rolled 573, Ron Wilson 551 and Ted Bowcott 550 (223).

Spokes Depending On Help From Habs

A day behind two other entries in the Coast Division of the Western Hockey League, Victoria Cougars open their training camp Sunday in Nelson.

Well in advance of the rest, last year's league champions, Vancouver Canucks, opened their sessions in Kamloops Wednesday.

The league's newest entry, up from the Western International League, Spokane Spokes opened at Penticton while New Westminster Royals took to the ice in Kelowna.

Spokane coach Roy McBride was optimistic when asked about his team's chances in the professional league.

"We don't know the calibre of the league as well as we would like to," he said. "Naturally we know that we are stepping up in class, but we should hold our own."

Among the newcomers to the club are Benny Woit, a former National League star with Detroit; Joe Lund, formerly with Cleveland Barons of the AHL; a former Canuck, Ching Johnson; former Royal Blinky Boyce, and goal-tender Emil Francis.

"We will have to depend a lot on the help we receive from Montreal," said McBride. "So far, we have got excellent co-operation from them."

Canuck general manager Coley Hall said the club is expecting three new forwards "any day now" from the Rangers. He is waiting to see his defensive material so that he can judge whether he will need veteran Hugh Currie who, along with Brent McNab, has not yet reported.

"We have a couple of chances to make deals for Currie," said Hall, "but we are holding fire for the present."

Campbell Waiting For Calmer Water

CONISTON, Eng. (Reuters)—Donald Campbell took his jet-powered boat Bluebird out for a trial run on Lake Coniston here Friday but choppy water prevented him from opening up the throttle.

He is waiting for ideal conditions before attempting to break his own record of 239.7 miles an hour.

After a run at up to 165 miles an hour he said the choppy conditions would have made it "a bit frightening" to go much faster.

BOUT RESCHEDULED

MONTREAL (CP)—The 10-round welterweight match between Ralph Dupas of New Orleans and Gil Turner of Philadelphia, originally scheduled for Montreal Forum Oct. 22, has been rescheduled for Oct. 15.

Long Grid Skein

CALGARY (CP) — Guard Harry Langford will be playing his 150th consecutive professional football game when Calgary Stampeders tangle with British Columbia Lions in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game at Mewata Stadium today.

The 230-pound native of Calgary first joined Stamps in 1950 and has participated in 155 league, exhibition and playoff games.

Miller Manager Mauls Royals' Mound Staff

MONTREAL (CP) — Playing manager Gene Mauch pounded a pair of doubles and a single and drove in one run to pace the underdog Minneapolis Millers to a 6-2 triumph over the International League's Montreal Royals in the opener of the best-of-seven little world series Friday night.

Outfielders Art Schult and Tom Umphlett drove in two runs each while Lou Clinton contributed two hits to the Millers' 11-hit assault on four Montreal hurlers.

MELBOURNE—Willie Morton, 146½, San Jose, Calif., outpointed Don Barnes, 144, Australia, 10.

Punters' Picks Perk Up; Prosperity Blooms Again

By HAL MALONE

The bloom of prosperity was in evidence again at Sandown Park Friday.

After days of longshots and suffering, horse-players received some financial resuscitation. Four favorites brought about this desirable condition to the needy.

Equally significent was the performance of jockey Jack Arterburn. Overcome by slow horses, bad-legged horses and other things which could hardly be called horses, Mr. Arterburn had been in no recent danger of locating that piece of real estate known as the winner's circle.

Friday he made it three times. Legal Action broke his spell. Mystery Play and Arioso boosted his batting average for the afternoon to three for seven.

Apart from the fact that . . .
Loss Ratio bowed a tendon;
Sure Lea bled slightly;
Gold Drive pulled up extremely sore;
Imponderable threw a shoe and had to be withdrawn, and,
Trudy Trig and Miss Colleen finished in a dead heat for second, creating a twin quinella with Jessie Mac in the seventh, very little happened. Not even a steward fell off the grandstand roof.

QUINELLA ODDITY

Lord Itry won a race, which is news. He doesn't do it too frequently. Friday's win was his first in 36 starts. His task was made somewhat easier when Loss Ratio was torn between two tendons. Charlie Ulrich pulled him up on the backstretch. They sent out a van for Loss Ratio, who walked home on one and a half legs. Ulrich was less fortunate. They didn't even send out a wheelbarrow for him. He's so small that from the grandstand it appeared as if he was walking in a continuous trench.

Gold Drive's corns or arches or bunions hurt him so much he didn't even make it to the finish line. He could use a few weeks vacation.

The quinella oddity occurred when Trudy Trig and Miss Colleen pushed their pug noses at the finish line in unison. Jessie Mac to Trudy Trig was worth a resounding $4.95. Fat return of $6.25 went to holders of tickets on Jessie and Miss Colleen.

WINS AGAIN

History of sorts was made by Foxys Legacy. Before the first race Thursday she was a maiden (hadn't won a race) and seemed bent on a career of losing. She changed her status via an imposing success at 10-1.

Because she had nothing better to do Friday, she came out and won again—this time at 9-1. She was jockey Joe Webster's second winner, quite a feat for a gentleman who was riding horses about the time apprentice jockey Robert Taylor was busy putting the bit on a baby bottle.

TURF TALK . . . Popular veterinarian Dr. Joe Lomas sustained a slight nose cut and a pair of broken glasses attending Toukahn . . . Doc zigged, Toukahn zagged and the twain met—ouch! . . . The mutuel handle was up slightly—$39,297 to $38,112. . . . Following the transition to standard time, weekday races will start at 1.30 p.m. . . . Saturday and closing day (Oct. 6) post time will be 1 p.m.

HODGE BATTING KING

Moody Named Most Valuable

The silverware at the end of the baseball rainbow was collected by players and teams of the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League Friday night at their wind-up and prize presentation ceremonies.

Mike Hodge and Jim Moody shared the spotlight with Wakeman-Trimble and Eagles clubs when the awards were handed out.

Hodge, with his lusty .406 batting average, earned the league batting championship trophy, reaching up from the cellar, with Naval Vets, to turn the trick.

Moody, on the other hand, won the coveted most-valuable-player award, on a vote of league managers, with playoff-champion Eagles.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Accepting the Rithet Trophy for Eagles was manager Art Worth, while Lyall Cornett, manager of Wakeman-Trimble, accepted the league championship award for his team.

President Jack Brice told the large meeting that the outlook for next season looked bright on the basis of a financial report tabled by secretary Bill Bridgewood and groundwork done this season.

The report showed that, while attendance at the games fell below expectations, the association showed a small profit for the season — largely through fund-raising activities.

Bridgewood said the association has a bank balance of $511.94, assets of more than $1,800 and faces no large financial outlay at the beginning of next season.

Crossan Shifted To Norwich City

LONDON (CP)—Errol Crossan, Canadian-born winger with Southend United, was transferred to Norwich City Friday for a £7,500 transfer fee. Both clubs are in the third division.

The 24-year-old native of Montreal played with New Westminster Royals before moving to England in 1954. He first signed with Manchester City, moved to Gillingham in 1956 and to Southend United a year later.

Rochester Gets Five Toronto Castoffs

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs made their first major player cut on Friday night, sending five players to the Rochester American training camp at Hull, Que.

Included were Jimmy Morrison and Bobby Baun, who played defense last season for the National Hockey League club. With them went defenseman Al MacNeil and forwards Willie Marshall and Bob Nevin.

Hamilton Halfback Tops East Parade

TORONTO (CP)—Gerry McDougall, power-running half with the league-leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats, is top scorer in the Big Four Football Union as the 14-game schedule headed into the halfway mark today.

Lutheran Women Membership Up

TORONTO (CP) — Membership of the United Lutheran Church Women has reached a record high of 163,688, Mrs. John B. Moose of Leesville, S.C., retiring president, reported today.

She also told about 1,000 delegates and visitors to the group's five-day convention the budget for 1959 will be $1,100,000, an increase of $50,000 over this year.

SURVEYING 75 YEARS OF PROGRESS to St. Michael's and All Angels' Church is rector, Rev. Jack Rogers. Rectory at left is new and church addition is marked by break in eaves. Anniversary services at 11 a.m. Sunday will be conducted by former rector, Canon S. J. Wickens, for all present and past parishioners. Children's service at 9.30 a.m., Holy Communion at 8 a.m., and evensong at 7.30 p.m. (Times Photo.)

United Church Ups Pay for Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases affecting about 1,000 clergymen have been authorized by the general council of the United Church of Canada, raising the minimum wage to $3,400 by 1960.

The increase of $300 in the next two years—$150 each year—was approved near the end of a long day's sitting as the council, which convened last week, drove hard to wrap up its business within the next two days.

Clergymen among the 400-lay and ministerial delegates attacked the increases as untimely and unnecessary but the boosts were heavily supported by lay speakers.

Rev. I. E. Cumming of Burnaby, B.C., said labor and industry are being criticized for asking pay and price increases and it ill befits ministers to accept any more money.

It was also suggested that the extra money will hit rural congregations hard. Laymen were described as giving as much as they could now and ministers should make equal sacrifice.

Film Showing Set Sunday

A day in the life of a paper will be the subject of a 30-minute color film Sunday 3 p.m. at the Oak Bay Theatre featuring the widely-read Boston daily, The Christian Science Monitor.

Currently celebrating its 50th anniversary the paper, acknowledged as among the top half-dozen dailies in the world, is shown in all facets of its operation.

Tilted "Assignment: Mankind" the film shows activities of editorial, advertising, production and circulation personnel in Boston as well as a round-the-world survey of Monitor correspondents in Europe, Asia and the Middle-East.

Sponsored by the Christian Science organization the film features an original music score composed by Canadian composer Louis Applebaum, composer and director of music for the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

Narrator is Anthony Quayle, British actor on stage and screen who is former director and administrator of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon.

AROUND THE WORLD

With JOHN MANNING

By JOHN MANNING

University student John Manning of 3225 Ripon Rd., has taken a year off from classroom studies to "vagabond" around the world. The 21-year-old Victorian is writing his impressions of the places he is visiting and the things he is seeing.

INDIA—The dead man lay in the railway station, people passing by without even a glance. A dirty sheet lay over the body and flies were crawling on the sheet. I was with two French boys, we saw it at the same time and neither of us said much.

We had third-class tickets but there were so many Indians fighting and pushing their way onto those cars that we gave up and rode second class. The conductor never came. We got off at Madura still thinking about the dead man.

Compared to New Delhi, the town was like being in another world. I don't think the side streets were wide enough to let a car through. Holy cows wandered about looking fatter than the people themselves. For a few annas we hired a horse-drawn Tonga to take us about the town.

Naked in Street

Do you know what it is like to see such things as people wandering naked down the streets, with nothing but their hands outstretched for food and the children sitting in the doorways, their bodies aching with starvation? Or to see a blind man being led along or just standing the whole day somewhere and you wonder what he thinks about while he stands there?

A holy man sat under the shade of a sack awning, his begging bowl at his side. He wasn't begging, just sitting there glad to be away from the sun, his old head nodding in tired weariness.

All at once I felt sick of it all. So I left the French boys and went out onto the road where there was fresh air and fewer things to look at. The other two were to join me at the Taj Mahal that evening. An Austrian diplomat picked me up on his way to Bombay. Soon after the monsoons let down a torrent of rain which squelched the heat.

Emperor's Tomb

The Taj Mahal . . . As I came in past the outer wall of the gardens the rain stopped. The sun, for a brief few minutes, shone through an opening, sending its rays crashing down on the whiteness of this famous structure. It had a strange brilliance against the blackness of the clouds. There were few people inside. I caught the smell of a coal oil lamp and then saw a man with it. He took me down into the vault where are the tombs of the Mogul Emperor Shah Jehan and his wife. The lamp threw our shadows eerily against the ceiling and walls of the vault. The man talked in a whisper. His stubby finger pointed out the spot where one of the largest gems in the world had rested. Now it is in the crown of Queen Elizabeth.

Steady Rain

I waited until past the hour of darkness, the rain still coming down, but the French boys did not come. I found out later their train had been delayed because of floods. Our plan had been to wait until the guard had shut the main gates at midnight and then put our sleeping bags down on the grass. It was the time of the full moon, but the rain never let up. So I started back along the road towards Agra.

It was only a few minutes walking before I came to what I thought was an Indian Army camp. I went in. The commanding officer was a huge mountain of a man and with great laughter told me that I had come to a police camp. I asked him if there was a spare bunk in the barracks where I could put my sleeping bag down. He insisted that I stay in his own home.

Killer-Lion Keeper Absolved of Blame

NANAIMO (CP) — German-born zookeeper Paul Hertel was absolved of blame Friday in the death of eight-year-old Maureen Vanstone, killed the day after a lioness escaped from Hertel's zoo last May 2.

An Assize Court jury returned a verdict of not guilty on a charge of criminal negligence after hearing evidence during a three-day trial here.

Little Maureen was clawed to death by a full-grown lioness, Fury, as she walked along a country road near here. The lioness was shot the same day by a posse.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of the B.C. Supreme Court told the acquitted man: "Here you see the workings of British justice at its best. Since you are new to this country you had better take precautions in the future."

Earlier, Hertel testified he had been told to "wait a minute" by someone on a party line when he attempted to warn nearby residents the lioness had escaped from his small private zoo.

'LADIES ON LINE'

Hertel said the appearance of Maureen Vanstone's brother at the zoo prompted him to try again to warn the Vanstone family.

"There were some ladies on the line when I made the call," he said.

The zoo-keeper testified they told him: "We'll be through in a minute—you can wait that long."

A second call five minutes later found another person on the line.

"That was the last call I made to the Vanstones, as I was called outside," he said.

AFRAID FOR DOGS

Hertel said he also phoned a cougar hunter who told him his dogs couldn't be used because the lioness might harm them.

"A second hunter said he would come, but had some work to do on his brakes," Hertel testified.

Earlier Hertel said he had always treated the lioness with kindness, and had not known his assistant struck the animal with a piece of wood when it escaped previously.

"This could upset her enough to make her act differently," Hertel said. He told the court he had been interested in animals since he was a child.

Surveyors Scan Courthouse Site

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Victoria's long-awaited new courthouse loomed mistily on the horizon today.

It is still a long way off but the start of surveys on the Cathedral Hill site by the B.C. public works department suggested a move towards actual construction.

Surveyors A. O. Noakes and his son Hugh, accompanied by chainman Dev Yates of Metchosin, moved onto the 600 by 300-foot site Friday and began taking measurements with a transit theodolite, a wye level and a rod.

A public works official said the surveyors had direct instructions to determine the exact boundaries and levels at the courthouse site.

They will also determine the amount of surface rock that will have to be excavated before the foundations can be laid.

Mr. Noakes — a practicing surveyor in Victoria for 49 years — said the survey of the whole block at Burdette Avenue will take three or four days.

After the preliminary survey, he and his son will report to the public works department and then return to the site for more intensive surveys.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said he could give no estimate of the size or cost of the new courthouse until the surveys are completed and the actual courthouse requirements are known.

These requirements include five courtrooms (replacing the three now operating at the old courthouse); a room for the examination of witnesses; a robing room for lady barristers; an extra janitor's room, and considerable storage space for legal and land registry documents.

At present a large percentage of these documents are stored in Heaney's warehouse across the way and in another warehouse some three miles distant.

It is possible, too, that personnel in the RCMP barracks on the Cathedral Hill site will have to be accommodated in the new building, but no decision on this has yet been reached.

There are two car parks on the new site which will have to be cleared before actual construction can begin and a number of trees will have to be cut down.

Mr. Noakes, Sr., said this site was surveyed 100 years ago by the Christ Church Cathedral Trust which then planned to build the cathedral there. But the cathedral was constructed instead on the opposite side of Quadra Street.

"This ancient survey may be of some use to us in determining how the new courthouse will be built," Mr. Noakes said.

"It will be designed by our own staff," the public works official said, "but some outside opinion may be sought."

Architect-planner W. D. Lougher-Goodey of the public works department has been put in charge of the work.

More than two years ago the B.C. cabinet approved a plan to spend between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 on the new building.

PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS ADVOCATED BY C OF C

Victoria Chamber of Commerce threw its weight behind the Community Chest campaign Friday when its directors voted unanimously to support the drive and endorsed the principle of payroll deduction.

The directors urged the 800 businesses represented in the chamber to "take the lead" in furthering the Chest's objectives.

'CARVE NAME WITH PRIDE'

Chest Pep Rally At Movie Sunday

By DAVID COLLISHAW

"Carve Her Name with Pride" is the title of a film to be shown at a Community Chest rally Sunday at the Odeon Theatre.

And "carve his and her name with gratitude" is what campaign manager Justin Harbord expects to be saying about the canvassers in the audience

The campaign starts with a tri-service parade starting from the Empress Hotel Monday. The house-to-house canvass will cover two days, Oct. 15 and 16.

"When that $300,000 is gathered in," Mr. Harbord said Thursday, "the whole community will owe these good people (the volunteer canvassers) a vote of thanks."

The film, starring Virginia McKenna and Paul Scofield, is the story of a British agent in occupied France during the Second World War.

It is part of a show for the 2,500 Chest canvassers at the Odeon beginning at 8.30 p.m., which includes appropriate music by the 17-piece Naden band (courtesy Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner) and an outline by M. C. Hugh Curtis of the work and needs of the 20 Red Feather agencies.

His remarks will be dramatized by 20 placard-carrying members of Victoria Girls' Drill Team, and heightened by a three-minute talk by Mr. Harbord.

CAR-WASH STARTS

Canvassers who have not received, or have lost, invitations to the show will be able to get in by showing their "Buy Happiness" buttons.

Meanwhile, 100 Boy Scouts and 120 YWCA girls began washing windshields of cars parked downtown today. Cards left beneath wipers draw a parallel between the youngsters' "good deed" and that of persons who contribute to the Chest.

Button Note: Total of $31 has been "donated" to Chest funds by campaign workers fined $1 a time for not wearing their "Buy Happiness" buttons. Latest victims are Justin Harbord and Cliff Rutledge (chest publicist), "nicked" by an alert Red Feather official who spotted the buttonless pair during a recent plane flight to Vancouver.

Red Feather Pledge Made By Teachers

Greater Victoria school teachers have endorsed the Community Chest and recommended to association members that they support the drive "to the best of their ability."

Association president Walter Boyes told The Times Friday that the resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting in Oak Bay Junior High School Wednesday night.

In an earlier resolution, Mr. Boyes said, teachers approved a motion that they should be approached through their association, and "not by their employer," the School Board.

Discussion followed an appeal on behalf of the Chest by Stuart Keate, who said that "the amount given was a matter for the individual conscience."

He suggested that $2 a month on the payroll deduction plan would realize a donation "commensurate with your important role in the professional life of this community."

Mr. Boyes said that association members felt that Chest giving should be a spontaneous and private matter and that, within this framework, they were happy to endorse Chest objectives.

when they finish their money-collecting job in the drive that follows.

Harbord Attacks 'Penny-Pinchers'

Victoria's "well-educated and prosperous" people came under the fire of Community Chest campaign manager Justin Harbord Friday.

He charged them with forgetting that "a democracy is responsible for the welfare of all," adding that Red Feather critics are members of the "Pocketbook Protective League."

"What do you think is going to happen to democracy if you and I forget our responsibility to the needy?" Mr. Harbord asked a meeting of Victoria Lions Club.

"It is wrong for some of us — the well-educated and prosperous section of the community—to leave welfare up to the state, or to adopt a policy of 'Let George do it'."

AGENCIES JUSTIFIED

Mr. Harbord said criticism of inclusion of the YMCA, YWCA and Boy Scouts in the Chest was unjustified because they were worthwhile agencies doing a good job for the city's youth.

"Can you imagine a city without such youth facilities?" he asked. "This city should do more for these organizations—we are falling down on the job of providing more facilities for our youngsters."

The Chest official said similar criticism of the St. Vincent de Paul Society "because it is a Roman Catholic charity" was also undeserved.

"This agency serves the needy regardless of race or creed," he said. "There is no room for this prejudice."

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

Mr. Harbord said he "wouldn't mind making a bet" that the Chest would reach its $300,000 objective, urging canvassers to "be happy about the job and don't mumble in your beard."

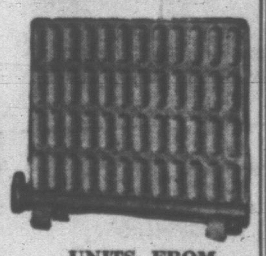

"It's a lot of nonsense that money can't buy happiness. You can buy happiness for yourself and others with your contribution to the Community Chest."

The Lions pledged full support for the campaign.

FAT PLANTS AND MEAT BEETS There will be less grazing land in tomorrow's crowded world, so beefsteaks may have to be replaced by extracted vegetable proteins flavored with tasty synthetics.

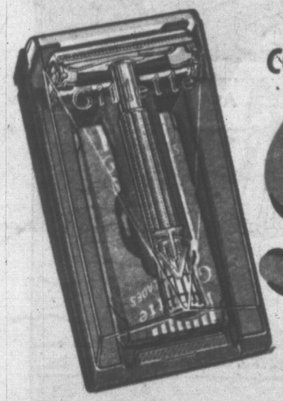

According to Cal Tech biologist James Bonner, new varieties of plants, rich in fats and edible proteins will be developed. Interest in this idea is already evidenced at the Michigan Agricultural Board where plans for a "phytotron" —or ultra-controlled greenhouse—are under way. This equipment will facilitate the study of plant characteristics—and show how to modify them.

Bonner also predicted at a recent Seagram scientific symposium that future farms could be operated by tapes fed through master computer panels.

MARRIAGE BUREAU IF ENOUGH

How Many Lonely-Hearts?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Is Victoria in need of a marriage agency for "lonely hearts?"

Mrs. Elizabeth Shreiner, a housewife and a hospital employee, hopes to convince the city welfare committee Monday there is a big need for such an agency.

The committee is meeting to study her application for a licence to operate a marriage bureau.

Committee's decision will depend largely on whether Mrs. Shreiner can prove there are plenty of men and women who are in need of permanent partners to make their lives brighter and happier.

The dark-haired German-born mother of two children, in her 30s, is confident she can do this, providing, of course, the city fathers will listen to her story.

"I've made a study of the situation," she said. "And I found there is a large group of lonely people in Victoria who want to marry, but can't find suitable partners."

The majority of women in Victoria yearning for husbands, she said, were between the age of 28 and 36. They were quite numerous and were in need of some assistance.

As for men, there were both young and old seeking wives.

She got the idea of starting a marriage agency when she saw many lonely patients in the two local hospitals.

"It was pitiful to see them lonely, neglected and without any lovely companions," she said. "I decided I would do something about it."

GREEKS STARTED

There was nothing new about marriage agencies, Mrs. Shreiner explained. The Greeks started them 2,000 years ago and since then agencies have existed in all countries in Europe. There is one in Vancouver and a few in cities of eastern Canada.

England, she said, had the most efficient marriage agencies.

"The reason why some men never get married is because they are too shy or are too busy to go out wife-hunting," she said. "In some cases it is psychological."

"The purpose of a marriage agency is to introduce, with a view to marriage, persons who desire to find matrimonial partners," she said. "It works out well for most applicants."

She explained that an applicant may be introduced to several women before he finds his suitable partner.

TRY, TRY AGAIN

"Some may have as many as 50 tries before love blossoms," she said. "They click if they have something in common."

Mrs. Shreiner said an agency does not accept a man who cannot support a wife.

"We also wouldn't deal with men who are looking for wives to support them," she said. "There are plenty of these around."

All applications, she said, are treated as strictly confidential.

Mrs. Shreiner said her proposed agency has the support of a clergyman and some doctors.

Two years ago, the committee turned down a similar application on the grounds there was no need for one here.

"Of course," she said, "they can always change their mind."

OUR VERY OWN ISLAND DIGEST

From: Our Very Own Island Editor to Our Very Own Correspondents.

Urgent you reply soonest what news upcoming you unheard from months why? something must be happening reply sooner than soonest.

LUNCHSVILLE, V.I.—I am very sorry I have not been able to send you any news for so long. I have almost had news on several occasions, but it seems something always happens to spoil it.

For instance I was going to write a very long and good news story about the honeymoon plans of Miss Mary Dillbunk, who works down to the bank, and Mr. Claude Nails, who doesn't.

Work, that is.

Well, they planned a very wonderful honeymoon indeed, Las Vegas, Honolulu, the Riviera, Miami, Switzerland, and Joe's Drive In.

Unfortunately, on the night before the wedding, Mr. Nails inadvertently stepped on the burglar alarm down to the bank where Miss Dillbunk worked, and when he told the magistrate he was just making sure Miss Dillbunk hadn't left any loose change behind her, the magistrate didn't seem to believe him.

Mr. Nails is expected back in seven years less one day, but in the meantime, there is no honeymoon, so you can see I haven't any news to write about the honeymoon.

Everything else seems to go the same way around here, and I am truly sorry.

WOBBLE HILL, V.I.—The best news story of the summer season was to have been about the Centennial Celebrations at Wobble Hill.

Wobble Hill was all set to have the centennial celebration of the century, when somebody looked up the records and found that Wobble Hill wasn't really 100 years old, it just felt that way.

CUTTING CORNERS, V.I.—I almost had a good news story for you last Wednesday, no, it must have been Thursday, Wednesday was meeting night for the Home Knitting and Seven-Eleven Society when Mrs. Fudd made six straight passes and became so excited she dropped 20 stitches, but it couldn't have been Thursday, that was the day the mail order catalogue arrived.

So maybe it was Tuesday but anyway the Volunteer Fire Brigade got an alarm to go and fight a fire down to Lem's barn, but the Chief was trying to prove he could count an honest 19 in cribbage and by the time the argument died down the fire did too so when the VF Brigade got to the barn there wasn't any barn it was all burned up so was Lem but what's the news in that?

Lem is always burned up over something.

WALLOPEM BEACH, V.I.—There is nothing much going on around here, this being the off-season like.

Of course, a dog caught the dogcatcher, but as I understand it, it is not news unless the dogcatcher BIT the dog.

GOON CENTRE, V.I.—I will have you understand, whenever there is news in Goon Centre, you will be the first to know.

The fact of the matter is, in Goon Centre all the important news revolves around Mr. Abner Goon, the mayor of Goon Centre, and its leading citizen.

Unfortunately, Mr. Goon has been incapacitated since last April, when he complained of finding lumps in mashed potatoes served by his wife and as a consequence suffered lumps on his head.

He is doing as well as could be expected, and when once again up and around will no doubt make some news for you.

(The above dispatch was writ by hand by your Goon Centre correspondent, Mrs. Abner Goon.)

STRAIGHT FROM THE HORSE'S MOUTH—OUCH

Racing season or not, it pays to be wary of what comes from the horse's mouth.

Eight-year-old Roy Davies, for example, got a couple of horse-sized bites.

City police were told the boy was holding a riding pony near a James Bay supermarket when the horse suddenly jumped at him and bit his chest and arm.

E. W. Davies, 212 Menzies, took his son to hospital for medical attention.

Motorist Killed In Smash

Three Injured Near Sidney

An unemployed ex-navy man died near Sidney, Friday night when his car crashed into another auto waiting to enter the highway.

The dead man, who police said was driving, is Donald Campbell, 32, of 35 Obed. He leaves a widow and three children.

Three occupants of the small car and one occupant of the second car were taken to Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney with assorted injuries.

A third car missed the crash by swinging into a driveway.

The injured are Gordon Alan Provins, 22, of HMCS Cayuga, with cuts, possible fractures and shock; Mrs. Jean Currie, 29, of 35 Obed, with face cuts, a tooth knocked out and bruises; Mrs. Gloria Hunt, 28, of 35 Obed, with a cut forehead and bruises.

HIGH SPEED

Mrs. Hunt was released after treatment as was Noreen Collins, 13, Scott Road, passenger in the other car, who had a broken nose and leg bruise.

Police said a high speed was indicated and that the pavement bore no trace of skidmarks.

Mrs. Harold Fox, who lives near the junction of Patricia Bay Highway and Lochside Drive, where the crash took place, said she had just returned from helping a Red Cross blood clinic at Sidney at 10 p.m.

The small car, coming from the direction of Victoria, turned off the highway and crashed into a car driven by Mrs. Isabel Collins, waiting to enter the highway from Lochside, Mrs. Fox said.

The impact sent the larger Collins car facing in the opposite direction to which it had been heading and caused an estimated $800 damage.

THROUGH WINDSHIELD

Sidney RCMP said the smaller car was demolished from the grille to the back of the driver's seat and repair was estimated at $1,400.

It appeared that one occupant of the car had been flung through the windshield, police said.

Cause of Campbell's death was believed to have been a crushed chest and punctured lung.

Another nearby resident, Dr. C. H. Hemmings, went to the scene of the crash to give medical aid and later attended at the hospital.

Three ambulances from Rest Haven, RCN VU 33 Squadron, Patricia Bay and Central Saanich fire department, also attended the crash.

JUST OUT OF NAVY

Campbell's body was taken to Sands funeral home in Sidney.

Mrs. John Paxton, 1357 Pandora, mother of Mrs. Campbell, said Campbell was only recently out of the navy.

Campbell's children are a boy of three and two girls, aged 11 and six. He had served in the navy for 12 years. His home was Mossbank, Sask., about 40 miles south of Moose Jaw.

Cut in Cabinet Pay Urged to Curb Costs

Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory today called for a cutback in ministers' and MLAs' salaries to the 1956 level instead of reducing government spending on public services.

His suggestion came on the heels of a report that Premier Bennett has ordered most provincial government departments to slash their estimates by at least 5 per cent from 1958 levels, in order that the direct provincial debt can be paid off by 1960.

"If these cuts have been ordered, it is a disgraceful situation," said Mr. Gregory, as a storm of opposition to Premier Bennett's reported economy cuts mounted throughout the province.

The orders for a cutback are said to have followed several meetings of the B.C. treasury board in Premier Bennett's office.

Last year the orders from the treasury board were for a 15 per cent reduction.

"It would be nothing short of criminal to permit unnecessary human suffering merely to pay off the province's direct debt in time for the next general election," Victoria MLA George Gregory said.

"If the premier has found waste or extravagance in the government, let him lose no time in cutting it out. But it would be a great mistake to cut grants to school districts and municipalities, to cut back essential health services, and to lessen our efforts to rehabilitate young offenders just for the sake of economy.

"Two years ago," he said, "salaries and indemnities of ministers and MLAs were increased by about 40 per cent to the point where only a handful, if that many, ever earned so much money in their lives before.

'All Financial Sacrifice Taken Out'

"All financial sacrifice has been taken out of this type of public service, and I suggest that the best start we could make towards reducing the cost of government, without reducing efficiency, would be to cut back all salaries and indemnities to what they were in 1956."

In 1957 B.C. cabinet ministers' salaries were increased from $7,500 to $12,500, while indemnities (paid to both ministers and MLAs) rose from $3,500 to $5,000.

Premier Bennett gets a salary of $15,000 plus $5,000 for sessional indemnities.

"Premier Bennett is robbing the British Columbia Peter to pay the British Columbia Paul," said Victor W. Williams, organizer and vice-president of Victoria CCF Association.

"The unfortunate thing is that the people of B.C. are both Peter and Paul. Our provincial debt now is so tremendous that even Mr. Bennett is getting scared. People are becoming educated as to what contingent liabilities mean and recognize them as debt, whether direct or indirect.

"He is afraid this educational process will give them a fatal understanding of the dilemma into which he is leading this province both economically and politically.

"It is absurd to cut our social services in order to bolster the false claim that we shall be debt-free in 1960.

Publicity commissioner George I. Warren, D. D. Carmichael and K. J. Davis of Victoria were elected district vice-presidents of the Society of Notary Public of British Columbia at Harrison Hot Springs this week.

Strike Vote Sought by B.C. Engineers

Some 100 stationary engineers working for the B.C. government want to take a strike vote to back up demands for a 9 per cent wage boost.

The B.C. Government Employees' Association Friday agreed to conduct the vote, but will first seek a meeting with Public Works Minister W. N. Chant in an effort to reach agreement.

Involved are engineers working in the Parliament Buildings, court houses, Essondale, government hospitals, sanitariums and other government buildings throughout the province. Their job mainly is to stoke furnaces and do maintenance work.

Their present pay ranges from a starting rate of $265 per month for helpers to a high of $400. They consider a 9 per cent increase will bring them closer to rates paid by private industry.

Mr. Chant was not available for comment today.

The strike poll demand follows vote of a majority of civil servants, mostly office personnel for similar action, if necessary, to support demand for a 11 per cent pay increase.

Association officials said today they still had not received a reply to their letter to the government asking for a meeting with cabinet members to discuss pay.

PARITY WITH VANCOUVER

Milkmen Vote to Accept Two-Year Pay Boost Plan

A representative meeting of Victoria's 200 milkmen voted unanimously Friday to accept the majority report of a conciliation board recommending a $40-a-month wage boost over two years for plant workers, $43.75 over two years for drivers.

The terms, which represent parity with those recently awarded mainland milk workers, must be accepted by distributors before they go into effect.

The board report recommended drivers get a $25 monthly pay increase retroactive to April 1, to be boosted to $30 when a contract is signed.

From Jan. 1 they would receive an additional $13.75 until the agreement expires March 31, 1960.

Plant workers would get a $25 raise effective April 1 this year and a further $15 next April.

Women workers in the plants would receive half these amounts.

Drivers' pay will now average about $355 a month and plant pay will range up to $342.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Good-Value Luxuries Tempt Penny on Shopping Tours

By PENNY SAVER

Trouble with shopping around for bargains is that poor old Penny gets carried away and finds it terribly hard to save her money at all when she goes on shopping tours. So many lovely things in the shops for fall!

Take the red stockings for instance. Wouldn't go with anything Penny owns, but they look so lovely. In the box, they look a rather violent red, but on, they're a delicate shade (Hint of rouge, they're called) and would be superb with any shade of red, or with a grey or black. Price is $1.50 a pair.

More practical, for the same price, are the new darker shades for fall, such as mauve taupe, fashioned with the darker heel.

★ ★ ★

Another luxury—but at a bargain price—are bed jackets. Very tempting indeed at $5.95 are imported all-wool jackets that look hand-knit and come in lovely shades of pink and blue. One style has cosy draw-string waist, high neckline and cuffs are nylon trimmed. They are hand-washable.

Not a luxury at all, but smart and practical, are English pajamas of interlock cotton, with elasticized neck and cuffs. These and gowns of the same material are in style at just $4.95 and $5.95.

★ ★ ★

Another great temptation in the sportswear department of the same shop was an orlon sweater with an attractive little fringed shawl collar—in white, black or red—at $7.95.

And to go with them... Penny would love a pair of Paisley print corduroy slim jims. They would team perfectly with the sweaters, in either white and black or red and black. They're washable, too, and only $8.95 a pair.

★ ★ ★

Finally, a real bargain! For 89 cents, Penny gave in and bought a pair of slippers—for travelling or for around the house. They're stretchy knit, come in bright blue, emerald green or beige—and not at all extravagant.

If you're looking for something nice for yourself or for birthday gifts, why not have a look at these attractive items? Phone me at 2-3131 to find out where I shopped.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today I would like to summarize some of the factors which affect the vitamin content of foods.

1. Do not cook your vegetables too long and use as little water as possible. Greens lose only 25 per cent of their vitamin content when cooked for half an hour, while they lose a great deal more if cooked longer.

2. Vitamin C and many of the B complex vitamins are soluble in water. From 40 to 50 per cent of the vitamin content of canned vegetables is in the canning liquid—therefore, use this as well as the vegetables themselves.

3. Use the outer portions of fruits and vegetables whenever possible.

4. Do not use soda when cooking vegetables, even if it makes them look prettier. This speeds the vitamin loss.

5. Save any water you must pour off vegetables in sealed jars in the refrigerator for use in soups and sauces.

6. Choose vegetables and fruits which are ripe. The riper they are, the higher their vitamin content, so long as the skin has not been bruised or cut.

8. Whenever possible, bake potatoes and eat the skins. If you must boil them, boil them in their skins.

9. Canned fruit and fruit juices and tomatoes retain their vitamin content better than non-acid foods.

10. Whenever possible we should avoid the highly polished and the fine foods. For instance, polished white rice gives us little but calories. The rice bran and rice germ are wonderful sources of thiamine but they are removed in the milling process. Thus white rice loses about 80 per cent of its vitamin D content. Therefore, it is much better to eat brown rice or converted rice.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

BY NONA DAMASKE

No Matter What You Say—It's 'High-Waisted'

The Recamier line, the Directoire feeling, the Josephine look, the Empire (pronounced Emp-eer) silhouette . . . call it what you will . . . it can be described in two simple words — high-waisted.

Nona

Easy gals, erase that smug smile, the designers have made quite certain that we can not shorten our Empire line dresses of several seasons ago and be in step with style. As in the past the Empire theme takes bandings, self bows, slotted belts, stitched seams and flap pockets to bring and hold interest. The current silhouette differs in that the waistline, instead of fitting like the paper on the wall, is now unfitted and free falling.

In silky fabrics this effect is most often achieved by soft gatherings. In the more bulky wools the unpressed pleat is brought into use.

The high-waisted, short-skirted new shape is in reality a combination of the former figure-fitting Empire line and the loose-waisted Chemise.

You may well ask, at this point, "what happened to the Trapeze?"

Despite all the hoopla and endorsement by noted fashion houses the ultimate decision which makes or breaks a designer's dream is that of the average career girl or housewife.

The trapeze is still found in the fall and winter collections but the average North American woman is rejecting it for the more flattering Empire line.

There is, however, a fashion-conscious feminine group who are taking to the trapeze as ducks take to water. From three to 13 years, the little ladies have accepted this style which is so suitable for young figures.

While the Empire bodice comes in for the giant share of attention in dresses, hemlines are not ignored. They are fringed, flounced, banded and furred—and a long length of leg is very much a part of the picture.

So much for the silhouettes.

I do not know about the east but out our way we have also refused to go overboard on the high fashion color chosen by the experts. The powers that be said—purple, violet, lilac, magenta. Our gals did not listen. Second color choice from the early predictions is in first place in our part of the world—the soft yellowed greens, moss, fern and olive take on new importance.

All women are not necessarily slaves to fashion. It's fun to follow fashion if it makes you happy and attractive. If it makes you uncomfortable, don't accept it. Your unhappiness will show.

Ruby red velvet tops black and grey wool in this stunning "Directoire" line dress created by the house of Christian Dior. A large velvet-covered buckle accents the high rising bodice and large unpressed pleats give the free falling relaxed look to the waistline. Ruby-red crystals, matching velvet chapeaux and black gloves are all from Christian Dior.

Pulled in above the waistline by a black leather belt, Originala has given the "Empire" line to this black and white tweed coat. Designed by Lilly Dache the head-hugging cloche in emerald green is the perfect accent for this slim young coat.

YWCA NOTES

"Slim n' Trim" classes, designed to restore the waistline and give hints for self-improvement, will start on Oct. 6 in the YWCA. Classes are arranged for 5.30 p.m., so business girls may go direct from work. There will be an hour of exercises followed by a low-calorie dinner.

Keep-fit classes for housewives and busy mothers will be held every Tuesday at 10.30 a.m. A supervised nursery for children in age from two to five is being arranged so mothers may attend this class, have lunch, and also join a craft or interest group in early afternoon. Class is named "Away for the Day."

For those mothers who cannot spare too much time another keep-fit class for women is planned to start next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Every Thursday evening, commencing Oct. 2, the "Ardent Artists" class will meet with a fully-qualified instructor who will give lessons in charcoal, pen and ink, water-color and oil-painting techniques. Beginners may attend this class.

Further information may be obtained at the YWCA, 4-7179.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Conflicting Interests?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with so many women nowadays? Don't they have any modesty or decency at all? My husband comes home from his mail route and tells me he wishes these women with their short shorts and tight jeans would cover up. He says most women answer the door in their bathrobes until noon! I was taught to dress up in the morning with shoes, stockings, undergarments and a dress. But then I wasn't interested in tempting strange men who came to my door. I hope some women will read this and take the hint!

MAIL CARRIER'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Don't worry, Lady, when a woman greets the mailman in the morning she is either too tired or too busy to attempt to carry the mail carrier away. She's interested in MAIL—not MALE!

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I've a problem that is common but I don't know what to do about it. My girlfriend lives a few doors away and she came and told me that my eight-year-old boy has been finding out about the birds and the bees with her five-year-old daughter. Should the kids be punished or what?

TWO LOST MOTHERS.

DEAR MOTHERS: Punished for a curiosity that is as natural as breathing? Certainly not! Let the children know that you are willing to answer all their questions — and don't act embarrassed or they'll come to regard the subject of "sex" as something wrong and shameful.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: A letter in write what I am about to say. I am 51 years old. I love housework and keep myself busy. I have three married children and they have children of their own. I used to drop everything and run to baby-sit for them. I didn't realize I was neglecting my husband. A few things happened around Christmas time that made me realize my children didn't care as much for my happiness as I cared for theirs. I have made up my mind that I have ONE baby to tend, and that is my husband. After 33 years I just woke up.

MAMMA.

...wives Urged to Think ...d to Grow—For Survival

Dr. Enos Chisholm, returned recently from Europe, told members attending a meeting of South Vancouver Island Women's Institutes in Sooke Community Hall Tuesday: "There are so many things to consider in this complicated age. The world is so small, over-all contacts can be made easily so we are forced to the necessity of growing in a great many ways."

Women's institutes, he said, "have to keep up . . . to grow."

The speaker pointed out that in this changing world it is important to "learn to think for ourselves.

"There is no country in the world that will not have to change some of its peculiarities and lose some of its prejudices if the world is to survive," he said.

One hundred and seventy-five members from 23 institutes attended and were welcomed by Mrs. Irene Cains, president of Sooke and North Sooke WI. Mrs. E. G. Woodward presided.

The following officers were elected by acclamation: President, Mrs. Ed Robinson, Shirley Institute; vice-president, Mrs. W. F. Lauritzen, Craigflower; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Emery, Colwood; directors, Mrs. M. McCondah, Somenos, and Mrs. H. Ingram, Royal Oak.

A new institute at Newcastle, organized last spring by Mrs. A. S. Moffat, long-time member of Lake Hill WI, was welcomed. Mrs. M. A. Perron, Shirley, was presented with a life membership pin by Mrs. Stella Gummow, provincial superintendent of institutes.

Mrs. J. O. Decker, Pemberton, B.C., the provincial president, spoke on revival of cultural activities in the institutes, and Mrs. Gummow gave a talk on activities in institutes throughout the province. Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Emery, Colwood, reported on the first national convention held in Ottawa.

Luncheon hostesses were the Sooke and North Sooke Institute. Tea was served by Shirley WI. Choral Belles of Sooke under direction of Mrs. J. Lindley entertained delegates with several songs. Mrs. C. H. Cyr was accompanist.

Mrs. M. B. Rant, Brentwood, spoke briefly on institute aid to the Solarium. In attempting to raise $2,000 toward equipping an eight-bed children's ward, institutes had more than doubled that amount, she said, with the result that they had completely furnished the ward from linens to dressing carts and drug cars.

Wedding Guests

Mr. Irwin F. Davis, New York, was among special out-of-town guests at the wedding of his son, Mr. John Irwin Davis, and Miss Alma Angus in Oak Bay United Church recently. Also here were Mr. and Mrs. N. Angus of Edmonton.

From Out of Town

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony early this afternoon which united Miss Bertha Barker and Mr. Ivor O. Jenkins in Wilkinson Road United Church included Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Jenkins, the groom's parents from Calgary, and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Anderson of Nanaimo.

Barbara Turner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Turner and Kelly Ednison, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Edmison, get a preview of the model dolls' house with its built-to-scale furnishings which has been loaned by its present owner, Mrs. A. C. Coles of this city, for display at the Antique Fair next month. The builder, the late Col. Broome, left it to her when he died, seven years ago.

Antique Mahogany Doll's House

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It was born out of a fit of curiosity.

This doll's house that will be on display during the antique fair in the Empress Hotel on Oct. 9 and 10.

At least, that's the way the late Col. L. E. Broome used to explain how he became involved in a project that held his interest for years.

Across the street from where he once lived in this city stood what was left of the old wooden Christ Church Cathedral, which had not been used for some time.

One day he heard the sound of hammering in the old church and on investigating, found one elderly house breaker methodically demolishing the framework of the organ, from which the pipes and the keys had already disappeared.

Col. Broome's eyes caught the warm red sheen of mahogany and he said: "That wood must be well seasoned."

The old man replied: "It orter be. Came out round the Horn 50 years back. Gimme $3 and cart it away quick and you can have the lot."

Money changed hands quickly and in a few minutes Col. Broome was back with hammer, wedges, screwdriver and pinchbar. After a dusty hour's work he had removed at least a half ton of lovely wood, with never a knot or flat in the lot.

"You've got summat there," said the old man, casting a knowing eye over the wood. "Guess its 'breathed o'er Eden' for half of Victoria. Aye, and played them into their graves, too. What yer aim to do with it?"

Col. Broome laughed and said: "How about a doll's house for the new generation? The echoes of Eden, so to speak."

"A good idea, boss," said the old man.

Both the elderly organ wrecker and Col. Broome are dead now but the doll's house that was born from that idle conversation continues to give pleasure wherever it is displayed.

Later, when Col. Broome moved to an attractive white frame house on the banks of the Chemainus River, opposite All Saints' Church, the unfinished house and the rich red mahogany wood went with him. He set up his workshop in a shed at the back of the house.

He wrote to friends and acquaintances going to—as he said—"furrin parts." They had standing orders to bring back a bit of wood, no matter how small, to be worked into the details of the house.

Today, you'll see a corner cupboard in the dining room that Col. Broome made from a bit of wood from a buried forest near Auckland, engulfed in a mud volcano and uncovered by the spillway of a dam built on the Arapuni River.

Dining room chairs and table are made of wood from Pitcairn Island; doors and window frames of the bedroom from yellow saffron wood that once grew in Queensland, Australia.

Rim around the top of the writing desk (whose drawers pull in and out) is olive wood from Jerusalem; the centre is rosewood from the forests of Brazil, and the sides and back are redwood burl from California.

Look close and you'll see that the blotter on the desk has been used.

A settee in the doll-size drawing room is a section of an old violin; the grand piano is the best bit of an out-of-date radio case, and the strings are from a derelict guitar.

Pictures on the walls of the drawing room, framed in black and gold by Col. Broome, are genuine Baxter prints.

All the plates, glasses, decanters and vases in the dining room and ornaments such as lamp shades, tea sets, toilet articles and so on, were turned on a lathe in the workshop beside the Chemainus River or carved by Col. Broome from synthetic resin. This substance was just beginning to be called "plastics."

The library has dozens of tiny books, bound in all colors. There's a jade green bath with ivory and gold taps (Col. Broome used to say: "I always yearned for a large jade-green bath, you know").

Table knives in the dining room were originally a corset steel; the hot water tank in the kitchen a bit of a broom stick painted to look like iron.

It took Col. Broome seven years to bring the doll's house to a point where it was built and furnished. But while he lived he was always remaking something in an effort to get a little nearer perfection.

"Nothing is ever as perfect as it should be—or could be," he used to say.

Then, he'd turn to his workshop and produce a miniature picture or an ornament to be added to the beauty of his doll's house.

Double-Ring Ceremony

St. Helen's Anglican Church, North Surrey, B.C., was decorated with autumn-toned gladioli and chrysanthemums for the wedding of Sheila Frances Marion, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Wallace Smith, North Surrey, and Roderick William Shearing, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shearing, of Victoria. The double-ring ceremony was conducted by Canon W. H. Hatfield, who had officiated at the wedding of the groom's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of French lace over satin, featuring a fitted bodice, lily-point sleeves, and a floor-length bouffant skirt with side panels of lace-appliqued organza. Her chapel veil was held by a pearl-encrusted Juliet cap, and she carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and white carnations.

Matron of honor for her sister, Mrs. Robert Carlyle, and bridesmaid Miss Mary Dawe, wore identical sheath dresses of deep lustre satin in mink shade, and fashioned with floating side panels. Matching flower-trimmed bandeaux and bouquets of copper-toned baby chrysanthemums completed their costumes.

Best man was Ian Parker, and ushers were the bride's brother, David Smith, and Graeme Balcom. David Hatfield was organist. J. M. Field proposed the toast to the bride at a reception at Rose Garth, New Westminster.

Mrs. Shearing's going-away ensemble was a cherry red wool modified chemise suit with white velvet cloche hat and black accessories with a gardenia corsage.

Following a motor trip to California the young couple will make their home in Vancouver.

The dress was fashioned on straight lines at the front, gathered to fullness at the back. The bodice had long sleeves. A short chapel length veil was held in place with a lace and seed pearl headdress and she carried a crescent bouquet of white carnations, gardenias and ivy.

Gowns of powder blue nylon sheer over mauve taffeta were worn by attendants, Mrs. Geoffrey Sheffield and Miss Roseann Millin. They had ivy headdresses and carried bouquets of deep pink carnations and ivy.

Assisting in receiving guests was the mother of the bride, who wore a green and gold brocade ensemble with black accessories and yellow rose corsage, and the groom's mother, who wore a rose and grey afternoon dress with grey accessories and corsage of pink roses.

A three-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table, flanked by silver candelabra and autumn flowers.

A lovely morning wedding was solemnized today when Miss Dianne Elizabeth Murrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Murrell of Princess Avenue exchanged marriage vows with Maurice Donald Mollin, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Mollin, of Oswego Street.

Vows were said in St. Andrew's Cathedral with Father M. O'Connell officiating.

A pink and white theme was carried on in the decorations in the church. Baskets of pink and white gladioli banked the aisles and white carnations marked the pews.

White brocade formed the exquisite wedding gown worn by the bride. Styled in floor-length, the classic dress featured a deep scoop neckline and short sleeves trimmed with dainty roses. Her gloves were lily point. The large skirt featured tiny pleats circling the bottom of the dress. A headpiece of tiny pearls and velvet flowers forming a half crown held the bride's elbow-length veil. Yellow roses topped the white prayer book she carried. Only jewelry was a strand of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Bertha Barker Attractive Bride In Wilkinson Road United Church

Attractive arrangements of flowers in autumn tones decorated Wilkinson Road United Church this afternoon when Bertha Doris, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Barker, Reed Street, became the bride of Ivor Owen Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Jenkins, Calgary.

Rev. E. J. Staley conducted the service.

The tiny bride was a picture as she entered the church on the arm of her brother-in-law, Norman Zape. Her floor-length gown was of Chantilly lace featuring a bouffant skirt of net. The bodice was enhanced by a scooped neckline dotted with seed pearls, and ruffles of net formed the high yoke. Sleeves were lily point. An illusion silk veil misted from her dainty tiara of lace embroidered with iridescent sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade of American beauty roses and stephanotis.

Single attendant, Miss Helen Barker, sister of the bride, wore an afternoon-length dress in aqua-toned taffeta. A bow at centre front hemline of the attractive gown caught the skirt up to give a balloon effect. The bodice was fitted and the neckline extended to a deep V at back, enhanced by a bow. Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were in her bouquet.

Ted Sniezek was best man and ushering were Bill Johnstone and Ken Anderson.

Receiving guests at the reception in Holyrood House following the ceremony, mother of the bride wore a medium blue suit with matching accessories and gardenia corsage. A navy blue ensemble was worn by the groom's mother. She had a corsage of gardenias.

A three-tier cake centred the bridal table, flanked by pink roses and tulle.

Bernard Johnson proposed the toast.

Leaving on an extended trip through the United States and up to Saskatchewan and Alberta, the bride wore a chemise-style dress in centennial blue. She topped it with a basket weave coat in white. Her accessories were powder blue.

Couple will make their home at 832 Reed Street.

Son's Liking for Funnies Makes Mother Change Mind

Mrs. Mary Craig, with her speech "The Not So Funny Funnies," won the spur for most improvement at meeting of Victoria Toastmistress Club held in the Monterey Restaurant.

"I had never read a funny in my life," Mrs. Craig said, "and I had an idea that people who did were somewhat lacking in intelligence. However, when my son arrived from England and I found he read the funnies before any other part of the newspaper, I wondered if perhaps I was the one out of step."

Oscar for best speech was awarded to Mrs. H. Mickelson for "Mental Telepathy."

Mrs. B. Prevost presided; Mrs. Mickelson as table topic mistress took the subject, "A Review of the International Speech Contest." Mrs. J. deBourcier was toastmistress.

Bridal Shower

China brooches were presented to bride of this morning, the former Miss Dianne Murrell, and her mother, Mrs. G. Murrell, at a shower given recently by Mrs. W. Ward. Guests included Mrs. G. Alexander, Mrs. C. Bennett, Mrs. S. Besswick, Mrs. D. Beaulac, Mrs. D. Clear, Mrs. V. Clarkson, Mrs. W. Elliot, Mrs. Brooke Douglass, Mrs. W. Glover, Mrs. W. Spaven, Mrs. R. Suddaby, and Misses Lois Bennett, Marilyn Bennett, Eileen Butler, Thelma Hiron, Dorothy Murrell, Judy Murrell, Cathy Ward, Jo Ward and Master Barry Briggs.

Capacity Audience Sees Audubon Show

Modern highways are much more dangerous than sharks and barracudas, according to William H. Wagoner of Homestead, Fla., one of United States outstanding nature photographers.

The 41-year-old photographer, who frequently takes movies of tropical sea life, said the so-called vicious sea fishes are 100 times less dangerous than driving on a highway.

"Sharks, octopi and electric eels will never harm you if you mind your own business," he said when questioned about his experiences with deep-sea fishes. "But a motorist, regardless of how careful he is, is running a heavy risk every day."

HALL FILLED

Mr. Wagoner and his wife showed their colored movie, "A Touch of the Tropics," to a capacity audience at the Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium Friday. The program was sponsored by the Victoria Natural History Society and the Audubon Society of Canada.

The movie depicted wildlife in the Everglades and sea life in Florida Bay.

Mr. Wagoner did not think much of people who are afraid of wild animals.

"It's all in the imagination," he said. "A person who is afraid of a cougar is reverting to his childhood imagination when he pictured a cat as a tiger stealing through jungle grass."

He was concerned with the continued destruction of nature sancturies in the United States and Canada.

The Audubon Society, he said, had created many natural parks, but despite conservation efforts, areas ideal for wildlife sanctuaries are still being destroyed.

Known in the United States as the "artist who paints with a camera," Mr. Wagoner's film showed that he has a rare talent for making every scene a beautiful composition. There were some striking pictures of cranes, storks and alligators taken in the Florida jungle.

Mr. Wagoner's present interest in conservation grew out of two childhood hobbies, photography and nature study.

"I took my first picture of a bird when I was ten," he said. "That started me off on my career."

During the Second World War his skill as a photographer landed him in the U.S. Army Signal Corps, and later his hobby of natural history led him to become a ranger-naturalist at Grand Canyon National Park.

"What we like best to do," he said, "is to climb mountains and trek into remote wilderness areas. There is much around you that is beautiful. You have to open up your eyes and see it."

Driver Blames Skin Medicine For Collapse

Hubert Merrick Hall, 74, 2235 Arbutus Road, charged with impaired driving Aug. 14, told Saanich court Thursday it was medicine taken for a skin condition that made him "dopey and groggy."

He had pleaded not guilty to the charge at an earlier court appearance.

Earlier, three Saanich police officers had testified the accused on the night in question smelled strongly of liquor and his talk was jumbled.

They said he had collapsed on the lawn at his home "flat on his back, arms and legs stretched out," and had to be helped by police into the house.

"It didn't occur to you he might be ill," defence counsel asked.

"No, it didn't," the police officer answered.

The impaired charge was laid after police went to his home looking for the owner of a sedan delivery left about 600 yards from his house.

The trial was adjourned until Oct. 2 to hear evidence of the accused's doctor.

150 Attending B.C. Aviation Convention Here

More than 150 delegates from all parts of British Columbia are attending a two-day convention of the B.C. Aviation Council at the Empress Hotel.

J. N. Donnelly, of Trans-Canada Air Lines, addressed the convention this morning on the role of aviation in municipal progress.

Tex Johnson, chief test pilot of Boeing Aircraft Co. Ltd., Seattle, will be guest speaker at a banquet at 7 tonight.

The Aviation Council was formed in 1938 from a cross-section of aviation interests throughout the province, including representatives of municipal councils having airstrips in their districts.

More than 100 delegates who were to have flown to Victoria Friday arrived here by Canadian Pacific ferry instead.

They cancelled their plans to fly over because of bad weather in Vancouver.

B.C. Liberals To Convene Next Spring

B.C. Liberals are planning to call a general convention in Vancouver or Victoria next spring.

The decision to hold a 1959 convention was reached unanimously by a committee of party officers meeting in Vancouver Friday.

A spokesman for the committee said the convention will be "one of the most important in the history of the Liberal party."

He said the group was influenced by the big response to a personal-opinion questionnaire sent to Liberals throughout B.C.

The survey has produced a volume of information which requires "thorough study well in advance of a convention," the spokesman said.

MUNICIPAL ACTION STALLED

UBCM Skirmish Opens Power Rivals' Battle

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

NANAIMO — Some 700 delegates to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention here left for their homes Friday with a strong impression that they had ringside seats at the opening of a power struggle between the province's two electrical utilities.

But the sudden ending of the three-day convention headed off a drive to involve the municipal association in the battle.

Both the publicly-owned B.C. Power Commission and the privately-owned B.C. Electric Company tendered dinners for delegates.

BCPC general manager H. L. Briggs sent rumors flying of an impending struggle for a greater share of the power pie when he told delegates that a majority of the commission's scattered residential customers pay only $6.60 for 300 kilowatt hours of energy.

He compared this with the $9.20 bill charged by BCE in Victoria for the same service.

BCE's executive vice-president Dr. H. L. Purdy the following day immediately labelled the comparison as a "great red herring" produced by BCPC.

"I wonder if it is sheer chance" that BCE's Victoria rates were singled out, he snapped.

The open clash between the two power leaders followed a call on the UBCM convention floor for replacement of BCE operations in Victoria by BCPC in order that the provincial utility could subsidize its rural electrification program more easily.

Mayor William Moore of Courtenay, former CCF MLA, used the suggestion as a springboard for a resolution urging the provincial government to wipe BCE right off the B.C. map and install BCPC as the sole electrical ultility.

But the resolution never reached the floor for a debate. Delegates, who had finished scheduled business a half-day early, voted against considering any late resolutions and wound the convention up Friday noon.

But several key delegates told reporters that there had been an outside chance the resolution would have been passed if it had reached the floor.

pute in another municipality.

The convention also passed a resolution demanding that the provincial government eliminate the exemption from municipal taxation held by the Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company.

Same demand has been made the last two years, and rejected by the cabinet, but delegates made it clear they would repeat the request yearly until it was granted.

The convention voted to incorporate UBCM, to give it status as a legal entity. Delegates approved another recommendation designed to increase the budget by 50 per cent. Last year it was $12,000.

Last item of business was choosing the site for the 1959 annual meeting. Kelowna won the honor without opposition.

Volunteer Firemen 'Overgrown Boys'

Prince George Mayor Carrie Jane Gray livened up the last hour of the convention by calling volunteer firemen "overgrown boys."

She made the statement during a prolonged debate on whether the UBCM should spend $2,000 for an actuarial study of possible methods to set up a pension fund for volunteer firemen.

"What I want to know is why volunteer firemen should get a pension," Mayor Gray said. "I've found that they become volunteer firemen only because they are overgrown boys. It's their entertainment."

An outcry of "no, no," from the delegates prompted her sharp rebuke:

"Don't be rude. I have the floor."

She continued that if volunteer firemen were to receive more fringe benefits then "I'd like to become one, too, and go roaring around on the fire trucks."

The convention finally adopted a compromise giving the executive power to study all possible approaches to a pension fund, and their effects.

Aldermen Barred in Labor Disputes

Victoria delegates overcame executive opposition to win adoption of a reslution seeking legislative changes to prevent an alderman from acting as a conciliation board member in a dispute involving another municipality.

The resolution was prompted by selection of Vancouver alderman Halford Wilson by Victoria firemen this summer as their representative on a board dealing with their pay dispute.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt argued against the executive's objection that there should be no restrictions on the choice of conciliation board members.

He said an alderman who had agreed to a certain pay rate for employees of his municipality might be influenced in considering the merits of a pay dis-

B.C. Skiers Now Figured At 125,000

The British Columbia government has counted the number of skiers in the province and come up with a total of 125,000.

The information will be used in charting winter plans for the department of recreation and conservation.

Recreations Minister E. C. Westwood who issued the survey report, says 65,000 of the wooden blade artists live in Vancouver area and 16,000 on Vancouver Island.

The mountains of North Vancouver attract the heaviest concentration of skiers.

Half of B.C. skiers have taken up the sport in the last five years or less; 25 per cent ski once a week during the snow season; 50 per cent are casuals who ski once a month or less.

Men's silk hats, invented in Florence around 1750, were not made in England until early in the 19th century.

'Unholy Social War' Feared by Finlayson

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—Deane Finlayson, provincial Progressive Conservative leader, warned Friday the labor-management struggle could become an "unholy social war that would leave the country prostrated."

Addressing a North Vancouver Conservative Association meeting, he said the CCF is exploiting economic problems for their own political ends. They want to set themselves up as the champions of labor, with the Conservatives, Liberals and Social Credit on the other side of the fence, he said.

"We as Conservatives want to prevent that. We don't believe a class struggle is inevitable."

Mr. Finlayson said there was no question that the unions were a big factor in the country's economic plight. But there were other factors and it would be unwise for the Conservatives to make political capital out of a situation which requires "statesmanlike action and great thought."

FOLSOM DELAYS RULING ON NEGRO HANDYMAN

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Jimmy Wilson has entrusted his fate to a governor who has said he will never let a man die in the electric chair if he can find "some excuse" to spare his life. But the 55-year-old illiterate Negro under death sentence for a $1.95 robbery failed to get a decision from Governor James E. Folsom Friday. The governor adjourned a clemency hearing without indicating when he will issue the order which will send Wilson to his death or reduce his sentence to life imprisonment.

Our Rates Lower Claims BCE Boss

B.C. Electric today replied to the B.C. Power Commission's claim for cheaper rates with a statement of "average" charges showing more favorable rates for BCE customers.

B.C. Power general manager H. L. Briggs had told the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Nanaimo that the majority of BCPC's customers paid less than Victoria customers of BCE.

W. C. Mearns, BCE vice-president on the Island, said Mr. Briggs' remarks had been reported "in a manner which could leave the impression that there is an extensive differential between B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission rates."

He listed these charges as "average" per kilowatt hour for BCE customers: Residential 2.1 cents; commercial, 2.8 cents; power, .987 cents.

Comparable BCPC rates, he said were: Residential, 2.4 cents; commercial, 2.8 cents; Power, 1.8 cents.

"Mr. Briggs is quoted," said Mr. Mearns, "as reporting his own bill in Victoria, using 300 killowat hours for the purpose. His consumption, however, is considerably more than 300. Based on his actual consumption, his bill in Victoria was less in the past year than it would have been in Nanaimo."

All-Time Safety Run At James Island Plant

An all-time safety record has been established by the James Island plant of Canadian Industries Limited, works manager R. B. Carpenter said Thursday.

The plant has gone 1,500,000 man-hours without an injury. This, by way of illustration, is equivalent to one man working continuously without accident since the reign of Richard Coeur de Lion eight centuries ago.

Workmen's Compensation Board officials say the record exceeds any established on the basis of allowing three days' absence from work before an injury is counted.

The James Island record was based on the more stringent system of the National Safety Council.

The unprecedented accident-free stretch started in 1953.

Sir Joseph Paton, Scottish painter who died in 1902, was also a poet and songwriter.

Times Honor Carrier

Each day this month The Times honors one of its "junior merchant" carrier boys who have demonstrated qualities of leadership and application to their endeavors. Today's candidate is:

NEIL DUCKWORTH

Neil

A recent 1958 Ace Sales winner, Neil Duckworth has already won The Times Carrier Trip to Vancouver and a good chance of winning the six-day all-expense paid trip to Disneyland.

Neil is a Grade 7 student at S. J. Willis and is planning on a future college education. He is interested in such sports as football, basketball, swimming and baseball, and is looking forward to watching a few of the World Series games on television when they begin next Wednesday.

Neil's current hobbies are saving match box folders and building model airplanes. He has also started a savings account which he is quite proud of.

His mother, Mrs. Grace Duckworth, is a member of the PTA and with her husband, Ben, feels that paper routes are invaluable for growing boys, who learn early in life the principles of good business.

The Duckworths, along with their three children, reside at 1109 Finlayson Street and are very proud of having their son chosen today's Times Honor Carrier.

Balloon Goes Up On Chest Monday

The Community Chest campaign train gets into high gear in the next four days after several weeks of chugging preparation for the long $300,000 haul.

On Sunday, 2,500 canvassers will watch a film, "Carve Her Name With Pride," and get last-minute encouragement from chairman Justin Harbord, at the Odeon Theatre.

On Monday, the campaign officially gets under way when Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross cuts the string releasing the Chest balloon outside the Empress Hotel at 11 a.m., to be followed by a parade with band of army, air force and navy personnel.

FRENCH REFERENDUM SUNDAY

(See Alsa Page 3)

PARIS (UPI)—Algerian Nationalists blew up an acetylene warehouse today in a sabotage campaign that increased in intensity just 24 hours before the nation votes on the new constitution.

The French, determined to let nothing interfere with the referendum Sunday, guillotined an Algerian Moslem convicted of murder.

The convict, Benil Ben Abdullah Bouguerea, who killed a pro-French Moslem, was executed at La Sante Prison. He was the first Moslem executed inside France since the start of the Algerian rebellion four years ago.

But it did not deter the rebel campaign in metropoiltan France.

A series of mysterious fires broke out in Lyons. Rebels threw gasoline bombs into a textile factory in Aubervilliers but failed to set the plant afire. Another bomb placed against the home of a policeman in Bordeaux was discovered before it exploded.

Police said Algerian agents exploded several plastic charges in a warehouse in the northern suburbs. Acetylene tanks exploded inside and the building collapsed. Hundreds of window panes were shattered over a wide area.

100 mph Winds Cause Havoc; Worse to Come

(From Times News Services)

WILMINGTON, N.C.—Winds of Hurricane Helene howled ashore in southeastern North Carolina late this morning at speeds above 100 miles an hour.

First reports told of mounting damage but no deaths.

Advance warning from the weather bureau and civil defence authorities had emptied the danger areas of practically all residents. Thousands fled inland or checked in at numerous emergency shelters.

Twelve-foot waves and flood tides pounded ashore in advance of the storm's centre which packed winds up to 125 miles an hour.

City docks at Southport, port town 30 miles south of Wilmington, washed away, the weather bureau said.

HOUSES COLLAPSE

The highway patrol said a few houses at Kure Beach, east of Wilmington, had collapsed under the wind force.

Far to the south, hurricane Ilsa built up into a mammoth hurricane with winds of 140 miles an hour, some 435 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. No land area was in its immediate path.

Helene's centre, swinging on a more northerly course, was poised late this morning below the mouth of the Cape Fear River, and was expected to roll across the low country around Southport and Wilmington in early afternoon.

15-FOOT WAVES

Seas with waves 15 feet high were reported at the Coast Guard station on Oak Island, off Southport.

Gusts blew debris through the streets. Authorities broadcast warnings for residents to stay off the streets. A newsman reported the rear window of his car was blown out by a strong gust.

Helene, making the classic turn of Atlantic hurricanes to the north, altered course in the night, apparently sparing South Carolina coastal lands the brunt of her full blow.

IKE'S NEW AIDE

Maj.-Gen. Wilton B. Persons, 62, a native of Montgomery, Ala., today was named by President Eisenhower as his chief assistant to succeed the resigned Sherman Adams. Persons had been deputy assistant to Eisenhower since Sept. 5, 1953.

UN China Debate Opposed by U.K.

WASHINGTON (AP)—British officials are reported here to be advocating a long-range compromise settlement of the Formosa dispute under which Nationalist-held coastal islands would go eventually to Communist China.

The British government also was reported today to be advising the United States against bringing the Formosa crisis before the United Nations in the immediate future. London officials were said to believe the best hope for a peaceful settlement lies in diplomatic negotiations rather than UN debate.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said today that public mail on the Quemoy situation is running heavily against the administration's decision to help the Chinese Nationalists retain the offshore islands.

A Washington dispatch by E. W. Kenworthy says about 80 per cent of the mail directly criticizes the administration's policy, or expresses fear that the policy will lead to war. The rest praises President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles for "standing up to the Communists."

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese convoys cracked the Communist blockade of the Quemoys twice today.

Some 50 amphibious LVTs waddled ashore through a pattern of waterspouts thrown up by probing Red Chinese artillery as worsening weather in the Formosa Strait led increasingly to the belief that a major Communist attack in the Formosa area is unlikely, at least for the next few months.

ROBOTS ON THE LOOSE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A noted classicist defined a "robot" Friday for a symposium at the University of British Columbia.

Rhys Carpenter, emeritus professor of classical archaeology at Bryn Mawr College, said a robot is an "ingenious mechanism of wheels and crankshafts, actuated by cylinders, spark plugs, timers and carburetors—attached to a highly complex neuroganglian device which pushes pedals in and out and turns a wheel to left and right amid traffic."

"This last piece of mechanism being colloquially known as a licensed driver."

East Indian Swims Channel

DOVER, Eng. (UPI) — Calcutta lawyer Mihir Sen, 29, became the first Asian and the first East Indian to swim the English Channel from England to France today.

Sen was in the water 14 hours 45 minutes on his cross-channel swim through a southwest gale and thick fog.

2 YOUTHS SCALE FENCE IN OAKALLA ESCAPE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police were still searching today for two youthful escapees from Oakalla Prison Farm in suburban Burnaby.

William Harley, 19, and Herbert Roemlein, 21, broke through iron bars in a workshop and scaled the prison fence Friday night. Both were serving six-month sentences.

Seven prisoners have escaped from Oakalla in the last month. Five of them are still at large.

City Stench Bomb Blamed on Mills

Up-Island pulp mills were suspected this morning as sources of a lusty stench that pervaded the city.

Immediately suspect was the B.C. Electric gas plant, but after a few complaints had been received, the gas foreman went to work and found to his satisfaction that his plant was not responsible.

He blamed the pulp mills, and weatherman William Mackie said weather conditions were such that "attar of pulp" could be noted here.

Winds were light and from the north, he said, and there was an inversion—a condition where cold air is on the earth's surface and warm air aloft—that acts like a lid and keeps pollution factors from dispersing into the upper air.

B.C. Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton is 33 air miles from the city centre, and Harmac mill near Nanaimo is 54 miles away.

WIRE BRIEFS

Yacht Aground

English Horse Wins Stake Event

ASCOT, Eng. (AP) — Major Portion won the one mile Queen Elizabeth II Stakes today—England's first success in the race.

The three previous races all had been won by French-bred horses.

LONDON (Reuters) — Luton Town, only unbeaten soccer team in the English League First Division, jumped from fourth to first place today with a 4-1 victory over Preston North End at Luton.

After a 1-1 first half, Luton turned on the pressure to gain the only win among the top eight clubs in the division.

Defeated Preston, which had moved to the top with a mid-week victory, dropped to a second-place points tie with Bolton Wanderers and Chelsea, but Preston had the better goal average.

CHELSEA MOVES UP

Bolton was defeated 2-1 today by Burnley, while Chelsea jumped all the way from ninth place with a 4-1 victory over Nottingham Forest. It was Chelsea's fifth straight home win.

A goal by free-scoring centre forward David Herd gave Arsenal which was lying third in the table, a 1-0 interval lead at Leeds, but the Yorkshire club, helped by a penalty, fought back to win 2-1 and register its first home win of the season.

The day's biggest crowd, 62,812, watched the "local derby" between Manchester City and Manchester United, which ended in a 1-1 tie.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Almighty God, Thy kingdom is everlasting and the only assurance of peace and happiness for mankind. Strengthen our hearts to pray and to work for its coming. Although in these troubled days of confusion it may seem to be far away, help us to set up Thy kingdom in our own lives. Transform our doubt into faith, our weakness into strength, our fainthearted-ness into courage. Then we shall walk joyfully in the way of the kingdom of the Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Typhoon Deaths May Reach 2,000

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—The death toll from typhoon Ida mounted today as disaster reports trickled in from vast flooded areas of central Japan. Police listed 234 fatalities and 1,300 persons missing.

Casualty figures will be higher, police said, when communications are restored with Izu Peninsula, 70 miles below Tokyo. There the Kano River, swollen by 23 inches of rain, slashed at a dozen villages and washed two out to sea.

Unconfirmed Japanese press lists pushed the number of dead and missing to 2,000.

U.S. military forces dispatched equipment and men to help in evacuation and relief work in the stricken capital and elsewhere.

At the height of the storm, 100-mile winds lashed Izu and Tokyo Bay, with gusts up to 80 miles an hour in the city proper. An all-time record 15½ inches of rain fell, destroying or washing away more than 1,000 homes. About 500,000 houses were flooded to varying extent.

The devastation outside the capital was illustrated by these figures from the police . . . roads washed out in 871 places . . . 224 bridges smashed or swept away . . . 1,875 landslides. In some of the latter, whole families were reported buried.

Little Rock Integration Vote Heavy

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Election officials predicted a heavy vote in today's referendum on the racial integration of Little Rock schools.

The ballot offered a choice of allowing Negroes to attend all schools in the Little Rock school district—or none.

There are about 42,000 eligible voters, including 8,000 Negroes.

Governor Orval Faubus, who closed the city's four high schools two weeks ago in a move to avoid immediate integration, Friday night assailed factions favoring integrated schools but said he was not trying to influence the election.

"The decision is yours," he said in a televised speech. "As your public servant, I will abide by your decision."

SATELLITE CONSUMED BY FRICTION

WASHINGTON (AP)—The defence department said today the navy Vanguard satellite launched Friday did not go into orbit and burned up flying in the earth's atmosphere.

An announcement said in part: "After one or at most a limited number of passes around the earth at very low altitudes, the vehicle re-entered the earth's atmosphere and was consumed by friction."

People and Things

BOSCO, Italy—The 700 Roman Catholic villagers of this mountain hamlet in southern Italy have threatened to turn Protestant unless they get back their parish priest.

The trouble started three months ago when Bosco's priest, Don Francesco Saverio lo Sardo, was transferred.

The villagers sent a deputation to the bishop of Policastro, asking his return.

Their pleas were in vain, so they launched a protest strike against church services.

Don Francesco's successor, Don Mario Carpentieri, tried his best to patch things up but has not been too successful.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Donna Sue Turner, a child bride at the age of 10 and now mother of an infant daughter, wants a divorce.

The girl, who observed her 12th birthday Aug. 7, charged in a suit filed Friday that Charles William Turner, deserted her shortly after their baby's birth last June 4 and has failed to provide either a home or support for them.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) —Henry and Blanche Holloway, octogenarian hermits of low-lying Goat Island, just north of Charleston, said Friday they planned to sit out hurricane Helene either in their dugout cave or in a tree.

VISITORS TO CANADA in mid-October will be Sir Grantley Adams, prime minister of the West Indies Federation, above, and Lady Adams. They will be in Canada for 10 days as guests of Governor-General Massey.

Missile Battalion to Formosa

SEATTLE (AP)—The army disclosed Friday night a guided missile battalion has sailed for Formosa.

It was identified as the Second Missile Battalion (Nike Hercules) of the 71st Artillery, but the sailing time and the strength of the group were not divulged. A battalion normally numbers from 600 to 900 men.

The unit had been stationed briefly at Fort Lawton here before embarking for the Far East. It is the first of its kind to be sent to the Orient, an army spokesman said.

EMERGENCY CALLS
Your directory has spaces on the first white page where Emergency numbers can be written. Be sure to write in these numbers for quick easy reference.

DIRECTORY
Your new Centennial Directory, listing all new Victoria and District telephone numbers, should now be in your home. If you have not yet received your new directory, notify our Business Office—phone 4-8011 (after Sunday, Sept. 28, call EVergreen 4-8011). The new directory becomes effective September 28. Please do not use your old directory after that date.

DIALING
If you should happen to dial a number and forget to dial the prefix name letters you will hear the "no-such-number" tone—a continuous tone, rising and falling in pitch. If you hear this tone, please consult your new directory and call again. Remember—you must dial TWO LETTERS and FIVE FIGURES.

WHY THIS NUMBER CHANGE IS NECESSARY

The change to what is called "2-5" numbering—two letters followed by five figures—will bring Victoria and District telephone numbers in line with similar changes now being effected in British Columbia and all parts of the North American continent. Its purpose is to establish a uniform pattern of telephone numbering which will eventually allow most subscribers to dial almost any phone in North America without requiring the services of an operator.

Progressive improvement in service is the Telephone Company's constant aim. The introduction of "2-5" numbering to Victoria and District is an important part of our objective.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Commence new plantings of conifers, deciduous trees, shrubs and heathers, and continue the planting of perennial flowering plants.

Sweet peas for next year may be sown now in a prepared trench. Choose a south or east exposure.

Sow hardy annuals outdoors in prepared, weed-free soil — alyssum, calendula (Scotch or pot marigold), clarkia, godetia, larkspur, centaurea (bachelors-button or cornflower), viscaria, nigella.

Dig dahlias as soon as frost spoils flowers and foliage.

Commence potting of suitable varieties of tulips and narcissi for indoor winter flowers.

Potted azaleas indoors like their leaves syringed with tepid water.

July sowings of vegetables should be used constantly as they attain usable size. Beets and turnips become woody if left too long in the ground.

Parsnips and leeks should remain in the ground for use later in winter. Frost improves quality and flavor.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Ant Activities in Garden Cause 'Mystery' Damage

By JACK BEASTALL

There are many different kinds of ants, all social insects living in colonies and possessing remarkable intelligence. Of all the insects we encounter in the garden, the customs of the ants are most like those of human beings.

Tiny as they are, they build cities in which thousands can live, lay out and build roads and are experts at tunnelling and they store their food in granaries. Woods ants use pine needles as boards and rafters when they construct their dwellings, which are often several feet high and across.

Jack

On the great plains of Australia are large mounds of mud from six to ten feet high which serve as cities for millions of ants.

There are many lessons we could learn from the tenacious, determined and industrious ant. They are the busiest little creatures—but never too busy to attend a picnic!

While a book on ants makes fascinating reading by the winter fireside, ants in the garden always lead to trouble.

Not only is their presence a nuisance, their cities are a maze of tunnels which spread in all directions, undermining the roots of plants and causing symptoms in the upper growth which are sometimes difficult to classify.

The most insidious of their human-like activities is the collection of herds of aphides from which they extract a sweet substance called honeydew, in much the same way as we keep herds of cows for supplying milk.

CHOICE PASTURE

Either eggs or the full-grown wingless aphids are collected, and they are maintained on such as our garden beans.

With all the care bestowed on a dairy herd by humans, the ants maintain their aphid herds, seeing that they are pastured, protected from enemies, and regularly "milked."

When the pasture fails, such as the host plants becoming too mature for feeding, the entire aphid herd is transported to a new feeding ground, thus spreading virus diseases and crippling the young growths in another part of the garden.

Virus diseases in plants are recognized by a yellowish-green striping in the foliage and color breaking in the flowers, and the incidence is increasing at an alarming rate in cultivated plants.

CARRY VIRUS

Our present knowledge of virus diseases is pitifully small, but the fact has been established that aphids which pierce the plant tissue to obtain their food, are responsible for transmitting a virus from infected to healthy plants.

Our first point of attack on the aphid population is the ant hills in which they are harbored and protected. Destruction of an ant colony will rid the garden of thousands of aphids.

During the warm fall days as the plants are dying down we are better able to spot the ant hills and treat them.

The old kettle-of-boiling-water method is still in use, although not as effective nor as rapid in action as a spray dilution of chlordane or dieldrin, either of which may be poured over the hills in fairly large quantities and sprayed over ant highways and byways. Watch carefully for nurse ants scampering away with eggs when the hills are being treated.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—Can you suggest any quick way to paint a wire fence?—J.K.

A—Easiest way we've found is to use a well-napped paint roller. Use brush at hard-to-get-at under-surfaces near posts.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q—(1) Please advise treatment for brown spots in lawn which also has moss in it. Something almost like smoke arises from the holes when we pull a few blades of grass.

(2) What causes mildew on Michaelmas daisy foliage and what is the treatment? Mrs. E. E., Fairfield.

A—(1) As in "Quizzing the Gardener" of Saturday, Sept. 6, we advise you to obtain, free of charge, "Lawns, Planting and Maintenance," Mimeo 153, Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton, B.C.

The apparent "smoke" arising from the holes is characteristic of fungus spores when disturbed.

(2) Mildew on Michaelmas daisies (perennial asters), phlox and some other plants has been found to be more prevalent on these subjects during a period of rainy, cool weather immediately following an extremely dry period. A dusting of flowers of sulphur, or a copper fungicide spray, will help control the condition. The plants will grow out of the mildew, and the roots will not be affected by a light attack.

Man Who Shot 'Best Friend' Goes to Jail

(From CP Dispatches)

PRINCE RUPERT — Orrin Kenneth Douglas, 23, of Kitimat, B.C., who ended a love triangle involving his wife by shooting a man he described as his "best friend," was sentenced Friday to 4½ years imprisonment on a reduced charge of manslaughter.

Mr. Justice Harry Brown passed sentence immediately, commenting that he didn't know "whether proper justice would be done."

The young plumber's helper admitted the shotgun slaying last June 15 of his neighbor, Reginald Sinclair Young, 27, after Young had declared his love for Douglas' wife and told Douglas he "wasn't man enough" to do anything about it.

The jury took only 26 minutes to reach its verdict, after a four-day trial.

Mr. Justice Brown told Douglas that "I must tell you before passing sentence that of all the disquieting and disturbing things that have happened in this case the one I found the most frightening was this:

"I intruded myself into the case this morning to ask you that if you were back with your wife and a similar situation arose would you kill again?

"Your terrifying answer was "I don't know."

TRUCKER ESCAPES

VANCOUVER — Ronald Vaughan, 31, escaped from the cabin of his truck 50 feet below the surface of Burrard Inlet here Friday, and swam to safety.

Vaughan told police he was passing another truck on a causeway. Suddenly his vehicle slid sideways into the water.

He plunged to the bottom of the inlet with his truck, but suffered no more than a few scratches.

7 YEARS FOR BANDIT

VANCOUVER—Bandit Robert Lewis Snyder, who thought Canada "an easy place to score," was sentenced Friday to seven years in the penitentiary for attempted robbery.

The 30-year-old "graduate" of California's San Quentin prison, who had just finished reading a "completely unfavorable" probation report made on him, tossed the document over his shoulder to a policeman and walked from the dock when Magistrate Oscar Orr passed sentence.

Snyder, who previously told detectives in a statement that he intended to rob a bank next, was charged with attempted robbery of Firbanks Jewelers a week ago.

He said he had been told by friends in Los Angeles that "Canada was an easy place to 'score'" (commit robberies).

MONUMENT TO FOLLY

VANCOUVER — Industrialist Raymond Pitre said here Friday the provincial labor relations board has rejected his appeal against certification of the United Steelworkers Union as bargaining agent for 25 employees in his million-dollar plastics plant in suburban Burnaby.

Pitre announced several weeks ago that he was closing down his Sierra Development Company plant because he couldn't operate his employee profit-sharing scheme with the union certified in the plant.

In announcing that the labor relations board has reaffirmed its previous decision, Pitre said "this million-dollar plant is a monument to the folly of justice of the Labor Relations Act. If the act is not amended to make it democratic I shall not ever again invest a penny in B.C. industry."

TRADE CONFERENCE ROUNDUP

Closed Ranks to Fight Reds' Major Development

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

MONTREAL—A competition between Canada and the United Kingdom developed during the two-week conference here that saw each country striving to appear to make the most concessions towards freer trade, but at the same time not giving away too much.

Despite the competition, or perhaps because of it, the Commonwealth emerged from the discussion trade and economic affairs, bound more closely together than when the delegates first took their chairs around the table.

Two other forces worked to push the Commonwealth countries more closely together. They were the United States and the Communist bloc.

The U.S. action in restricting imports on lead and zinc brought angry protests from Commonwealth countries directly hit and sympathetic response from other Commonwealth nations.

The collapse of the world price of tin, due to manipulations by the Russians, came during the conference and served to impress on the delegates the need to stand together against the economic offensive being waged by the Sino-Russian bloc.

In the final communique apprehension was expressed about the Communist activities in the world trade picture. It was agreed some understanding must be reached with the Sino-Soviet area to stabilize commodity prices.

The fact that the Commonwealth countries, including the members from the Far East, had closed ranks to present a strong front to the Communist nations was regarded here as one of the most significant developments out of the conference.

A hardening of opinion against the Communist bloc was apparent on all sides, arising out of the disruption of world trade patterns.

But as the talks progressed, it was the "give and take" between the British and Canadians that captured the headlines. Official spokesmen stressed, however, that there was "no bargaining."

This was not a conference for "bargaining," just for some hard "negotiating," briefing officers told the press, more than once.

WEEKLY ROUNDUP

Profit-Taking Hit Canadian Markets

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock market prices bounced around during five sessions of unimpressive trading this week and showed little change from the previous week.

Each time the markets would attempt to rally, profit-taking knocked prices back. Some key industrials managed to scrape up small gains but in general the markets showed little change.

A few individual issues turned active after new developments but trading was at its lowest ebb in three months as speculators withdrew to the sidelines.

Settlement of Ontario's brewery strike caused some firmness among brewery stocks.

A. V. Roe Canada was the most active industrial on the Toronto board. Trading 54,456 shares, Roe lost $1 at $13.25 over the five sessions. The stock posted a moderate gain Tuesday on speculation that the Dominion government would allow the company to manufacture some of its Arrow jet planes.

OPTIMISM VANISHES

The optimism soon vanished the following day, however, after Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced the government would withhold its decision on the Arrow's future until next March.

At the opening of Wednesday's trading Roe dropped from $14.87½ to $12.87½ and traded more than 15,000 shares in the first hour. It firmed to $13.25 later in the day and closed at the same price Friday.

International Nickel lost $2.25 on the week following the start of a strike by the company's employees Wednesday morning.

Canadian markets again played follow-the-leader with Wall Street, going up when the New York board went up and following it lower on a few occasions.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up .19 to 488.33; golds off .66 to 82.88; western oils off 2.26 to 135.30; base metals off 1.18 to 166.24. Of 945 issues traded, 277 advanced, 484 declined and 184 were unchanged.

Index changes at Montreal: Banks up .74 to 52.29; utilities up 1.7 to 149.7; industrials up .6 to 284.7; combined up .9 to 239.7; papers (new) down 7.2 to 414.5; papers (old) down 19.12 to 1276.60; golds up .30 to 73.68.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Shoppers Hit Stores With Folding Money

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—Business moved from summer into fall this week with continued signs of recovery.

Shoppers with plenty of folding money jammed the United States department stores. Investors and speculators gave the stock market one of its busiest trading sessions of the year. Sales on the New York Stock Exchange this week totalled 18,481,130 as price averages pushed into high ground.

Steel output and petroleum production set 1958 highs.

Even the long-depressed railroad industry produced some cheerful news: Red ink on railroad ledgers was gradually giving way to black, and freight car-loadings were picking up briskly.

Much less cheerful was the latest word from Detroit where a large segment of the auto industry was hobbled by strikes just as production of the new 1959 cars was about to get rolling.

45,000 MEN IDLE

At week's end General Motors reported 45,000 men idle at 19 plants. Ford closed its huge River Rouge steel works. When strikes against its suppliers cut off the flow of parts, American Motors flagged down production of Ramblers.

Chrysler Corporation, also beset with labor troubles, postponed the introduction of its 1959 DeSoto, Chrysler and Imperial cars. Instead of bowing Oct. 16 as originally planned, the new models won't appear in dealers' showrooms until Oct. 24.

When would the automotive giant come to life again? Key to the situation seemed to rest in the hands of the top United Auto Workers chief, Walter Reuther.

Labor-Management 'Peace Parley' Founders on Question of Agenda

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. government - sponsored "Peace Parley" between management and labor blew up Friday and no plans for resumption of talks were announced.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks announced the failure "with regret."

The abrupt ending to the highly touted government effort to get management and labor together on the province's industrial strife problems came when labor insisted the conference should be better organized.

"We have the submissions of both sides and the government will consider them," Mr. Wicks said.

He added that he found labor's position "most regrettable."

The parley foundered on the question of agenda. It opened behind closed doors Thursday with two of the most powerful employer organizations in the province asking for a new, restrictive labor code to "arrest" a condition bordering on industrial chaos."

Its emphasis, they said, should be on regulating trade unions rather than on protecting them as now is the case.

The two organizations were B.C. Division, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and the Industrial Association of B.C.

The new act, they said, should embody "right-to-work" laws; should restrict strikes and lockouts where public health and safety are involved; should require unions to be incorporated and sueable; and should be enacted at the next session of the legislature.

WRITTEN BRIEFS

Their requests were contained in written briefs read Thursday to a 90-minute meeting by Oscar R. Olson, CMA chairman, and W. C. Mainwaring, vice-president of the B.C. Electric.

Labor, expecting a three-way exploratory conference rather than presentation of formal briefs to the government, was given until 10 a.m. Friday to come up with its answer—in writing.

But labor refused to enter a "war of briefs" and asked Mr. Wicks to convene a broad conference on labor-management relations.

No solution can come from a meeting "where participants merely emphasize their own special interests and request legislation changes," a labor spokesman replied.

Lack of a proper agenda for the government's closed-door sessions, not anything management said, was the target of labor's answer.

LABOR COMPLAINT

There was no indication given by the government prior to the parley on what approach it expected, labor complained.

"Status of labor-management relations in the province," the subject of the parley, should be tackled in an "organized, joint conference with labor and management and other directly interested groups under the sponsorship of the government," labor said.

Either side can go straight to the government at any time with recommendations for changes in legislation, the reply pointed out.

"If we are going to seriously tackle the problem of management-labor unrest in B.C., we must in detail examine all the causes and factors, including economic and political, which culminated in this year's serious unrest."

Lineup at the parley included 14 management representatives from all major industries in the province, six from labor including a top official of the Canadian Congress of Labor, and four—including Mr. Wicks — from the B.C. labor department.

STRONG CRITICISM

Longest, hardest-hitting submission was Mr. Mainwaring's, a 27-page, 12-part criticism of unions, their leaders and policies, the present Labor Act, its administration, the government.

It said:

1. Industrial strife in B.C. has frightened away investment capital, essential to continued development and full employment.

2. Unreasonable union demands are pricing B.C. out of its export market.

3. Militant leaders of organized labor in the province are making restrictive legislation not merely necessary but inevitable.

Mr. Olson's brief was aimed more at the legislative changes the CMA feels must be enacted.

He stressed:

1. Unions today possess a more formidable monopoly power over whole industries than ever existed in the business world.

2. They must be made legally responsible, subject to the same regulations as business.

3. Their "privileged status" and "legal immunities" must be removed.

Canada Boosts Defence Orders In Britain 50%

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada likely will boost her defence orders in Britain by about 50 per cent this year, Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley has estimated.

The quiet-spoken Irishman said in an interview that Canada's defence orders in Britain totalled about $13,500,000 in the last fiscal year.

This year they may rise to about $20,000,000, with orders increasing mainly in the field of electronic and electrical equipment for new destroyers.

LIMIT SEEN

"We'll do what we can to encourage the placing of orders in Britain but, of course, there is a limit to what we can do, for much of our defence planning is integrated with that of the United States, using similar equipment."

While thinking in terms of orders in Britain, and other Commonwealth countries, too, Canada also has been interested in the possible sales of her own defence equipment.

Bank clearings in Victoria dropped sharply this week. Clearings of $9,041,601 were reported compared with $9,533,882 for the same period last year.

New Steel Plant For Regina Area

REGINA, Sask. (UPI)—J. W. Sharp, president of Interprovincial Steel Corp., Ltd., has announced plans for construction of a $15 millor steel plant with a maximum capacity of about 100,000 tons a year.

Sharp said the primary market for the plant would be the three prairie provinces, with B.C. expected to offer a good potential for plate, structural steel and skelp.

Construction on a 60-acre site north of Regina is expected to start in about three weeks with completion scheduled for late next year or early in 1960.

Canadian Vickers Limited

In common with other businesses engaged in shipbuilding and heavy engineering and as forecast by the directors in their statement accompanying the accounts for the year ended November 30, 1957 activity in the works during the current year has continued to decline and provide margins too narrow. Accordingly the directors have reduced the dividend for the quarter ended September 10, 1958 to 25 cents per share.

AROUND THE WORLD

By JOHN MANNING

University student John Manning of 3275 Ripon Rd., has taken a year off from classroom studies to "vagabond" around the world. The 21-year-old Victorian is writing his impressions of the places he is visiting and the things he is seeing.

INDIA—The dead man lay in the railway station, people passing by without even a glance. A dirty sheet lay over the body and flies were crawling on the sheet. I was with two French boys, we saw it at the same time and neither of us said much.

We had third-class tickets but there were so many Indians fighting and pushing their way onto those cars that we gave up and rode second class. The conductor never came. We got off at Madura still thinking about the dead man.

Compared to New Delhi, the town was like being in another world. I don't think the side streets were wide enough to let a car through. Holy cows wandered about looking fatter than the people themselves. For a few annas we hired a horse-drawn Tonga to take us about the town.

Naked in Street

Do you know what it is like to see such things as people wandering naked down the streets, with nothing but their hands outstretched for food and the children sitting in the doorways, their bodies aching with starvation? Or to see a blind man being led along or just standing the whole day somewhere and you wonder what he thinks about while he stands there?

A holy man sat under the shade of a sack awning, his begging bowl at his side. He wasn't begging, just sitting there glad to be away from the sun, his old head nodding in tired weariness.

All at once I felt sick of it all. So I left the French boys and went out onto the road where there was fresh air and fewer things to look at. The other two were to join me at the Taj Mahal that evening. An Austrian diplomat picked me up on his way to Bombay. Soon after the monsoons let down a torrent of rain which squelched the heat.

Emperor's Tomb

The Taj Mahal . . . As I came in past the outer wall of the gardens the rain stopped. The sun, for a brief few minutes, shone through an opening, sending its rays crashing down on the whiteness of this famous structure. It had a strange brilliance against the blackness of the clouds. There were few people inside. I caught the smell of a coal oil lamp and then saw a man with it. He took me down into the vault where are the tombs of the Mogul Emperor Shah Jehan and his wife. The lamp threw our shadows eerily against the ceiling and walls of the vault. The man talked in a whisper. His stubby finger pointed out the spot where one of the largest gems in the world had rested. Now it is in the crown of Queen Elizabeth.

Steady Rain

I waited until past the hour of darkness, the rain still coming down, but the French boys did not come. I found out later their train had been delayed because of floods. Our plan had been to wait until the guard had shut the main gates at midnight and then put our sleeping bags down on the grass. It was the time of the full moon, but the rain never let up. So I started back along the road towards Agra.

It was only a few minutes walking before I came to what I thought was an Indian Army camp. I went in. The commanding officer was a huge mountain of a man and with great laughter told me that I had come to a police camp. I asked him if there was a spare bunk in the barracks where I could put my sleeping bag down. He insisted that I stay in his own home.

U.K. Health Ministry Approves Hypnotism

LONDON (Reuters)—Hypnotism has become part of Britain's national health service. The health ministry ruled on Thursday that the government will pay the bill of a doctor who used hypnosis instead of an anaesthetic in a maternity case.

Killer-Lion Keeper Absolved of Blame

NANAIMO (CP) — German-born zookeeper Paul Hertel was absolved of blame Friday in the death of eight-year-old Maureen Vanstone, killed the day after a lioness escaped from Hertel's zoo last May 2.

An Assize Court jury returned a verdict of not guilty on a charge of criminal negligence after hearing evidence during a three-day trial here.

Little Maureen was clawed to death by a full-grown lioness, Fury, as she walked along a country road near here. The lioness was shot the same day by a posse.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of the B.C. Supreme Court told the acquitted man: "Here you see the workings of British justice at its best. Since you are new to this country you had better take precautions in the future."

Earlier, Hertel testified he had been told to "wait a minute" by someone on a party line when he attempted to warn nearby residents the lioness had escaped from his small private zoo.

'LADIES ON LINE'

Hertel said the appearance of Maureen Vanstone's brother at the zoo prompted him to try again to warn the Vanstone family.

"There were some ladies on the line when I made the call," he said.

The zoo-keeper testified they told him: "We'll be through in a minute—you can wait that long."

A second call five minutes later found another person on the line.

"That was the last call I made to the Vanstones, as I was called outside," he said.

AFRAID FOR DOGS

Hertel said he also phoned a cougar hunter who told him his dogs couldn't be used because the lioness might harm them.

"A second hunter said he would come, but had some work to do on his brakes," Hertel testified.

Earlier Hertel said he had always treated the lioness with kindness, and had not known his assistant struck the animal with a piece of wood when it escaped previously.

"This could upset her enough to make her act differently," Hertel said. He told the court he had been interested in animals since he was a child.

Surveyors Scan Courthouse Site

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Victoria's long-awaited new courthouse loomed mistily on the horizon today.

It is still a long way off but the start of surveys on the Cathedral Hill site by the B.C. public works department suggested a move towards actual construction.

Surveyors A. O. Noakes and his son Hugh, accompanied by chainman Dev Yates of Metchosin, moved onto the 600 by 300-foot site Friday and began taking measurements with a transit theodolite, a wye level and a rod.

A public works official said the surveyors had direct instructions to determine the exact boundaries and levels at the courthouse site.

They will also determine the amount of surface rock that will have to be excavated before the foundations can be laid.

Mr. Noakes — a practicing surveyor in Victoria for 49 years — said the survey of the whole block at Burdette Avenue will take three or four days.

After the preliminary survey, he and his son will report to the public works department and then return to the site for more intensive surveys.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said he could give no estimate of the size or cost of the new courthouse until the surveys are completed and the actual courthouse requirements are known.

These requirements include five courtrooms (replacing the three now operating at the old courthouse); a room for the examination of witnesses; a robing room for lady barristers; an extra janitor's room, and considerable storage space for legal and land registry documents.

At present a large percentage of these documents are stored in Heaney's warehouse across the way and in another warehouse some three miles distant.

It is possible, too, that personnel in the RCMP barracks on the Cathedral Hill site will have to be accommodated in the new building, but no decision on this has yet been reached.

There are two car parks on the new site which will have to be cleared before actual construction can begin and a number of trees will have to be cut down.

Mr. Noakes, Sr., said this site was surveyed 100 years ago by the Christ Church Cathedral Trust which then planned to build the cathedral there. But the cathedral was constructed instead on the opposite side of Quadra Street.

"This ancient survey may be of some use to us in determining how the new courthouse will be built," Mr. Noakes said.

"It will be designed by our own staff," the public works official said, "but some outside opinion may be sought."

Architect-planner W. D. Lougher-Goodey of the public works department has been put in charge of the work.

More than two years ago the B.C. cabinet approved a plan to spend between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 on the new building.

PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS ADVOCATED BY C OF C

Victoria Chamber of Commerce threw its weight behind the Community Chest campaign Friday when its directors voted unanimously to support the drive and endorsed the principle of payroll deduction.

The directors urged the 800 businesses represented in the chamber to "take the lead" in furthering the Chest's objectives.

'CARVE NAME WITH PRIDE'

Chest Pep Rally At Movie Sunday

By DAVID COWLISHAW

"Carve Her Name with Pride" is the title of a film to be shown at a Community Chest rally Sunday at the Odeon Theatre.

And "carve his and her name with gratitude" is what campaign manager Justin Harbord expects to be saying about the canvassers in the audience when they finish their money-collecting job in the drive that follows.

The campaign starts with a tri-service parade starting from the Empress Hotel Monday. The house-to-house canvass will cover two days, Oct. 15 and 16.

"When that $300,000 is gathered in," Mr. Harbord said Thursday, "the whole community will owe these good people (the volunteer canvassers) a vote of thanks."

The film, starring Virginia McKenna and Paul Scofield, is the story of a British agent in occupied France during the Second World War.

It is part of a show for the 2,500 Chest canvassers at the Odeon beginning at 8.30 p.m., which includes appropriate music by the 17-piece Naden band (courtesy Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner) and an outline by M. C. Hugh Curtis of the work and needs of the 20 Red Feather agencies.

His remarks will be dramatized by 20 placard-carrying members of Victoria Girls' Drill Team, and heightened by a three-minute talk by Mr. Harbord.

CAR-WASH STARTS

Canvassers who have not received, or have lost, invitations to the show will be able to get in by showing their "Buy Happiness" buttons.

Meanwhile, 100 Boy Scouts and 120 YWCA girls began washing windshields of cars parked downtown today. Cards left beneath wipers draw a parallel between the youngsters' "good deed" and that of persons who contribute to the Chest.

Button Note: Total of $31 has been "donated" to Chest funds by campaign workers fined $1 a time for not wearing their "Buy Happiness" buttons. Latest victims are Justin Harbord and Cliff Rutledge (chest publicist), "nicked" by an alert Red Feather official who spotted the buttonless pair during a recent plane flight to Vancouver.

Red Feather Pledge Made By Teachers

Greater Victoria school teachers have endorsed the Community Chest and recommended to association members that they support the drive "to the best of their ability."

Association president Walter Boyes told The Times Friday that the resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting in Oak Bay Junior High School Wednesday night.

In an earlier resolution, Mr. Boyes said, teachers approved a motion that they should be approached through their association, and "not by their employer," the School Board.

Discussion followed an appeal on behalf of the Chest by Stuart Keate, who said that "the amount given was a matter for the individual conscience."

He suggested that $2 a month on the payroll deduction plan would realize a donation "commensurate with your important role in the professional life of this community."

Mr. Boyes said that association members felt that Chest giving should be a spontaneous and private matter and that, within this framework, they were happy to endorse Chest objectives.

Harbord Attacks 'Penny-Pinchers'

Victoria's "well-educated and prosperous" people came under the fire of Community Chest campaign manager Justin Harbord Friday.

He charged them with forgetting that "a democracy is responsible for the welfare of all," adding that Red Feather critics are members of the "Pocketbook Protective League."

"What do you think is going to happen to democracy if you and I forget our responsibility to the needy?" Mr. Harbord asked a meeting of Victoria Lions Club.

"It is wrong for some of us — the well-educated and prosperous section of the community—to leave welfare up to the state, or to adopt a policy of 'Let George do it'."

AGENCIES JUSTIFIED

Mr. Harbord said criticism of inclusion of the YMCA, YWCA and Boy Scouts in the Chest was unjustified because they were worthwhile agencies doing a good job for the city's youth.

"Can you imagine a city without such youth facilities?" he asked. "This city should do more for these organizations—we are falling down on the job of providing more facilities for our youngsters."

The Chest official said similar criticism of the St. Vincent de Paul Society "because it is a Roman Catholic charity" was also undeserved.

"This agency serves the needy regardless of race or creed," he said. "There is no room for this prejudice."

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

Mr. Harbord said he "wouldn't mind making a bet" that the Chest would reach its $300,000 objective, urging canvassers to "be happy about the job and don't mumble in your beard."

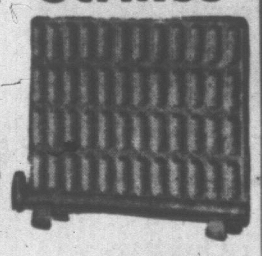

"It's a lot of nonsense that money can't buy happiness. You can buy happiness for yourself and others with your contribution to the Community Chest."

The Lions pledged full support for the campaign.

MARRIAGE BUREAU IF ENOUGH

How Many Lonely-Hearts?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Is Victoria in need of a marriage agency for "lonely hearts?"

Mrs. Elizabeth Shreiner, a housewife and a hospital employee, hopes to convince the city welfare committee Monday there is a big need for such an agency.

The committee is meeting to study her application for a licence to operate a marriage bureau.

Committee's decision will depend largely on whether Mrs. Shreiner can prove there are plenty of men and women who are in need of permanent partners to make their lives brighter and happier.

The dark-haired German-born mother of two children, in her 30s, is confident she can do this, providing, of course, the city fathers will listen to her story.

"I've made a study of the situation," she said. "And I found there is a large group of lonely people in Victoria who want to marry, but can't find suitable partners."

The majority of women in Victoria yearning for husbands, she said, were between the age of 28 and 36. They were quite numerous and were in need of some assistance.

As for men, there were both young and old seeking wives.

She got the idea of starting a marriage agency when she saw many lonely patients in the two local hospitals.

"It was pitiful to see them lonely, neglected and without any lovely companions," she said. "I decided I would do something about it."

GREEKS STARTED

There was nothing new about marriage agencies, Mrs. Shreiner explained. The Greeks started them 2,000 years ago and since then agencies have existed in all countries in Europe. There is one in Vancouver and a few in cities of eastern Canada.

England, she said, had the most efficient marriage agencies.

"The reason why some men never get married is because they are too shy or are too busy to go out wife-hunting," she said. "In some cases it is psychological."

"The purpose of a marriage agency is to introduce, with a view to marriage, persons who desire to find matrimonial partners," she said. "It works out well for most applicants."

She explained that an applicant may be introduced to several women before he finds his suitable partner.

TRY, TRY AGAIN

"Some may have as many as 50 tries before love blossoms," she said. "They click if they have something in common."

Mrs. Shreiner said an agency does not accept a man who cannot support a wife.

"We also wouldn't deal with men who are looking for wives to support them," she said. "There are plenty of these around."

All applications, she said, are treated as strictly confidential.

Mrs. Shreiner said her proposed agency has the support of a clergyman and some doctors.

Two years ago, the committee turned down a similar application on the grounds there was no need for one here.

"Of course," she said, "they can always change their mind."

OUR VERY OWN ISLAND DIGEST

From: Our Very Own Island Editor to Our Very Own Correspondents.

Urgent you reply soonest what news upcoming you unheard from months why? something must be happening reply sooner than soonest.

LUNCHSVILLE, V.I.—I am very sorry I have not been able to send you any news for so long. I have almost had news on several occasions, but it seems something always happens to spoil it.

For instance I was going to write a very long and good news story about the honeymoon plans of Miss Mary Dillbunk, who works down to the bank, and Mr. Claude Nails, who doesn't.

Work, that is.

Well, they planned a very wonderful honeymoon indeed, Las Vegas, Honolulu, the Riviera, Miami, Switzerland, and Joe's Drive In.

Unfortunately, on the night before the wedding, Mr. Nails inadvertently stepped on the burglar alarm down to the bank where Miss Dillbunk worked, and when he told the magistrate he was just making sure Miss Dillbunk hadn't left any loose change behind her, the magistrate didn't seem to believe him.

Mr. Nails is expected back in seven years less one day, but in the meantime, there is no honeymoon, so you can see I haven't any news to write about the honeymoon.

Everything else seems to go the same way around here, and I am truly sorry.

WOBBLE HILL, V.I.—The best news story of the summer season was to have been about the Gentennial Celebrations at Wobble Hill.

Wobble Hill was all set to have the centennial celebration of the century, when somebody looked up the records and found that Wobble Hill wasn't really 100 years old, it just felt that way.

CUTTING CORNERS, V.I.—I almost had a good news story for you last Wednesday, no, it must have been Thursday, Wednesday was meeting night for the Home Knitting and Seven-Eleven Society when Mrs. Fudd made six straight passes and became so excited she dropped 20 stitches, but it couldn't have been Thursday, that was the day the mail order catalogue arrived.

So maybe it was Tuesday but anyway the Volunteer Fire Brigade got an alarm to go and fight a fire down to Lem's barn, but the Chief was trying to prove he could count an honest 19 in cribbage and by the time the argument died down the fire did too so when the VF Brigade got to the barn there wasn't any barn it was all burned up so was Lem but what's the news in that?

Lem is always burned up over something.

WALLOPEM BEACH, V.I.—There is nothing much going on around here, this being the off-season like.

Of course, a dog caught the dogcatcher, but as I understand it, it is not news unless the dogcatcher BIT the dog.

GOON CENTRE, V.I.—I will have you understand, whenever there is news in Goon Centre, you will be the first to know.

The fact of the matter is, in Goon Centre all the important news revolves around Mr. Abner Goon, the mayor of Goon Centre, and its leading citizen.

Unfortunately, Mr. Goon has been incapacitated since last April, when he complained of finding lumps in mashed potatoes served by his wife and as a consequence suffered lumps on his head.

He is doing as well as could be expected, and when once again up and around will no doubt make some news for you.

(The above dispatch was writ by hand by your Goon Centre correspondent, Mrs. Abner Goon.)

ASK The TIMES

Q—Could you tell me where the 1960 summer and winter Olympics will be held, and what months? P.H.

A—The summer games will be held in Rome in July and August, and the winter games in Squaw Valley, Cal., Feb. 18 to 28.

Q—For many years the Liberals and Conservatives in Britain have been represented by two colors. What are they? E.F.T.

A—Blue represents the Conservatives; yellow the Liberals, and red the Labor party.

STRAIGHT FROM THE HORSE'S MOUTH—OUCH

Racing season or not, it pays to be wary of what comes from the horse's mouth.

Eight-year-old Roy Davies, for example, got a couple of horse-sized bites.

City police were told the boy was holding a riding pony near a James Bay supermarket when the horse suddenly jumped at him and bit his chest and arm.

E. W. Davies, 212 Menzies, took his son to hospital for medical attention.

Motorist Killed In Smash

Four Injured Near Sidney

An unemployed ex-navy man died near Sidney Friday night when his car crashed into another auto waiting to enter the highway.

The dead man, who police said was driving, is Donald Campbell, 32, of 35 Obed. He leaves a widow and three children.

Three occupants of the small car and one occupant of the second car were taken to Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney with assorted injuries.

A third car missed the crash by swinging into a driveway.

The injured are Gordon Alan Provins, 22, of HMCS Cayuga, with cuts, possible fractures and shock; Mrs. Jean Currie, 29, of 35 Obed, with face cuts, a tooth knocked out and bruises; Mrs. Gloria Hunt, 28, of 35 Obed, with a cut forehead and bruises.

HIGH SPEED

Mrs. Hunt was released after treatment as was Noreen Collins, 13, Scott Road, passenger in the other car, who had a broken nose and leg bruise.

Police said a high speed was indicated and that the pavement bore no trace of skidmarks.

Mrs. Harold Fox, who lives near the junction of Patricia Bay Highway and Lochside Drive, where the crash took place, said she had just returned from helping a Red Cross blood clinic at Sidney at 10 p.m.

The small car, coming from the direction of Victoria, turned off the highway and crashed into a car driven by Mrs. Isabel Collins, waiting to enter the highway from Lochside, Mrs. Fox said.

The impact sent the larger Collins car facing in the opposite direction to which it had been heading and caused an estimated $800 damage.

THROUGH WINDSHIELD

Sidney RCMP said the smaller car was demolished from the grille to the back of the driver's seat and repair was estimated at $1,400.

It appeared that one occupant of the car had been flung through the windshield, police said.

Cause of Campbell's death was believed to have been a crushed chest and punctured lung.

Another nearby resident, Dr. C. H. Hemmings, went to the scene of the crash to give medical aid and later attended at the hospital.

JUST OUT OF NAVY

Campbell's body was taken to Sands funeral home in Sidney.

Mrs. John Paxton, 1357 Pandora, mother of Mrs. Campbell, said Campbell was only recently out of the navy.

Campbell's children are a boy of three and two girls, aged 11 and six. He had served in the navy for 12 years. His home was Mossbank, Sask., about 40 miles south of Moose Jaw.

Cut in Cabinet Pay Urged to Curb Costs

Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory today called for a cutback in ministers' and MLAs' salaries to the 1956 level instead of reducing government spending on public services.

His suggestion came on the heels of a report that Premier Bennett has ordered most provincial government departments to slash their estimates by at least 5 per cent from 1958 levels, in order that the direct provincial debt can be paid off by 1960.

"If these cuts have been ordered, it is a disgraceful situation," said Mr. Gregory, as a storm of opposition to Premier Bennett's reported economy cuts mounted throughout the province.

The orders for a cutback are said to have followed several meetings of the B.C. treasury board in Premier Bennett's office.

Last year the orders from the treasury board were for a 15 per cent reduction.

"It would be nothing short of criminal to permit unnecessary human suffering merely to pay off the province's direct debt in time for the next general election," Mr. Gregory said.

"If the premier has found waste or extravagance in the government, let him lose no time in cutting it out. But it would be a great mistake to cut grants to school districts and municipalities, to cut back essential health services, and to lessen our efforts to rehabilitate young offenders just for the sake of economy.

"Two years ago," he said, "salaries and indemnities of ministers and MLAs were increased by about 40 per cent to the point where only a handful, if that many, ever earned so much money in their lives before.

'All Financial Sacrifice Taken Out'

"All financial sacrifice has been taken out of this type of public service, and I suggest that the best start we could make towards reducing the cost of government, without reducing efficiency, would be to cut back all salaries and indemnities to what they were in 1956."

In 1957 B.C. cabinet ministers' salaries were increased from $7,500 to $12,500, while indemnities (paid to both ministers and MLAs) rose from $3,500 to $5,000.

Premier Bennett gets a salary of $15,000 plus $5,000 for sessional indemnities.

"Premier Bennett is robbing the British Columbia Peter to pay the British Columbia Paul," said Victor W. Williams, organizer and vice-president of Victoria CCF Association.

"The unfortunate thing is that the people of B.C. are both Peter and Paul. Our provincial debt now is so tremendous that even Mr. Bennett is getting scared. People are becoming educated as to what contingent liabilities mean and recognize them as debt, whether direct or indirect.

"He is afraid this educational process will give them a fatal understanding of the dilemma into which he is leading this province both economically and politically.

"It is absurd to cut our social services in order to bolster the false claim that we shall be debt-free in 1960.

Publicity commissioner George I. Warren, D. D. Carmichael and K. J. Davis of Victoria were elected district vice-presidents of the Society of Notary Public of British Columbia at Harrison Hot Springs this week.

Strike Vote Sought by B.C. Engineers

Some 100 stationary engineers working for the B.C. government want to take a strike vote to back up demands for a 9 per cent wage boost.

The B.C. Government Employees' Association Friday agreed to conduct the vote, but will first seek a meeting with Public Works Minister W. N. Chant in an effort to reach agreement.

Involved are engineers working in the Parliament Buildings, court houses, Essondale, government hospitals, sanitariums and other government buildings throughout the province. Their job mainly is to stoke furnaces and do maintenance work.

Their present pay ranges from a starting rate of $265 per month for helpers to a high of $400. They consider a 9 per cent increase will bring them closer to rates paid by private industry.

Mr. Chant was not available for comment today.

The strike poll demand follows vote of a majority of civil servants, mostly office personnel for similar action, if necessary, to support demand for a 11 per cent pay increase.

Association officials said today they still had not received a reply to their letter to the government asking for a meeting with cabinet members to discuss pay.

PARITY WITH VANCOUVER

Milkmen Vote to Accept Two-Year Pay Boost Plan

A representative meeting of Victoria's 200 milkmen voted unanimously Friday to accept the majority report of a conciliation board recommending a $40-a-month wage boost over two years for plant workers, $43.75 over two years for drivers.

The terms, which represent parity with those recently awarded mainland milk workers, must be accepted by distributors before they go into effect.

The board report recommended drivers get a $25 monthly pay increase retroactive to April 1, to be boosted to $30 when a contract is signed.

From Jan. 1 they would receive an additional $13.75 until the agreement expires March 31, 1960.

Plant workers would get a $25 raise effective April 1 this year and a further $15 next April.

Women workers in the plants would receive half these amounts.

Drivers' pay will now average about $355 a month and plant pay will range up to $342.

The Weekend Round-Up

A few lines in this space about weird dreams, earlier this week, brought a cheery postcard from friend Graham McCall: "Don't let these dreams shake you.". . On the reverse side was a picture of his funeral chapel!. . . Eric McVicty of Imperial Oil reports good notices for his firm's filmed tribute to B.C.: "Most Lovely Country," made especially for the Centennial. . . Expected to be shown here shortly. . . Anyone interested in 100 acres of property, a ranch house, and a warm bathing beach on one of our better Gulf Islands? . . . A friend has told me how "a group of young men" who want a future retreat can obtain it for $38,000. . . Handicappers, beware: 'Deadly Ledley" had a 34 on the first nine at Oak Bay Wednesday. . . Archie McKinnon holidaying in California.

Phil Taylor, who is being given a testimonial dinner Monday night, is touting his friends onto a new golf ball with—of all things—a steel centre. . . It costs $1.25 but worth every cent of it, according to one Oak Bay member, who shaved two strokes off his score in his first attempt with the steelnik. . . Cliff Rutledge celebrated his 31st year at Eaton's yesterday. . . Staffers presented him with a caricature which made the blood run to his nose. . . Arthur Ash has already made the traffic committee of the town of La Jolla. . . Mike Pearson, who got a rousing ovation at UBC on Thursday, will be guest at a luncheon given by his great and good friends R. W. Mayhew and T. C. Davis on Monday.

Major Cuthbert Holmes, who is much too gentlemanly to needle anybody, evoked a few chuckles at a meeting Friday when he said: "It's just 51 years ago since I started my second year at Victoria College. Today, they still give a two-year course. Progress, gentlemen — progress!" . . . The N.Y. Times says that the late Mackenzie King "was one of those people who could not throw into the waste basket any piece of paper with writing on it" . . . SHOPPING GUIDE

By PENNY SAVER

Trouble with shopping around for bargains is that poor old Penny gets carried away and finds it terribly hard to save her money at all when she goes on shopping tours. So many lovely things in the shops for fall!

Take the red stockings for instance. Wouldn't go with anything Penny owns, but they look so lovely. In the box, they look a rather violent red, but on, they're a delicate shade (Hint of rouge, they're called) and would be superb with any shade of red, or with a grey or black. Price is $1.50 a pair.

More practical, for the same price, are the new darker shades for fall, such as mauve taupe, fashioned with the darker heel.

★ ★ ★

Another luxury—but at a bargain price—are bed jackets. Very tempting indeed at $5.95 are imported all-wool jackets that look hand-knit and come in lovely shades of pink and blue. One style has cosy draw-string waist, high neckline and cuffs are nylon trimmed. They are hand-washable.

Not a luxury at all, but smart and practical, are English pajamas of interlock cotton, with elasticized neck and cuffs. These and gowns of the same material are in style at just $4.95 and $5.95.

★ ★ ★

Another great temptation in the sportswear department of the same shop was an orlon sweater with an attractive little fringed shawl collar—in white, black or red—at $7.95.

And to go with them... Penny would love a pair of Paisley print corduroy slim jims. They would team perfectly with the sweaters, in either white and black or red and black. They're washable, too, and only $8.95 a pair.

★ ★ ★

Finally, a real bargain! For 89 cents, Penny gave in and bought a pair of slippers—for travelling or for around the house. They're stretchy knit, come in bright blue, emerald green or beige—and not at all extravagant.

If you're looking for something nice for yourself or for birthday gifts, why not have a look at these attractive items? Phone me at 2-3131 to find out where I shopped.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today I would like to summarize some of the factors which affect the vitamin content of foods.

1. Do not cook your vegetables too long and use as little water as possible. Greens lose only 25 per cent of their vitamin content when cooked for half an hour, while they lose a great deal more if cooked longer.

2. Vitamin C and many of the B complex vitamins are soluble in water. From 40 to 50 per cent of the vitamin content of canned vegetables is in the canning liquid—therefore, use this as well as the vegetables themselves.

3. Use the outer portions of fruits and vegetables whenever possible.

4. Do not use soda when cooking vegetables, even if it makes them look prettier. This speeds the vitamin loss.

5. Save any water you must pour off vegetables in sealed jars in the refrigerator for use in soups and sauces.

6. Choose vegetables and fruits which are ripe. The riper they are, the higher their vitamin content, so long as the skin has not been bruised or cut.

8. Whenever possible, bake potatoes and eat the skins. If you must boil them, boil them in their skins.

9. Canned fruit and fruit juices and tomatoes retain their vitamin content better than non-acid foods.

10. Whenever possible we should avoid the highly polished and the fine foods. For instance, polished white rice gives us little but calories. The rice bran and rice germ are wonderful sources of thiamine but they are removed in the milling process. Thus white rice loses about 80 per cent of its vitamin D content. Therefore, it is much better to eat brown rice or converted rice.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

BY NONA DAMASKE

No Matter What You Say—It's 'High-Waisted'

The Recamier line, the Directoire feeling, the Josephine look, the Empire (pronounced Emp-eer) silhouette . . . call it what you will . . . it can be described in two simple words — high-waisted.

Nona

Easy gals, erase that smug smile, the designers have made quite certain that we can not shorten our Empire line dresses of several seasons ago and be in step with style. As in the past the Empire theme takes bandings, self bows, slotted belts, stitched seams and flap pockets to bring and hold interest. The current silhouette differs in that the waistline, instead of fitting like the paper on the wall, is now unfitted and free falling.

In silky fabrics this effect is most often achieved by soft gatherings. In the more bulky wools the unpressed pleat is brought into use.

The high-waisted, short-skirted new shape is in reality a combination of the former figure-fitting Empire line and the loose-waisted Chemise.

You may well ask, at this point, "what happened to the Trapeze?"

Despite all the hoopla and endorsement by noted fashion houses the ultimate decision which makes or breaks a designer's dream is that of the average career girl or housewife.

The trapeze is still found in the fall and winter collections but the average North American woman is rejecting it for the more flattering Empire line.

There is, however, a fashion-conscious feminine group who are taking to the trapeze as ducks take to water. From three to 13 years, the little ladies have accepted this style which is so suitable for young figures.

While the Empire bodice comes in for the giant share of attention in dresses, hemlines are not ignored. They are fringed, flounced, banded and furred—and a long length of leg is very much a part of the picture.

So much for the silhouettes.

I do not know about the east but out our way we have also refused to go overboard on the high fashion color chosen by the experts. The powers that be said —purple, violet, lilac, magenta. Our gals did not listen. Second color choice from the early predictions is in first place in our part of the world—the soft yellowed greens, moss, fern and olive take on new importance.

All women are not necessarily slaves to fashion. It's fun to follow fashion if it makes you happy and attractive. If it makes you uncomfortable, don't accept it. Your unhappiness will show.

Ruby red velvet tops black and grey wool in this stunning "Directoire" line dress created by the house of Christian Dior. A large velvet-covered buckle accents the high rising bodice and large unpressed pleats give the free falling relaxed look to the waistline. Ruby-red crystals, matching velvet chapeaux and black gloves are all from Christian Dior.

Relaxed "Empire" silhouette for a pueblo brown wool and rabbit hair dress, designed by Oleg Cassini. Bias-cut fabric is used for the high-bosom banding and bow. Peau de soie is in miniature buttoned vestee.

Pulled in above the waistline by a black leather belt, Originala has given the "Empire" line to this black and white tweed coat. Designed by Lilly Dache the head-hugging cloche in emerald green is the perfect accent for this slim young coat.

YWCA NOTES

"Slim n' Trim" classes, designed to restore the waistline and give hints for self-improvement, will start on Oct. 6 in the YWCA. Classes are arranged for 5.30 p.m., so business girls may go direct from work. There will be an hour of exercises followed by a low-calorie dinner.

Keep-fit classes for housewives and busy mothers will be held every Tuesday at 10.30 a.m. A supervised nursery for children in age from two to five is being arranged so mothers may attend this class, have lunch, and also join a craft or interest group in early afternoon. Class is named "Away for the Day."

For those mothers who cannot spare too much time another keep-fit class for women is planned to start next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Every Thursday evening, commencing Oct. 2, the "Ardent Artists" class will meet with a fully-qualified instructor who will give lessons in charcoal, pen and ink, water-color and oil-painting techniques. Beginners may attend this class.

Further information may be obtained at the YWCA, 4-7179.

Fete Miss Pye

Pye, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Robert J. Patch, were also presented with corsages. A decorated box, representing a shopping basket, held gifts. Miss Linda Page presented the container. Guests included Mrs. D. Mowat, Mrs. G. Langley, Mrs. V. Fields, Mrs. C. Pye, Mrs. A. Francis, Mrs. W. Oldnall, Mrs. G. Blunt, Mrs. C. Evans, Mrs. A. Wetherell, Mrs. J. Parker, Mrs. M. Malcom, Mrs. M. Reid, Mrs. B. Pye, Mrs. E. Edmunds, Mrs. T. Rickinson, and the Misses Gelbea Langley, Corine Fields and Barbara Oldnall.

Welcome Room

Officers elected at the annual meeting of the committee and hostesses of the Women's Welcome Room are Mrs. C. H. Willis, president; Mrs. W. A. Jones, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. G. Piercey, sick visiting; Mrs. G. Howland and Mrs. I. Royle, hostess conveners; Mrs. H. S. Langford, supply convener, and Mrs. W. C. Cryer, press representative. Mrs. Piercey is past president. Mrs. Royle, in her attendance report, stated 3,871 women had been welcomed to the room, where tea, bread and butter and cookies are served. Average attendance was 450 a month with 19 new members. There are now 26 hostesses assisting. Mrs. Jones reported a bank balance of $614.18.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Conflicting Interests?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with so many women nowadays? Don't they have any modesty or decency at all? My husband comes home from his mail route and tells me he wishes these women with their short shorts and tight jeans would cover up. He says most women answer the door in their bathrobes until noon! I was taught to dress up in the morning with shoes, stockings, undergarments and a dress. But then I wasn't interested in tempting strange men who came to my door. I hope some women will read this and take the hint!

MAIL CARRIER'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Don't worry, Lady, when a woman greets the mailman in the morning she is either too tired or too busy to attempt to carry the mail carrier away. She's interested in MAIL—not MALE!

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I've a problem that is common but I don't know what to do about it. My girlfriend lives a few doors away and she came and told me that my eight-year-old boy has been finding out about the birds and the bees with her five-year-old daughter. Should the kids be punished or what?

TWO LOST MOTHERS.

DEAR MOTHERS: Punished for a curiosity that is as natural as breathing? Certainly not! Let the children know that you are willing to answer all their questions — and don't act embarrassed or they'll come to regard the subject of "sex" as something wrong and shameful.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: A letter in write what I am about to say. I am 51 years old. I love housework and keep myself busy. I have three married children and they have children of their own. I used to drop everything and run to baby-sit for them. I didn't realize I was neglecting my husband. A few things happened around Christmas time that made me realize my children didn't care as much for my happiness as I cared for theirs. I have made up my mind that I have ONE baby to tend, and that is my husband. After 33 years I just woke up.

MAMMA.

★ ★ ★

CONFIDENTIAL TO BENNY: If you can't get her legally . . . don't take her literally.

Capacity Audience Sees Audubon Show

Modern highways are much more dangerous than sharks and barracudas, according to William H. Wagoner of Homestead, Fla., one of United States outstanding nature photographers.

The 41-year-old photographer, who frequently takes movies of tropical sea life, said the so-called vicious sea fishes are 100 times less dangerous than driving on a highway.

"Sharks, octopi and electric eels will never harm you if you mind your own business," he said when questioned about his experiences with deep-sea fishes. "But a motorist, regardless of how careful he is, is running a heavy risk every day."

HALL FILLED

Mr. Wagoner and his wife showed their colored movie, "A Touch of the Tropics," to a capacity audience at the Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium Friday. The program was sponsored by the Victoria Natural History Society and the Audubon Society of Canada.

The movie depicted wildlife in the Everglades and sea life in Florida Bay.

Mr. Wagoner did not think much of people who are afraid of wild animals.

"It's all in the imagination," he said. "A person who is afraid of a cougar is reverting to his childhood imagination when he pictured a cat as a tiger stealing through jungle grass."

He was concerned with the continued destruction of nature sanctuaries in the United States and Canada.

The Audubon Society, he said, had created many natural parks, but despite conservation efforts, areas ideal for wildlife sanctuaries are still being destroyed.

Known in the United States as the "artist who paints with a camera," Mr. Wagoner's film showed that he has a rare talent for making every scene a beautiful composition. There were some striking pictures of cranes, storks and alligators taken in the Florida jungle.

Mr. Wagoner's present interest in conservation grew out of two childhood hobbies, photography and nature study.

"I took my first picture of a bird when I was ten," he said. "That started me off on my career."

During the Second World War his skill as a photographer landed him in the U.S. Army Signal Corps, and later his hobby of natural history led him to become a ranger-naturalist at Grand Canyon National Park.

"What we like best to do," he said, "is to climb mountains and trek into remote wilderness areas. There is much around you that is beautiful. You have to open up your eyes and see it."

Driver Blames Skin Medicine For Collapse

Hubert Merrick Hall, 74, 2235 Arbutus Road, charged with impaired driving Aug. 14, told Saanich court Thursday it was medicine taken for a skin condition that made him "dopey and groggy."

He had pleaded not guilty to the charge at an earlier court appearance.

Earlier, three Saanich police officers had testified the accused on the night in question smelled strongly of liquor and his talk was jumbled.

They said he had collapsed on the lawn at his home "flat on his back, arms and legs stretched out," and had to be helped by police into the house.

"It didn't occur to you he might be ill," defence counsel asked.

"No, it didn't," the police officer answered.

The impaired charge was laid after police went to his home looking for the owner of a sedan delivery left about 600 yards from his house.

The trial was adjourned until Oct. 2 to hear evidence of the accused's doctor.

150 Attending B.C. Aviation Convention Here

More than 150 delegates from all parts of British Columbia are attending a two-day convention of the B.C. Aviation Council at the Empress Hotel.

J. N. Donnelly, of Trans-Canada Air Lines, addressed the convention this morning on the role of aviation in municipal progress.

Tex Johnson, chief test pilot of Boeing Aircraft Co. Ltd., Seattle, will be guest speaker at a banquet at 7 tonight.

The Aviation Council was formed in 1938 from a cross-section of aviation interests throughout the province, including representatives of municipal councils having airstrips in their districts.

More than 100 delegates who were to have flown to Victoria Friday arrived here by Canadian Pacific ferry instead.

They cancelled their plans to fly over because of bad weather in Vancouver.

B.C. Liberals To Convene Next Spring

B.C. Liberals are planning to call a general convention in Vancouver or Victoria next spring.

The decision to hold a 1959 convention was reached unanimously by a committee of party officers meeting in Vancouver Friday.

A spokesman for the committee said the convention will be "one of the most important in the history of the Liberal party."

He said the group was influenced by the big response to a personal-opinion questionnaire sent to Liberals throughout B.C.

The survey has produced a volume of information which requires "thorough study well in advance of a convention," the spokesman said.

MUNICIPAL ACTION STALLED

UBCM Skirmish Opens Power Rivals' Battle

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

NANAIMO — Some 700 delegates to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention here left for their homes Friday with a strong impression that they had ringside seats at the opening of a power struggle between the province's two electrical utilities.

But the sudden ending of the three-day convention headed off a drive to involve the municipal association in the battle.

Both the publicly-owned B.C. Power Commission and the privately-owned B.C. Electric Company tendered dinners for delegates.

BCPC general manager H. L. Briggs sent rumors flying of an impending struggle for a greater share of the power pie when he told delegates that a majority of the commission's scattered residential customers pay only $6.60 for 300 kilowatt hours of energy.

He compared this with the $9.20 bill charged by BCE in Victoria for the same service.

BCE's executive vice-president Dr. H. L. Purdy the following day immediately labelled the comparison as a "great red herring" produced by BCPC.

"I wonder if it is sheer chance" that BCE's Victoria rates were singled out, he snapped.

The open clash between the two power leaders followed a call on the UBCM convention floor for replacement of BCE operations in Victoria by BCPC in order that the provincial utility could subsidize its rural electrification program more easily.

Mayor William Moore of Courtenay, former CCF MLA, used the suggestion as a springboard for a resolution urging the provincial government to wipe BCE right off the B.C. map and install BCPC as the sole electrical ultiity.

But the resolution never reached the floor for a debate. Delegates, who had finished scheduled business a half-day early, voted against considering any late resolutions and wound the convention up Friday noon.

But several key delegates told reporters that there had been an outside chance the resolution would have been passed if it had reached the floor.

Volunteer Firemen 'Overgrown Boys'

Prince George Mayor Carrie Jane Gray livened up the last hour of the convention by calling volunteer firemen "overgrown boys."

She made the statement during a prolonged debate on whether the UBCM should spend $2,000 for an actuarial study of possible methods to set up a pension fund for volunteer firemen.

"What I want to know is why volunteer firemen should get a pension," Mayor Gray said. "I've found that they become volunteer firemen only because they are overgrown boys. It's their entertainment."

An outcry of "no, no," from the delegates prompted her sharp rebuke:

"Don't be rude. I have the floor."

She continued that if volunteer firemen were to receive more fringe benefits then "I'd like to become one, too, and go roaring around on the fire trucks."

The convention finally adopted a compromise giving the executive power to study all possible approaches to a pension fund, and their effects.

Aldermen Barred in Labor Disputes

Victoria delegates overcame executive opposition to win adoption of a reslution seeking legislative changes to prevent an alderman from acting as a conciliation board member in a dispute involving another municipality.

The resolution was prompted by selection of Vancouver alderman Halford Wilson by Victoria firemen this summer as their representative on a board dealing with their pay dispute.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt argued against the executive's objection that there should be no restrictions on the choice of conciliation board members.

He said an alderman who had agreed to a certain pay rate for employees of his municipality might be influenced in considering the merits of a pay dispute in another municipality.

The convention also passed a resolution demanding that the provincial government eliminate the exemption from municipal taxation held by the Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company.

Same demand has been made the last two years, and rejected by the cabinet, but delegates made it clear they would repeat the request yearly until it was granted.

The convention voted to incorporate UBCM, to give it status as a legal entity. Delegates approved another recommendation designed to increase the budget by 50 per cent. Last year it was $12,000.

B.C. Skiers Now Figured At 125,000

The British Columbia government has counted the number of skiers in the province and come up with a total of 125,000.

The information will be used in charting winter plans for the department of recreation and conservation.

Recreations Minister E. C. Westwood who issued the survey report, says 65,000 of the wooden blade artists live in Vancouver area and 16,000 on Vancouver Island.

The mountains of North Vancouver attract the heaviest concentration of skiers.

Half of B.C. skiers have taken up the sport in the last five years or less; 25 per cent ski once a week during the snow season; 50 per cent are casuals who ski once a month or less.

'Unholy Social War' Feared by Finlayson

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—Deane Finlayson, provincial Progressive-Conservative leader, warned Friday the labor-management struggle could become an "unholy social war that would leave the country prostrated."

Addressing a North Vancouver Conservative Association meeting, he said the CCF is exploiting economic problems for their own political ends. They want to set themselves up as the champions of labor, with the Conservatives, Liberals and Social Credit on the other side of the fence, he said.

"We as Conservatives want to prevent that. We don't believe a class struggle is inevitable."

Mr. Finlayson said there was no question that the unions were a big factor in the country's economic plight. But there were other factors and it would be unwise for the Conservatives to make political capital out of a situation which requires "statesmanlike action and great thought."

FOLSOM DELAYS RULING ON NEGRO HANDYMAN

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Jimmy Wilson has entrusted his fate to a governor who has said he will never let a man die in the electric chair if he can find "some excuse" to spare his life. But the 55-year-old illiterate Negro under death sentence for a $1.95 robbery failed to get a decision from Governor James E. Folsom Friday. The governor adjourned a clemency hearing without indicating when he will issue the order which will send Wilson to his death or reduce his sentence to life imprisonment.

Our Rates Lower Claims BCE Boss

B.C. Electric today replied to the B.C. Power Commission's claim for cheaper rates with a statement of "average" charges showing more favorable rates for BCE customers.

B.C. Power general manager H. L. Briggs had told the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Nanaimo that the majority of BCPC's customers paid less than Victoria customers of BCE.

W. C. Mearns, BCE vice-president on the Island, said Mr. Briggs' remarks had been reported "in a manner which could leave the impression that there is an extensive differential between B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission rates."

He listed these charges as "average" per kilowatt hour for BCE customers: Residential 2.1 cents; commercial, 2.8 cents; power, .987 cents.

Comparable BCPC rates, he said were: Residential, 2.4 cents; commercial, 2.8 cents; Power, 1.8 cents.

"Mr. Briggs is quoted," said Mr. Mearns, "as reporting his own bill in Victoria, using 300 killowat hours for the purpose. His consumption, however, is considerably more than 300. Based on his actual consumption, his bill in Victoria was less in the past year than it would have been in Nanaimo."

UN China Debate Opposed by U.K.

WASHINGTON (AP)—British officials are reported here to be advocating a long-range compromise settlement of the Formosa dispute under which Nationalist-held coastal islands would go eventually to Communist China.

The British government also was reported today to be advising the United States against bringing the Formosa crisis before the United Nations in the immediate future. London officials were said to believe the best hope for a peaceful settlement lies in diplomatic negotiations rather than UN debate.

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese convoys cracked the Communist blockade of the Quemoys twice today.

Some 50 amphibious LVTs waddled ashore through a pattern of waterspouts thrown up by probing Red Chinese artillery as worsening weather in the Formosa Strait led increasingly to the belief that a major Communist attack in the Formosa area is unlikely, at least for the next few months.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said today that public mail on the Quemoy situation is running heavily against the administration's decision to help the Chinese Nationalists retain the offshore islands.

A Washington dispatch by E. W. Kenworthy says about 80 per cent of the mail directly criticizes the administration's policy, or expresses fear that the policy will lead to war. The rest praises President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles for "standing up to the Communists."

City Stench Bomb Blamed on Mills

Up-Island pulp mills were suspected this morning as sources of a lusty stench that pervaded the city.

Immediately suspect was the B.C. Electric gas plant, but after a few complaints had been received, the gas foreman went to work and found to his satisfaction that his plant was not responsible.

He blamed the pulp mills, and weatherman William Mackie said weather conditions were such that "attar of pulp" could be noted here.

Winds were light and from the north, he said, and there was an inversion—a condition where cold air is on the earth's surface and warm air aloft—that acts like a lid and keeps pollution factors from dispersing into the upper air.

B.C. Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton is 33 air miles from the city centre, and Harmac mill near Nanaimo is 54 miles away.

ROBOTS ON THE LOOSE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A noted classicist defined a "robot" Friday for a symposium at the University of British Columbia.

"This last piece of mechanism being colloquially known as a licensed driver."

(See Also Page 3)

PARIS (UPI)—Algerian Nationalists blew up an acetylene warehouse today in a sabotage campaign that increased in intensity just 24 hours before the nation votes on the new constitution.

The French, determined to let nothing interfere with the referendum Sunday, guillotined an Algerian Moslem convicted of murder.

The convict, Benil Ben Abdullah Bouguerea, who killed a pro-French Moslem, was executed at La Sante Prison. He was the first Moslem executed inside France since the start of the Algerian rebellion four years ago.

But it did not deter the rebel campaign in metropolitan France.

A series of mysterious fires broke out in Lyons. Rebels threw gasoline bombs into a textile factory in Aubervilliers but failed to set the plant afire. Another bomb placed against the home of a policeman in Bordeaux was discovered before it exploded.

Police said Algerian agents exploded several plastic charges in a warehouse in the northern suburbs. Acetylene tanks exploded inside and the building collapsed. Hundreds of window panes were shattered over a wide area.

100 mph Winds Slam U.S. Coast

(From Times News Services)

WILMINGTON, N.C.—Winds of Hurricane Helene howled ashore in southeastern North Carolina late this morning at speeds above 100 miles an hour.

First reports told of mounting damage but no deaths.

Advance warning from the weather bureau and civil defence authorities had emptied the danger areas of practically all residents. Thousands fled inland or checked in at numerous emergency shelters.

Twelve-foot waves and flood tides pounded ashore in advance of the storm's centre which packed winds up to 125 miles an hour.

City docks at Southport, port town 30 miles south of Wilmington, washed away, the weather bureau said.

HOUSES COLLAPSE

The highway patrol said a few houses at Kure Beach, east of Wilmington, had collapsed under the wind force.

Far to the south, hurricane Ilsa built up into a mammoth hurricane with winds of 140 miles an hour, some 435 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. No land area was in its immediate path.

Helene's centre, swinging on a more northerly course, was poised late this morning below the mouth of the Cape Fear River, and was expected to roll across the low country around Southport and Wilmington in early afternoon.

15-FOOT WAVES

Seas with waves 15 feet high were reported at the Coast Guard station on Oak Island, off Southport.

Gusts blew debris through the streets. Authorities broadcast warnings for residents to stay off the streets. A newsman reported the rear window of his car was blown out by a strong gust.

Helene, making the classic turn of Atlantic hurricanes to the north, altered course in the night, apparently sparing South Carolina coastal lands the brunt of her full blow.

IKE'S NEW AIDE

Maj.-Gen. Wilton B. Persons, 62, a native of Montgomery, Ala., today was named by President Eisenhower as his chief assistant to succeed the resigned Sherman Adams. Persons had been deputy assistant to Eisenhower since Sept. 5, 1953.

Little Rock Integration Vote Heavy

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Election officials predicted a heavy vote in today's referendum on the racial integration of Little Rock schools.

The ballot offered a choice of allowing Negroes to attend all schools in the Little Rock school district—or none.

There are about 42,000 eligible voters, including 8,000 Negroes.

Governor Orval Faubus, who closed the city's four high schools two weeks ago in a move to avoid immediate integration, Friday night assailed factions favoring integrated schools but said he was not trying to influence the election.

"The decision is yours," he said in a televised speech. "As your public servant, I will abide by your decision."

LONDON (Reuters) — Luton Town, only unbeaten soccer team in the English League First Division, jumped from fourth to first place today with a 4-1 victory over Preston North End at Luton.

After a 1-1 first half, Luton turned on the pressure to gain the only win among the top eight clubs in the division.

Defeated Preston, which had moved to the top with a mid-week victory, dropped to a second-place points tie with Bolton Wanderers and Chelsea, but Preston had the better goal average.

Bolton was defeated 2-1 today by Burnley, while Chelsea jumped all the way from ninth place with a 4-1 victory over Nottingham Forest. It was Chelsea's fifth straight home win.

A goal by free-scoring centre forward David Herd gave Arsenal which was lying third in the table, a 1-0 interval lead at Leeds, but the Yorkshire club, helped by a penalty, fought back to win 2-1 and register its first home win of the season.

The day's biggest crowd, 62,812, watched the "local derby" between Manchester City and Manchester United, which ended in a 1-1 tie.

Yacht Aground

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Deer Leap, a 75-foot Seattle-owned luxury yacht, ran aground just outside the First Narrows entrance to Vancouver's Harbor during fog early today. Nine passengers were taken off by a tug. Officials said the vessel was in no danger.

BOSCO, Italy—The 700 Roman Catholic villagers of this mountain hamlet in southern Italy have threatened to turn Protestant unless they get back their parish priest.

The trouble started three months ago when Bosco's priest, Don Francesco Saverio lo Sardo, was transferred.

The villagers sent a deputation to the bishop of Policastro, asking his return.

Their pleas were in vain, so they launched a protest strike against church services.

Don Francesco's successor, Don Mario Carpentieri, tried his best to patch things up but has not been too successful.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Donna Sue Turner, a child bride at the age of 10 and now mother of an infant daughter, wants a divorce.

The girl, who observed her 12th birthday Aug. 7, charged in a suit filed Friday that Charles William Turner, deserted her shortly after their baby's birth last June 4 and has failed to provide either a home or support for them.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) —Henry and Blanche Holloway, octogenarian hermits of low-lying Goat Island, just north of Charleston, said Friday they planned to sit out hurricane Helene either in their dugout cave or in a tree.

VISITORS TO CANADA in mid-October will be Sir Grantley Adams, prime minister of the West Indies Federation, above, and Lady Adams. They will be in Canada for 10 days as guests of Governor-General Massey.

EMERGENCY CALLS

Your directory has spaces on the first white page where Emergency numbers can be written. Be sure to write in these numbers for quick easy reference.

DIRECTORY

Your new Centennial Directory, listing all new Victoria and District telephone numbers, should now be in your home. If you have not yet received your new directory, notify our Business Office—phone 4-8011 (after Sunday, Sept. 28, call EVergreen 4-8011). The new directory becomes effective September 28. Please do not use your old directory after that date.

DIALING

If you should happen to dial a number and forget to dial the prefix name letters you will hear the "no-such-number" tone—a continuous tone, rising and falling in pitch. If you hear this tone, please consult your new directory and call again. Remember—you must dial TWO LETTERS and FIVE FIGURES.

WHY THIS NUMBER CHANGE IS NECESSARY

The change to what is called "2-5" numbering—two letters followed by five figures—will bring Victoria and District telephone numbers in line with similar changes now being effected in British Columbia and all parts of the North American continent. Its purpose is to establish a uniform pattern of telephone numbering which will eventually allow most subscribers to dial almost any phone in North America without requiring the services of an operator.

Progressive improvement in service is the Telephone Company's constant aim. The introduction of "2-5" numbering to Victoria and District is an important part of our objective.

AROUND THE WORLD

With JOHN MANNING

University student John Manning of 3725 Ripon Rd., has taken a year off from classroom studies to "vagabond" around the world. The 21-year-old Victorian is writing his impressions of the places he is visiting and the things he is seeing.

By JOHN MANNING

INDIA—The dead man lay in the railway station, people passing by without even a glance. A dirty sheet lay over the body and flies were crawling on the sheet. I was with two French Boys, we saw it at the same time and neither of us said much.

We had third-class tickets but there were so many Indians fighting and pushing their way onto those cars that we gave up and rode second class. The conductor never came. We got off at Madura still thinking about the dead man.

Compared to New Delhi, the town was like being in another world. I don't think the side streets were wide enough to let a car through. Holy cows wandered about looking fatter than the people themselves. For a few annas we hired a horse-drawn Tonga to take us about the town.

Naked in Street

Do you know what it is like to see such things as people wandering naked down the streets, with nothing but their hands outstretched for food and the children sitting in the doorways, their bodies aching with starvation? Or to see a blind man being led along or just standing the whole day somewhere and you wonder what he thinks about while he stands there?

A holy man sat under the shade of a sack awning, his begging bowl at his side. He wasn't begging, just sitting there glad to be away from the sun, his old head nodding in tired weariness.

All at once I felt sick of it all. So I left the French boys and went out onto the road where there was fresh air and fewer things to look at. The other two were to join me at the Taj Mahal that evening. An Austrian diplomat picked me up on his way to Bombay. Soon after the monsoons let down a torrent of rain which squelched the heat.

Emperor's Tomb

The Taj Mahal . . . As I came in past the outer wall of the gardens the rain stopped. The sun, for a brief few minutes, shone through an opening, sending its rays crashing down on the whiteness of this famous structure. It had a strange brilliance against the blackness of the clouds. There were few people inside. I caught the smell of a coal oil lamp and then saw a man with it. He took me down into the vault where are the tombs of the Mogul Emperor Shah Jehan and his wife. The lamp threw our shadows eerily against the ceiling and walls of the vault. The man talked in a whisper. His stubby finger pointed out the spot where one of the largest gems in the world had rested. Now it is in the crown of Queen Elizabeth.

Steady Rain

I waited until past the hour of darkness, the rain still coming down, but the French boys did not come. I found out later their train had been delayed because of floods. Our plan had been to wait until the guard had shut the main gates at midnight and then put our sleeping bags down on the grass. It was the time of the full moon, but the rain never let up. So I started back along the road towards Agra.

It was only a few minutes walking before I came to what I thought was an Indian Army camp. I went in. The commanding officer was a huge mountain of a man and with great laughter told me that I had come to a police camp. I asked him if there was a spare bunk in the barracks where I could put my sleeping bag down. He insisted that I stay in his own home.

WINNER of the grand award for citizenship scholarship and athletics, Judy Noonan, 531 Normandy Road, was presented with a trophy at the fourth annual presentation of prizes and awards of Royal Oak Junior-Senior High School Friday. More than 200 parents attended. Awards for citizenship and scholarships were also presented.

Killer-Lion Keeper Absolved of Blame

NANAIMO (CP) — German-born zookeeper Paul Hertel was absolved of blame Friday in the death of eight-year-old Maureen Vanstone, killed the day after a lioness escaped from Hertel's zoo last May 2.

An Assize Court jury returned a verdict of not guilty on a charge of criminal negligence after hearing evidence during a three-day trial here.

Little Maureen was clawed to death by a full-grown lioness, Fury, as she walked along a country road near here. The lioness was shot the same day by a posse.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of the B.C. Supreme Court told the acquitted man: "Here you see the workings of British justice at its best. Since you are new to this country you had better take precautions in the future."

Earlier, Hertel testified he had been told to "wait a minute" by someone on a party line when he attempted to warn nearby residents the lioness had escaped from his small private zoo.

Hertel said the appearance of Maureen Vanstone's brother at the zoo prompted him to try again to warn the Vanstone family.

"There were some ladies on the line when I made the call," he said.

The zoo-keeper testified they told him: "We'll be through in a minute—you can wait that long."

A second call five minutes later found another person on the line.

"That was the last call I made to the Vanstones, as I was called outside," he said.

Hertel said he also phoned a cougar hunter who told him his dogs couldn't be used because the lioness might harm them.

"A second hunter said he would come, but had some work to do on his brakes," Hertel testified.

Earlier Hertel said he had always treated the lioness with kindness, and had not known his assistant struck the animal with a piece of wood when it escaped previously.

"This could upset her enough to make her act differently," Hertel said. He told the court he had been interested in animals since he was a child.

Typhoon Deaths May Reach 2,000

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—The death toll from typhoon Ida mounted today as disaster reports trickled in from vast flooded areas of central Japan. Police listed 234 fatalities and 1,300 persons missing.

Casualty figures will be higher, police said, when communications are restored with Izu Peninsula, 70 miles below Tokyo. There the Kano River, swollen by 23 inches of rain, slashed at a dozen villages and washed two out to sea.

Unconfirmed Japanese press lists pushed the number of dead and missing to 2,000.

U.S. military forces dispatched equipment and men to help in evacuation and relief work in the stricken capital and elsewhere.

At the height of the storm, 100 mile winds lashed Izu and Tokyo Bay, with gusts up to 80 miles an hour in the city proper. An all-time record 15½ inches of rain fell, destroying or washing away more than 1,000 homes. About 500,000 houses were flooded to varying extent.

The devastation outside the capital was illustrated by these figures from the police . . . roads washed out in 871 places . . . 224 bridges smashed or swept away . . . 1,875 landslides. In some of the latter, whole families were reported buried.

Surveyors Scan Courthouse Site

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Victoria's long-awaited new courthouse loomed mistily on the horizon today.

It is still a long way off but the start of surveys on the Cathedral Hill site by the B.C. public works department suggested a move towards actual construction.

Surveyors A. O. Noakes and his son Hugh, accompanied by chainman Dev Yates of Metchosin, moved onto the 600 by 300-foot site Friday and began taking measurements with a transit theodolite, a wye level and a rod.

A public works official said the surveyors had direct instructions to determine the exact boundaries and levels at the courthouse site.

They will also determine the amount of surface rock that will have to be excavated before the foundations can be laid.

Mr. Noakes — a practicing surveyor in Victoria for 49 years — said the survey of the whole block at Burdette Avenue will take three or four days.

After the preliminary survey, he and his son will report to the public works department and then return to the site for more intensive surveys.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said he could give no estimate of the size or cost of the new courthouse until the surveys are completed and the actual courthouse requirements are known.

These requirements include five courtrooms (replacing the three now operating at the old courthouse); a room for the examination of witnesses; a robing room for lady barristers; an extra janitor's room, and considerable storage space for legal and land registry documents.

At present a large percentage of these documents are stored in Heaney's warehouse across the way and in another warehouse some three miles distant.

It is possible, too, that personnel in the RCMP barracks on the Cathedral Hill site will have to be accommodated in the new building, but no decision on this has yet been reached.

There are two car parks on the new site which will have to be cleared before actual construction can begin and a number of trees will have to be cut down.

Mr. Noakes, Sr., said this site was surveyed 100 years ago by the Christ Church Cathedral Trust which then planned to build the cathedral there. But the cathedral was constructed instead on the opposite side of Quadra Street.

"This ancient survey may be of some use to us in determining how the new courthouse will be built," Mr. Noakes said.

"It will be designed by our own staff," the public works official said, "but some outside opinion may be sought."

Architect-planner W. D. Lougher-Goodey of the public works department has been put in charge of the work.

More than two years ago the B.C. cabinet approved a plan to spend between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 on the new building.

Fontainebleau palace and park, dating from the 13th century, is 37 miles southeast of Paris.

PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS ADVOCATED BY C OF C

Victoria Chamber of Commerce threw its weight behind the Community Chest campaign Friday when its directors voted unanimously to support the drive and endorsed the principle of payroll deduction.

The directors urged the 800 businesses represented in the chamber to "take the lead" in furthering the Chest's objectives.

'CARVE NAME WITH PRIDE'

Chest Pep Rally At Movie Sunday

By DAVID COWLISHAW

"Carve Her Name with Pride" is the title of a film to be shown at a Community Chest rally Sunday at the Odeon Theatre.

And "carve his and her name with gratitude" is what campaign manager Justin Harbord expects to be saying about the canvassers in the audience when they finish their money-collecting job in the drive that follows.

The campaign starts with a tri-service parade starting from the Empress Hotel Monday. The house-to-house canvass will cover two days, Oct. 15 and 16.

"When that $300,000 is gathered in," Mr. Harbord said Thursday, "the whole community will owe these good people (the volunteer canvassers) a vote of thanks."

The film, starring Virginia McKenna and Paul Scofield, is the story of a British agent in occupied France during the Second World War.

It is part of a show for the 2,500 Chest canvassers at the Odeon beginning at 8.30 p.m., which includes appropriate music by the 17-piece Naden band (courtesy Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner) and an outline by M. C. Hugh Curtis of the work and needs of the 20 Red Feather agencies.

His remarks will be dramatized by 20 placard-carrying members of Victoria Girls' Drill Team, and heightened by a three-minute talk by Mr. Harbord.

CAR-WASH STARTS

Canvassers who have not received, or have lost, invitations to the show will be able to get in by showing their "Buy Happiness" buttons.

Meanwhile, 100 Boy Scouts and 120 YWCA girls began washing windshields of cars parked downtown today. Cards left beneath wipers draw a parallel between the youngsters' "good deed" and that of persons who contribute to the Chest.

Button Note: Total of $31 has been "donated" to Chest funds by campaign workers fined $1 a time for not wearing their "Buy Happiness" buttons. Latest victims are Justin Harbord and Cliff Rutledge (chest publicist), "nicked" by an alert Red Feather official who spotted the buttonless pair during a recent plane flight to Vancouver.

Red Feather Pledge Made By Teachers

Greater Victoria school teachers have endorsed the Community Chest and recommended to association members that they support the drive "to the best of their ability."

Association president Walter Boyes told The Times Friday that the resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting in Oak Bay Junior High School Wednesday night.

In an earlier resolution, Mr. Boyes said, teachers approved a motion that they should be approached through their association, and "not by their employer," the School Board.

Discussion followed an appeal on behalf of the Chest by Stuart Keate, who said that "the amount given was a matter for the individual conscience."

He suggested that $2 a month on the payroll deduction plan would realize a donation "commensurate with your important role in the professional life of this community."

Mr. Boyes said that association members felt that Chest giving should be a spontaneous and private matter, and that, within this framework, they were happy to endorse Chest objectives.

Harbord Attacks 'Penny-Pinchers'

Victoria's "well-educated and prosperous" people came under the fire of Community Chest campaign manager Justin Harbord Friday.

He charged them with forgetting that "a democracy is responsible for the welfare of all," adding that Red Feather critics are members of the "Pocketbook Protective League."

"What do you think is going to happen to democracy if you and I forget our responsibility to the needy?" Mr. Harbord asked a meeting of Victoria Lions Club.

"It is wrong for some of us — the well-educated and prosperous section of the community—to leave welfare up to the state, or to adopt a policy of 'Let George do it'."

AGENCIES JUSTIFIED

Mr. Harbord said criticism of inclusion of the YMCA, YWCA and Boy Scouts in the Chest was unjustified because they were worthwhile agencies doing a good job for the city's youth.

"Can you imagine a city without such youth facilities?" he asked. "This city should do more for these organizations—we are falling down on the job of providing more facilities for our youngsters."

The Chest official said similar criticism of the St. Vincent de Paul Society "because it is a Roman Catholic charity" was also undeserved.

"This agency serves the needy regardless of race or creed," he said. "There is no room for this prejudice."

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

Mr. Harbord said he "wouldn't mind making a bet" that the Chest would reach its $300,000 objective, urging canvassers to "be happy about the job and don't mumble in your beard."

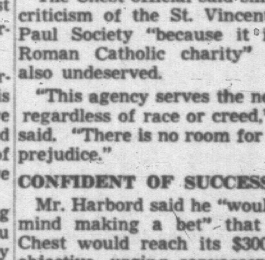

"It's a lot of nonsense that money can't buy happiness. You can buy happiness for yourself and others with your contribution to the Community Chest."

The Lions pledged full support for the campaign.
